

Quick Anti-Recession Action Not Necessary, Ike Declares

Discards Idea of Prompt Tax Cut, Thinks Economy May be Moving Upward

Washington — President Eisenhower said today he sees no need for any emergency anti-recession action—such as a tax cut—at this time.

Commenting on the latest unemployment figures, the president told a news conference he believes there are real grounds to conclude that the economy is on the upgrade.

The government announced yesterday that unemployment increased by about 25,000 in the month which ended in mid-March. There were much larger increases during the preceding several months.

March is normally a month when employment climbs as the weather moderates and permits outdoor work.

The first question put to Eisenhower at the conference was a request for his views regarding a possible tax cut in the light of the latest unemployment figures and other economic conditions.

Eisenhower noted that Secretary of the Treasury Anderson has promised to consult with Democratic as well as Republican congressional leaders before the administration takes any tax action. Then the president went on to say he sees nothing in the unemployment figures that brings the situation to a critical point and requires a decision on taxes at the moment.

It was Eisenhower's third meeting with newsmen in as many weeks—and the first time he has held news conferences three weeks in a row since last August.

The discussion ranged over many topics.

Eisenhower said vigorously that he doesn't care how many in congress may oppose his defense reorganization plan—he intends to fight for it with every means at his command.

That will include, he added, going to the nation on television just as frequently as the TV networks will grant him time, if that should become necessary.

Eisenhower also said it makes no sense at all for anyone to fear that the reorganization plan would concentrate so much power in the hands of the secretary of defense as to make him a czar.

Among safeguards against any such development, he said, are the joint chiefs of staff, congress itself, and the national guard organizations.

Eisenhower predicted the reorganization plan will, as he put it, go swimmingly once it is well understood.

Major Fund Bills
The president said that congress, now at the half way mark in the session, still has not acted on certain legislation which he regards as vital.

He listed what he termed critical appropriation bills, including the defense spending measure; extension of the reciprocal trade act for five years, and the administration's $3,942,000 foreign aid program.

Eisenhower said he would seriously consider calling a halt to U. S. nuclear weapon tests—after the scheduled summer series—if he is convinced that this country's scientists have obtained all the information they need regarding the making of so-called clean nuclear weapons.

Eisenhower emphasized that he first would have to be con-

Misquoted, Says Soviet Leader

Khrushchev Charges Western Newsmen Twisted His Words

Budapest — Accusing western newsmen of twisting his words, Soviet Premier Khrushchev declared Russia will help stamp out any revolt that might hit Hungary or its communist neighbors.

The Soviet boss, whose tank legions crushed Hungary's 1956 uprising, spelled out the Kremlin's position yesterday before 40,000 Hungarians at the coal-mining center of Tatabanya, one of the last rebel strongholds to fall 18 months ago.

Khrushchev charged western journalists with distorting his statement at Stalinvaros Saturday that if revolt came to Hungary again, the Hungarian communists should not count on the Russians for help.

Khrushchev insisted he meant that the Hungarian reds should run their show in such a way that there would be no new uprising.

Khrushchev warned the west against trying to start uprisings in communist lands on the assumption that Russia would not step in.

"If the enemies of the working class or provocateurs try to make a putsch or a counter-revolution in any socialist country," he said, "I tell them from here that all the socialist countries and the forces of the U. S. S. R. are ready at any moment to unite and give their help and a well-deserved answer to provocations."

"Capitalists can sleep quietly as long as the workers in their own countries will let them," Khrushchev added.

"We chose the way of Marx, Engels and Lenin and we adhere to it. We will not let them poke their trade act for five years, and noses—or as we Russians say, their pigs' snouts—into our socialist garden."

Wins Primary Race Despite GOP Machine

Wright Chosen as Nominee to Retain Treasurer's Post

Chicago — Warren E. Wright, running for a third term as treasurer against the Republican organization supported candidate, handily won the GOP nomination in the feature race of yesterday's Illinois primary.

The 65-year-old political veteran—out of favor with the GOP organization the last few years—captured the nomination for state treasurer from Louis E. Beckman by a margin of more than 50,000.

Beckman, 44-year-old state representative who had the blessing and backing of the Republican organization headed by Gov. William G. Stratton, had a 2-1 edge in early returns tabulated in Chicago precincts.

Wright came through with surprising strength in the suburbs and downstate areas, where the party counted on racking up votes for Beckman.

Not Party Defeat
If Wright had any resentment against the party that refused to back him, he failed to give even the slightest inkling of it. He insisted that the victory could not be regarded as a rebuke for the party or for Stratton.

Except for the GOP contest for state treasurer, the primary was a comparatively dull affair. Despite clear, mild weather—and an extra hour in which to vote—balloting in the nation's first 1958 primary was light. There were indications the total vote would come to 1,300,000 or less than 30 per cent of the state's some five million registered voters.

In the second statewide race, the GOP contest for superintendent of public instruction, the Republican organization candidate smothered his opponent.

The Democratic nominees for state offices were unopposed.

Three veteran incumbent Republican representatives in congress won renomination in their downstate farming-industrial districts in the only tests in 14 of the state's 25 congressional districts.

Less Than 2 Per Cent Fox Cities Industry Employment Off

Little Evidence of Recession; Many Firms Have More Jobs, Orders

Post-Crescent News Editor

The voice of the recession, being heard as a roar in some parts of America, is only a whisper here in the Fox Cities.

As in similar times in the past, Fox Cities industry is reacting only slightly to business troubles elsewhere. A Post-Crescent survey shows industrial employment here off 1.9 per cent for March compared to a year ago. The drop, however, is accounted for by a few big firms—eight out of 10 of the companies surveyed reported employment the same or higher than a year ago.

Moreover, 80 per cent of the companies report that their production is the same or higher than a year ago; 78 per cent report employees working as many or more hours; 72 per cent report that their order backlogs are as big as a year ago, or bigger.

(The survey covered only industrial employers, plus a few service firms such as insurance companies and banks. Since the employment picture nationwide shows almost all the unemployment is in manufacturing while service and retail employment is up, total Fox Cities employment probably is off less than the 1.9 per cent.)

The survey questions were sent to 181 industries in Kaukauna, Little Chute, Kimberly, Combined Locks, Appleton, Menasha, Neenah and the towns which make up the Fox Cities. Of these, 112 answered, a big 62 per cent.

The companies were asked: How many full time employees are on your payroll compared to March a year ago? Is there a substantial difference?

Rebels Seize Cuban Radio, TV Stations

Call General Strike As Fighting Starts On Havana's Streets

Havana — Fidel Castro's rebels took over Cuba's largest radio and television stations today, called for a general strike and fighting broke out in the streets of Havana.

Heavily armed forces of President Fulgencio Batista sped to trouble sections of the city.

Shooting began at 11:30 a.m. in the waterfront district in old Havana and spread rapidly to other sections. Rebel forces seized an arms shop.

The gunfire was clearly heard in the U.S. embassy's chancery building on the Malecon, Havana's seaside boulevard, about two miles from the waterfront district.

Utility Workers Leaving
The rebels in their Havana broadcasts appealed to Cubans to rise up in arms against President Fulgencio Batista's regime. They spoke for Castro and his rebel band in the mountains of Oriente province.

Soon after the rebel broadcast, workers in the telephone company and other utilities began leaving their jobs. Communications were crippled. Most banks in Havana shut down and in others employees quit work.

Most of the heart of the city appeared to be calm and there was no sign of rebel activity around the presidential palace or key government buildings.

In the American-owned First National City bank about half the employees walked out.

Two heavy bomb explosions occurred at noon.

Rebels set fire to the headquarters of Radio Station CMQ, one of the largest in Latin America. The building also houses CMQ's TV station. The building is situated near the Hotel Nacional in the western part of the city.

Heavily armed troops and police were rushed to the areas where fighting was under way.

The rebels had secretly passed the word just before dawn that the push in Havana would start at 9 a.m., but later the time was set for 11:30 a.m., and the shooting started then.

Telephone service within most of Havana was interrupted.

There was no communication with the rest of Cuba. Electric power failed in many sections of the capital.

Appleton May Get New Post Office

Decision Hinges on Congress' Approval of Postal Rate Boost

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield says if congress approves a 5-cent postage rate for non-local letters, the postal department will immediately consider replacing the Appleton post office. Rep. John Byrnes, Eighth district congressman, reported Tuesday.

Postal department plans also call for a new building in Seymour under a commercial leasing program by private investors.

Francis Sumnicht, acting Appleton postmaster, said Byrnes' statement was the first he's heard of plans to replace the present post office building, built in 1932.

Overcrowded
Postal department surveys have proposed extensive remodeling and expansion, Sumnicht stated, but the plans died on the vine for lack of funds.

He described conditions at the post office as "very overcrowded" and said twice the present space is needed for mail operations.

"Appleton's mail volume goes up 8 per cent each year—we'll be bursting at the seams in a year or two," the postmaster declared.

Indonesian Chief Calls U. S. Envoy For Conference

Jakarta, Indonesia — Premier Djuanda tonight summoned U. S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones, apparently for clarification of the state department's statement on Indonesia's arms deal with communist countries.

Jones talked with Foreign Minister Subandrio yesterday and promised he would seek further information on the statement by state department spokesman Lincoln White in Washington Monday.

White said the United States regretted "that Indonesia turns to the communist bloc to buy arms for possible use in killing Indonesians who openly oppose influence of communism in Indonesia."

Indonesians took the statement as an expression of support for the revolutionary government in Central Sumatra.

White's statement came at a time when U. S. relations with Indonesia have been improving. The statement may have led to the gains.

It wasn't the U. S. regret that upset the Indonesians, but rather White's virtual endorsement of the Indonesian government.

Superior Has $130,000 Fire

14 Persons Forced To Move Out of Their Apartments

Superior — Fire roared through a 2-story building in downtown Superior early today, forcing 14 persons to flee from their apartments and causing damage estimated at $130,000. The blaze was discovered at 2:10 a.m. in the Minnehaha building, one block east of Town avenue. Superior's main business street. The cause was undetermined.

Occupants of nine second floor apartments, including a number of children, were evacuated. They lost virtually all of their possessions.

Fire Chief Albert Gee, who estimated the loss, said the flames centered in the apartments and spread to the roof and business establishments on the first floor. Badly damaged by fire was a tavern operated by Louis Stiek and located on the first floor just below one of the apartments in which the fire apparently started.

Adjoining the tavern, the Twin Ports Paper Co., a wholesale house, suffered extensive smoke and water damage to its stock of general merchandise. The roof caved in, as did portions of the second floor. Firemen fought the blaze for three hours.

Dallas — Former Sen. William A. Blakley, a millionaire Democrat who has attacked the supreme court's anti-segregation rulings, announced for the senate yesterday.

The states' rights defender, a Dallas attorney, entered the July Democratic primary.

Blakley also has attacked the Eisenhower administration's money policies and what he called labor political managers.

CBS Strikers Lose Backing of Drivers

Network Promises Normal Program Schedule for Viewers of TV Today

New York —A Union truck drivers in New York City have withdrawn their support of technicians on strike against the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The walkout of television and radio engineers, cameramen, and other technicians went into its third day today.

The technicians got the teamsters' backing long enough yesterday to keep some scenery and props from some television shows.

John J. O'Rourke, president of joint council 16 of the Teamsters union, said during the day that the teamsters would respect picket lines thrown up by striking CBS employees.

Last night, at a meeting of the local unions affiliated with the joint council, a temporary decision was made to drop this support and to take the matter up again if the striking technicians formally request teamster support.

Some programs went on without a full complement of scenery and props, CBS said, however, that its programming improved "vastly" over Monday.

Tax Refund for Teachers Can't Be Estimated

Wisconsin Official Has No Idea What Might Be Collected

Madison —A Wisconsin superintendent of public instruction said Tuesday he had no way of estimating how much Wisconsin teachers could collect in refunds on the basis of a new U. S. income tax ruling.

The treasury department has ruled that teachers may make deductions on income tax returns for expenses incurred in post-graduate education to maintain their proficiency. The effect of the ruling is retroactive through 1954.

The National Education association estimated Monday that teachers throughout the nation may have $100 million or more due them in refunds because of the ruling.

"I don't know how we could estimate what Wisconsin teachers have coming," said Supt. George Watson. "I certainly don't know how the NEA was able to make an estimate."

The deadline for amending returns for the 1954 income year is April 15. Ross B. Rowen, magazine editor of the Wisconsin Education association, said he was informed that teachers seeking refunds should obtain Form 843 and amended tax Form 1040A at local offices of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service.

Actress Changes Story to Police

Hollywood —A Did Shelley Winters sock her husband. Anthony Franciosa, with a perfume bottle?

The actress Tuesday told police she did and then, a few hours later, she said Franciosa backed into the bottle.

Franciosa, nursing a sore ear, agreed with his wife's version: while letting the dog out Sunday evening he backed into a shelf and the perfume bottle toppled and bopped him on the ear.

Miss Winters originally told officers she threw the bottle at Franciosa when he yelled at her daughter, Vittoria, 5.

Vittoria's governess, Mrs. Kathryn McCaskill, said that from another room she heard a violent argument and then the tinkling of glass.

The incident came to the attention of police when Miss Winters called an ambulance to her home.

Stompanato Loved Lana Letters Reveal

Step-Mother Says Stabbing Victim Wanted Marriage

Chicago —A The Tribune today quoted the stepmother of the slain John Stompanato as saying "My son loved Lana Turner. I think he planned to marry her."

The Tribune said Mrs. Verena Stompanato of nearby Woodstock, Ill., in comments and letters written to her by her stepson drew a different picture of him than the one painted by Los Angeles police who called him a gigolo, preying on wealthy women.

The paper quoted Mrs. Stompanato as saying she had no hatred for the film actress or her daughter, Cheryl, 14, who fatally stabbed Stompanato Friday night after a quarrel between him and her mother in her mother's bedroom.

Should Share Guilt
"I only feel they should share the guilt — or whatever it is," Mrs. Stompanato said. "I don't want that little girl (Cheryl) to suffer all her life for what happened."

Earlier Tuesday, John's brother, Carmine, said if he had been able to remain in Los Angeles for the inquest, he would have demanded that both Miss Turner and her daughter be given lie detector tests. He returned to Chicago ahead of the plane bearing his brother's coffin. Funeral services for the 32-year-old Stompanato were to be held in Woodstock this afternoon.

The Tribune said Mrs. Stompanato related her stepson planning to accompany Miss Turner to London last July, asked her to care for Cheryl.

"I declined," she was quoted by the paper. "I thought that raising a 13-year-old girl would be too much responsibility. If I had taken Cheryl as John suggested, he might be alive today."

Student, Flyer Break Ice
Engine Failure Causes Landing On Frozen Lake

Ladysmith —A flyer and a student pilot escaped injury Tuesday when a light plane developed engine trouble, landed on a lake next to the airport and broke through the ice.

Elmer Wishert and William Vikre, both of Ladysmith, jumped from the plane as it sank through a hole in the ice.

The plane was owned by Vikre, who was taking a flying lesson from Wishert, manager of the Rusk County airport north of Ladysmith.

The plane had just left the runway when its engine quit. Wishert glided the craft to a landing on the surface of near-by Lake Flambeau. The momentum was rolling the plane across the surface when its wheels broke through the ice.

Wishert and Vikre jumped to solid ice and joined others in an effort to prevent the plane from sinking.

Game Official Kills Friendly Black Bear
Logan, Ohio —A 250-pound black bear, who no one seemed to want, was killed Tuesday by an official of the Ohio division of wildlife. It was feared the animal might injure someone.

The bear, believed to have been a pet, was discovered last Thursday roaming in wooded hill country near Ash Cave park 15 miles southwest of here.

He ate from people's hands and did tricks for news photographers. But several zoos turned down offers to take the animal, so wildlife officials ordered him destroyed. They said that although he was tame, he could become vicious if teased and they feared the safety of neighboring farm families.

Jim Lee, district game manager supervisor from Athens, killed the bear with a shot from a .30 caliber rifle.

Hollywood Observer Thinks Scandal Will Not Hurt Lana Turner's Career

BY BOB THOMAS
Hollywood —Will the taint of scandal end Lana Turner's movie career?

The answer is probably no, judging from recent history in Hollywood.

No top star in recent times has been involved in a killing. But several have been entangled in scandals and survived—even flourished in their film careers.

This could not have happened in the silent era of films. Then a wild, wild Hollywood was faced by a less sophisticated America.

Scandal piled upon scandal, and Hollywood was denounced in pulpits and editorial columns as a modern Sodom. The film industry was alarmed at the wave of indignation. Fatty Arbuckle, some historians claim, was offered up as a sacrifice.

Though he was acquitted of manslaughter charges in the party death of an actress, the public clamor against Arbuckle's protegee Joan Berry. He was since she was 15, she knows was overwhelming. Paramount freed and seemed to suffer nothing else.

scrapped a half-million dollars' worth of Arbuckle films, and all reputation. He fell into the fat comic retired from the screen. Ten years later, he was because of his pro-red mouth signed for a comeback but he died shortly afterward in 1933.

Robert Mitchum was nabbed on marijuana charges and served some time. But he went right back to acting and is still one of the top male stars. Rita Hayworth's careers to the scandal, worth survived despite her international pursuit of My Khan.

Ingrid Bergman, who mothered a child out of wedlock, returned in a few years later to win Hollywood's highest honor, the Academy award.

One long-time observer of Hollywood declares: "Scandals can often make stars more exciting and appealing. The only kind of scandal that can kill a career is one involving either communism or perversion."

It would appear that Lana Turner can resume her career with no difficulty—if she chooses. Her relations with the public clamor against Arbuckle's protegee Joan Berry. He was since she was 15, she knows was overwhelming. Paramount freed and seemed to suffer nothing else.

City Hall Makes Life Hard for Utica Press

Mayor Refuses to Give News to Writer For Paper Campaigning Against Crime

Utica, N. Y. —City hall is making life hard for the Utica newspapers, which have been campaigning against crime and vice in this upstate city.

Mayor John T. McKennan refused yesterday to give news to William A. Lohden, a reporter for the afternoon Observer-Dispatch and the Morning Press. The papers, members of the Gannett group, backed Lohden up and ordered him to return to his city hall beat today.

The mayor's action followed a request last week by the city's common council for a federal investigation of the papers' advertising policy.

Lohden said McKennan, a Democrat, told him his reporting had been "prejudicial." In a statement later, the mayor asserted that the papers had "distorted, suppressed and misrepresented news of local matters."

Another Reporter
However, McKennan said he would continue to give news to Ray Martin, another reporter who has been covering city hall for several months for the Utica papers. McKennan said Martin was "fair."

Lohden, assigned to join Martin yesterday after covering recent investigations of vice in the city, commented: "If the mayor is going to make such charges, he should substantiate them."

Martin declined comment. Mason C. Taylor, executive editor of the papers, declared: "Mr. Lohden is an able, accurate and fair-minded reporter. He will continue to cover the city hall beat."

The Democratic-controlled common council last Wednesday passed a resolution calling on the U. S. Justice department to investigate the "monopolistic practices of our local newspapers." The resolution said advertisers in one paper were forced to advertise in the other as well.

J. David Hogue, the papers' general manager, said they had been quoting individual rates for more than two months.

Taylor said the action was "obviously . . . intended as retaliation against the strong stand the Utica newspapers have taken against vice and crime."

Editorial Policy
The newspapers describe their editorial political policy as independent Republican. They are traditionally Republican but have supported non-Republican candidates.

Public attention was drawn to crime in Utica as a result of a national gangland meeting at Apalachin, N. Y., about 100 miles southwest of here, last Nov. 14.

Three delegates were from Utica. Two state agencies and a grand jury have been conducting investigations of conditions in the city.

The police department also has undergone a shakeup. The chief and his deputy left the force and several patrolmen were suspended.

Yesterday a grand jury, which has indicted several alleged brothel-keepers, returned its first indictment against a public official. James N. Laino, a one-time deputy police chief was accused of perjury.

Details of the indictment were not available.

Mother's Voting Prevented by Birth of Child

Chicago —Mrs. Geraldine Gilmore, 28, didn't have time to vote in yesterday's Illinois primary, after she arrived at the polling place. Before she could get into a booth to vote, she gave birth to a 6½ pound boy.

Balloting in the south side precinct—a police station—was temporarily disrupted while Policeman Patrick Graham and Elizabeth Cuthbertson, a nurse and election judge, took charge of the delivery. Graham has helped deliver 31 other babies in four years as a patrol wagon driver.

Mrs. Gilmore and the baby were reported in good condition.

Woman Accused of Tax Fraud Needed Money 'to Reduce'

New York —A woman accused of a $2,394 income tax fraud while employed by the internal revenue service is quoted as saying she did it because she weighed 249 pounds and needed the money to reduce by hypnosis.

She lost only 10 pounds. The woman, Miss Edith T. Pikelnny, 35, is accused of submitting the same claim 11 times for a $318 refund on her 1955 taxes and of collecting $2,394 from several of the claims. She was employed as a key punch operator by the internal revenue service in 1956.

The story came out Tuesday in a federal court in Brooklyn where Miss Pikelnny was released pending trial without having to post bail.

Miss Frances T. Wolff, an assistant United States attorney, said Miss Pikelnny told her she made the false claims to get money for medical expenses in a reducing program. She was quoted as saying her physician used hypnosis to control her appetite, but it didn't do much good.

Miss Wolff said the defendant submitted one legitimate claim and 10 false ones in the early part of 1956 and resigned her job shortly thereafter.

If convicted, Miss Pikelnny could be sentenced to up to five years or fined $10,000, or both.

Democrats Continue to Hammer at Recession, Farm Price Problems

Proxmire Sees Dangerous Slump if President's Veto Allowed to Stand

Milwaukee —A Democrats Tuesday continued to hammer away at recession and farm price issues while a GOP congressman said congressional attention has shifted from satellites to business.

Democratic Sen. William Proxmire continued his statewide tour with an appearance at Sparta. He told a rally that the prices of other farm commodities will follow declining dairy prices into a new and dangerous slump unless Congress over-rides President Eisenhower's veto of a bill to freeze support prices at 1957 levels.

Dairy Depression
"Evidence that the dairy farmer's depression is beginning to spread is already cropping up," Proxmire said. "Wisconsin farmers, under pressure of falling milk prices and rising costs are speeding up their hog production one-third faster than farmers in the corn belt states."

"Farm price reductions that are set to take place if the president's veto is allowed to stand, will lessen another avalanche of collapsing prices, including hogs and other important commodities next fall and winter."

Patrick Lucey, state Democratic chairman from Madison, hammered away on a recession theme in a Milwaukee debate straightened out," said Mrs. Edna Smith, who was treated man Philip Kuehn of Milwaukee for burns on her legs, hands and shoulders and cuts and bruises taxes and of collecting $2,394 from several of the claims. She was employed as a key punch operator by the internal revenue service in 1956.

The story came out Tuesday in a federal court in Brooklyn where Miss Pikelnny was released pending trial without having to post bail.

Miss Frances T. Wolff, an assistant United States attorney, said Miss Pikelnny told her she made the false claims to get money for medical expenses in a reducing program. She was quoted as saying her physician used hypnosis to control her appetite, but it didn't do much good.

Miss Wolff said the defendant submitted one legitimate claim and 10 false ones in the early part of 1956 and resigned her job shortly thereafter.

If convicted, Miss Pikelnny could be sentenced to up to five years or fined $10,000, or both.

A Baseball knocked out Jerry Donlender's four front teeth. His mother, of Portland, Ore., picked them out of the grass, took them to a dentist, who popped them back in Jerry's mouth. The dentist said it will take four months to tell if the replanting is successful. (AP Wirephoto)

Anti-Recession Action Not Needed, Ike Thinks

vinced that the scientists had all the information they needed.

Asked for comment on the fact that prices continue to climb despite the recession, Eisenhower said he has been puzzled about that, too, and did some research. He added that he found that price hikes during a business slump are not what he termed an unusual phenomenon. On the other hand, that situation seems to be normal rather than abnormal, Eisenhower said.

Normal Situation

But he added that he still hopes that such price hikes will not be occurring.

At another point Eisenhower was asked what people do to make the "recession recede." His reply was: Buy. Buy—anything.

A newsman reminded Eisenhower that at a March 26 news conference he gave the same advice—buy widely. But yesterday, the reporter said, Secretary of the Treasury Anderson urged people to put their money in savings bonds as an anti-recession move.

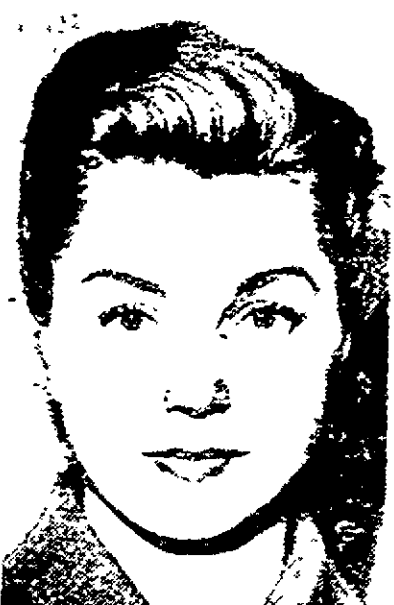

With a smile, the president replied he had not been talking last month about buying carelessly. He meant people should buy selectively, the president added.

Criticism Growing

Eisenhower added that he thinks people are becoming a little disenchanted with some items of merchandise being rammed down their throats. He said manufacturers should give a little thought to what people need and want, rather than to what the manufacturers think they should have.

A reporter told Eisenhower criticism of him and attacks on his programs seem to have increased during recent months. The newsman asked whether Eisenhower ever felt like hitting back—like taking a retaliatory poke.

With a slow grin, the president remarked that he did a

New 3-Minute Test for Cancer Being Tried Out

Discoverer Estimates It Is Wrong In Only 3 to 5 Per Cent of Cases

BY RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Reporter

Los Angeles — A 3-minute test for cancer, which flashes red for danger and green for safety, is being tried out here.

More than 4,000 persons have been tested so far. The test's originator estimates it is wrong in no more than three-to-five per cent of the cases.

Dr. Ludwig Von Bertalanffy, who developed the procedure, told about its early trials in a meeting with science writers touring research projects sponsored by the American Cancer society.

Among 700 women suspected of having cancer of the cervix, or neck, of the womb, the test found 58 cases indicating cancer and 57 of these turned out to have malignancies, Dr. Bertalanffy said.

Among 1,100 other women picked at random, who showed no outward indication of cervix cancer, it identified four as having malignancies and 8 others as being suspected of the disease.

Dr. Bertalanffy, who did the work at Mount Sinai hospital here, said the procedure is inexpensive and can be used in a doctor's office. In expert hands, an examination can be made in three minutes, he said.

The test, however, yields only what physicians call provisional judgments. But it can single out the suspicious cases and leave the final decision for established procedures.

Smear Taken

A smear is taken on a glass slide. This may come from the womb, or from sputum from the lungs, or from materials in other parts of the body. Most of Dr. Bertalanffy's tests were made on cervical smears.

The smear is stained with a dye called acridine orange. This dye fluoresces under ultra violet light.

Two kinds of materials in cells take up this dye. One is called desoxyribonucleic acid, a matter in cell nuclei. The other is ribonucleic acid, which is a component of the part of the cell enveloping the nucleus.

Under ultra violet light, the nuclear type gives off a bright green glow, the other substance glows red.

Rapidly growing cells produce proportionately larger amounts of ribonucleic acids than of the other acid. This rapid growth is characteristic of both cancer and non-malignant tumor.

When smears show an unusual amount of red in the cells, Dr. Bertalanffy said, it indicates presence of either a cancer or a benign tumor. This is the signal for further examination.

great deal of boxing in his youth—and that nowadays it would be only natural for him to want to hit back at critics.

Turning serious then, he went on to say that his main concern in such circumstances is to preserve the dignity of the presidency. He said he always will speak out for things he believes are right. But he added it would not be good business for him to call people some of the names they are calling him.

Asked whether he cared to evaluate the chances of Republican candidates in this year's congressional election campaigns, Eisenhower replied with a crisp no. Then he added that he believes the Republicans will win if they work hard, and intelligently.

Jap Trade With Reds

Asked for comment on Japan's entering into a trade agreement with red China, Eisenhower said he feels that a certain amount of trade by Japan with the continent of Asia is necessary. He said any country such as Japan will be watching to see whether the United States raises a trade wall against it. The Japanese, he said, have to make a living by getting materials from other countries, and by manufacturing and selling products.

The United States has to make an effort to see that Japan is given an opportunity to make a living, Eisenhower said.

Eisenhower said he has heard no mention by anyone that administration efforts to arrange a summit conference with Russia might be helpful in this year's political campaigns in this country.

Polls he has seen, Eisenhower went on, indicate a somewhat negative attitude on the part of the American public with respect to a summit conference. He said one poll showed that 30 per cent of those questioned in two states just did not know where they stood on the summit conference.

As to whether the current business slump in this country might endanger the U. S. political position abroad, Eisenhower said any continuous decline would be harmful. But he added that we don't look for the decline to be continuous.

After all, he said, there are still 62 million Americans working and savings are at an all time high.

It was at that point the president said he thinks there is real ground to believe that one of these days he will be on the upgrade.

And then, Eisenhower said, these apprehensions regarding the recession will be stilled.

'Gates Plan' Calls for New Naval Look

Washington — Thomas S. Gates Jr., who rounded out his first year as secretary of the navy on April 1, pointed today to what he termed the "new Gates plan."

To foreshadow the Gates plan was the name applied to a de-emphasis of the grid-iron game at the University of Pennsylvania in the mid-1930's.

That was when Gates' father, the late Thomas S. Gates Sr., was president of the university.

"Today my colleagues call the reorganization of the navy in my first eight months in office the new Gates plan," Gates said in an interview.

That reorganization has seen substantial changes in America's powerful sea forces. The aircraft carrier has become the capital ship of the navy, the last of the battleships is in mothballs and priority has been given to construction of nuclear-powered submarines and missile experimentation.

Indonesian Ambassador to Italy Quits

Seeks Asylum, Loyalty of Two Corvette Doubtful

Rome — The Indonesian ambassador to Italy quit his post today, apparently in support of the rebellion against the Jakarta government. He asked Italy's visit to Rome of the secretary of the Indonesian foreign office, Suwito Kusumowidagdo, was for a check on the loyalty of embassy personnel.

The Italian foreign ministry said Ambassador Sutan Muhasbi announced his resignation in a telegram from the north Italian port city of Genoa. An official said the ambassador's request probably would be granted.

Rumors have been current for several weeks that Rasjidi would announce his adherence to the rebel cause. The embassy in a statement issued a few hours before his action became known denied that the current general of the Indonesian foreign office, Suwito Kusumowidagdo, was for a check on the loyalty of embassy personnel. The Italian foreign ministry said the Jakarta regime had already applied for permission to name a new ambassador to Rome.

In Singapore, an official of the Jakarta government en route to Europe said it had been rumored that the crew of one to two new Indonesian corvettes which sailed from Leghorn, Italy, Monday planned to head the ship for Menado, the rebel center in the North Celebes. The official said the crew of the other ship was pro-Jakarta, however, and planned to take it to Egypt.

The official reported a large-scale purge was under way to rid the Indonesian navy of elements favorable to the rebels and to the west.

The Indonesian embassy in Rome denied the report.

Kaukauna — Although remodeling work at the Kaukauna Public library was completed about a year ago, the first official open house will be held the afternoon of April 20, according to William Sloggy, librarian.

The library will be open from 1:30 to 5 o'clock that Sunday afternoon in cooperation with the library board, according to the librarians. Members of the board, including Arthur Brill, Wayne Carr, Mrs. John Cleland, Mrs. Bertha Hamilton, Mrs. Anton Bergers and Wilbur Haass will be on hand during the open house.

Members of the library staff besides Sloggy, who will be on hand to conduct visitors through the building and answer questions, will be Miss Mary Toman, assistant librarian; Mrs. Nancy Smith, children's librarian; and Miss Linda Siebers, Miss Carol Jacobson and Miss Karen Grafmeier, employees of the library.

Departments Arranged — "We believe we have one of the finest small libraries in the entire Fox Valley with all departments arranged for the convenience and comfort of our patrons," said the librarian. The remodeling work consisted of a complete change in the basement of the building to provide separate children's section while the main floor was changed to permit more adult space.

Additional exits were added to the building, the check-out desk and interior of the building was modernized and the shelving and counters rearranged to provide patrons with better reading space and an easier time in selecting reading materials.

Changes permit the librarian and his staff to put more books on display and eliminated confusion among children and adults at the check-out counter. Housing of the children's quarters in the basement of the building has also enabled the children's librarian to plan a more expanded program.

Persons will be permitted to wander at will through the library during the open house with board members and personnel on hand to answer questions. No checking out of books will be permitted during the Sunday visiting hours.

Outagamie County Republicans Talked over plans for a membership drive after their annual caucus in the courthouse annex Monday night. Hackbarth, membership committee chairman. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Republicans Set Membership Dues, Plan All-Out Drive for Supporters

BY JACK GLASNER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Outagamie county Republicans Tuesday night adopted a state legislature to re-evaluate membership dues plan, first in recent county GOP history.

Their caucus was in the spirit of the party's new slogan for the primary and fall election campaigns—"United, we win."

Two changes in the county organization's by-laws were adopted unanimously: a $1 minimum membership fee (county Democrats also have membership dues) and establishment of a membership committee.

In addition, party members gave the membership committee $1,000 to budget for a drive which will get underway shortly and last until election this fall.

Exclusive Group?

Urban Van Susteren, county GOP chairman, said the organization often has been accused of being an "exclusive group—one which doesn't welcome new members. We don't want to be that way—we want a broad composition to have an effect on the Republican campaign."

Although the dues will bring revenue to the party, it was not termed a source of party funds, since it will cost about $1 per member for mailings each year, party members said.

The membership drive will be underwritten by a party member by a bank loan. The member said he would make up any deficit, although he was told by Henry Hackbarth, drive chairman, that the drive should be self liquidating.

Hackbarth is a new face in Republican party politics in Outagamie county. He came here from Milwaukee about a year ago and was active in the North Shore GOP organization there.

Hackbarth outlined a mailing program to party members, commenting that it was only the start of a membership program which easily would pay for the costs of recruiting new Republican party members.

Hackbarth said Appleton had been divided into six sectors, and the county into Seymour, Shiocton, Black Creek, Bear Creek, New-London and Hortonville and their surrounding areas, plus the Kaukauna-Little Chute - Kimberly - Combined Locks areas. Each sector will be headed by a member of the membership committee, to be appointed by Hackbarth.

Miss Margaret Walsh, Appleton, is secretary of the membership committee.

Raising Funds

Mark Catlin, Jr., former First district assemblyman, said the county GOP had always raised campaign funds by its traditional subscription method and he did not feel that Hackbarth meant that a change in fund-raising was ahead through paid memberships.

Hackbarth agreed. The GOP also voted for a committee to study ways of streamlining the county organization and increasing its effectiveness in campaigns. No members were named.

The group also decided to meet after the Eighth district GOP caucus April 23 in Green Bay to prepare for the state convention May 23 in Milwaukee. The group also will meet May 15 and set up a monthly series of meetings to last through the fall election.

Resolutions OK'd

Party members unanimously adopted resolutions favoring resumption of congressional authority over tariffs and ending of underpriced foreign competition, opposition to federal aid to education, favoring Hoover commission recommendations for cutting government wastage and asking the state legislature to re-evaluate state services with an eye to ending any overlapping or duplication so tax reductions may be effected.

A letter from Gov. Vernon W. Thomson was read urging unified Republican action. Thomson said Wisconsin had given the U. S. many firsts in the last 100 years, and the present legislature and state administration had contributed four more. They are, Thomson wrote, lobby control legislation, credit life insurance regulation, juvenile delinquency pilot study and supervision of union welfare funds.

In addition, Thomson said, Republicans must in 1958 unite to fight the attempt by out-of-state union leaders to "get out the Democratic vote campaigns."

The county Republican organization also passed a resolution commending Thomson for his stand on the Kohler strike-John Gunaca Michigan Gov. Mennen Williams issue.

Support Plans For Special Health Center

Would Permit State
To Furnish Three Needed Services

Madison — Welfare officials Tuesday supported the proposed construction of a special center for severely emotionally disturbed children, saying it would permit the state to furnish three acutely needed services.

Dr. Harold F. Borenz of the University of Wisconsin medical school said the treatment center would make possible the serving of the children, the training of psychiatrists and development opportunities for research.

Dr. Borenz added that by treating the children early it would be possible, in many cases, to prevent lifelong confinement of adults.

Dean John Z. Bowers of the university medical school said University Hospitals had at present no facilities to treat emotionally disturbed children.

Mental Health

Borenz and Bowers appeared before the legislative council committee on mental health. The board of public welfare recommended construction of such a center to house 50 patients, but it was turned down by the 1957 Legislature. The cost was put at about $875,000 and operational expenses at $350,000 a year.

Also appearing before the committee was Wilbur J. Schmidt, director of the department of public welfare, who said an institution providing care for 30 patients could be built in Madison for about $500,000. He said that by reducing bed capacity, construction costs could be cut, but that operational expenses would be about the same.

Earl Thayer of the state medical society recommended a 25-30 bed institution, saying it might be difficult to staff a larger center.

Cancer Society Plans Viewings Of Several Films

Several showings of films provided by the Outagamie county unit of the American Cancer society have been scheduled for the next few weeks.

Four movies, "From One Cell," "Man Alive," "The Warning Shadow" and "The Other City," will be presented through April 18 at Appleton High school under auspices of the biology department.

At 8:30 tonight, Mrs. Philip Joranson and Dr. Frank Wright will present a program and show a film, "Time and Two Women," at the home of Mrs. L. C. LaSalle, 1522 N. Nicholas street. Mrs. Robert Lieber is program chairman.

The same film will be shown at 8:30 Thursday night during the WSCS meeting at Kaukauna Methodist church. Dr. William Chandler and Mrs. Stanley Hamilton, education chairman, will lead the discussion. The meeting is open to all women.

Poker to Stay Legal In California City

Gardena, Calif. — Legal draw poker drew a winning hand at the polls.

Returns from Tuesday's municipal election showed that a proposal to outlaw the city's poker palaces was overwhelmingly defeated.

The vote in 17 of 23 precincts was 1,554 in favor of the proposal to ban legal poker and 4,496 opposed.

Anti-poker forces had asked that the National Guard be assigned to oversee the election to prevent trouble at the polls. They had charged that ineligible persons were being registered to vote against the ban. The request was denied. Police said there were no incidents.

Rescue Five Men Marooned in Sierras

Fresno, Calif. — Five men marooned in the high Sierra since Saturday were rescued Tuesday by helicopter.

The copter also brought out the body of Peter Gring Santa Barbara helicopter pilot who crashed March 26 while trying to salvage two helicopters which had crashed.

The five rescued men—all in good condition—are James Flynn, 26, pilot of a helicopter that crashed Saturday at the 10,500 foot level, and four hydrographers who were running a snow survey for southern California Edison company. They are William Matthews, Paul Wiley, Howard Spano and Donald Rose.

To Your Good Health

Hydrocele Most Common Among Middle-Aged Men

By Joseph G. Molner, M. D.

Today's remarks concern middle-aged men. We are living longer lives now, and middle-aged is more and more recognized as a period of vigor and activity.

Any way, I'm middle-aged myself, and maybe I'm biased, but I find life absorbing and happy, and think there's a lot to be said for keeping healthy in this age rack.

The feller who wrote about "Life Begins at 40" wasn't kidding. Anyway, here's a letter: "Please discuss hydrocele—its cause, type of treatment or surgery, and completeness or permanence of the latter."

I don't suppose anybody knows what "hydrocele" means unless he has encountered it himself. "Hydro" means water; "cele" means swelling or tumor. It's a swelling occurring in the scrotum.

This is ordinarily an occurrence in middle-aged men. I don't mean that it usually occurs in middle-aged men, but when it does occur, it is most commonly among that group. It can be congenital, and hence found among infant boys, but not often.

Result of Infection. It can be a secondary result of infection (the TB germ, for one) or other disease of the testicle or other structures associated with the scrotum. I do not mean venereal infections, which in any case ought to be discovered and treated as soon as possible.

In other cases, it may be (and often is) difficult to decide what caused hydrocele, and infection of any sort has no visible relationship.

The condition usually develops as a painless swelling of the scrotum, and those who encounter it will be glad to hear that only rarely is malignancy of the testicle involved.

Resembles Two Things. There is one problem that resembles it, or maybe there are two. A hernia, or rupture, protruding an opening down into the scrotum, may offer much the same symptoms. Or it can be a case of varicocele (the "var" indicating varicose veins, meaning that a vein or veins have become varicose, and have swollen down into the area).

Now you might assume that when this sort of swelling occurs, you could make a small puncture and, with a hollow needle, draw off the fluid inside.

You could do it, but the fluid would accumulate again.

So what do you do about hydrocele? First, if the swelling is moderate enough, you needn't do anything. Maybe. Depends on degree. Second, if the swelling is troublesome, then the answer is surgery, which will give permanent relief. Anyway, prolonged pressure from the fluid in the tumor can cause sterility, so I wouldn't advise putting off an operation, once you know it is called for.

Keep this in mind, too: It is possible to have hydrocele, or a fluid-filled tumor or sac, and in addition have a hernia. You may be solving two problems, with one operation.

Hydrocele, for whatever reasons, is more common in warm climates, but I don't want to give the idea that it doesn't occur in medium or cold climates. Anyway, it's a matter to be cared for, but not one to cause any great alarm or fear over the operation.

Common Term. "Dear Dr. Molner: A specialist told me I had 'dandruff of the skin.' Could you explain that?—E.B."

A good enough term I dare say. Certain skin disturbances involve a dryness which causes some dusty shedding, he technical term is seborrheic dermatitis, but "dandruff of the skin" is an easier term for common use. This sort of disturbance usually involves the mid-portion of the body (as over the chest and back) as well as the scalp.

Hard to Diet. "Dear Dr. Molner: After a hysterectomy do women always gain weight? Can you control your weight by dieting and is this difficult?—A.F."

No, women don't always gain weight after a hysterectomy, but they often gain weight when they reach about that age in life. It is a matter of physical activity, and of diet. And the answer is that it's never easy to diet.

Kaukauna Man Wins Jaycee Safety Contest

Karl Minkebigge, Kaukauna, was awarded a $50 merchandise certificate for his creation of "Self, the Safety Elf," at an Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce dinner Tuesday night.

The Jaycees will use the character in their safety promotion campaigns. They hope eventually to get national recognition for the elf.

Self's motto is "Self safety is most important to you—everyone has a self."

Robert Knapp was contest chairman.

In other business Jaycee presidential candidates, John Liehzeit and Ralph Buesing, gave talks. Eighteen nominations were made for other club posts.

Find Bodies of Mother, Daughter

Milwaukee — Relatives delivering gifts to the home of Mrs. Angeline Mulzoff Tuesday found the bodies of the 53-year-old woman and her daughter, Shirley, dead on the chronically ill younger woman's 28th birthday.

The two last had been seen alive Easter Sunday. The bodies were found by a son-in-law, Anthony Frontack, 29, of Waukesha, and his wife, who was Shirley's sister.

Milwaukee county Medical Examiner Dr. L. J. Van Hecke theorized the deaths were "probably murder and suicide." Relatives told police Shirley was an epileptic and unable to work. Her mother, was an assembler in an industrial plant.

Taken to the city chemist for examination were three red capsules found on the bathroom floor and in bottles on shelves in the kitchen and bathroom. Autopsies were ordered to determine the cause of death.

Wisconsin Woman Dies In Gettysburg Crash

Gettysburg, Pa. — An elderly Wisconsin woman was killed Tuesday when her husband's car was involved in a collision with a coal truck and an auto transport truck.

The victim was identified as Mrs. Olga Bammell, 65, West Bend, Wis.

Her husband, Fred C., 65, suffered fractures of both arms and possible fractured ribs. He was reported in fair condition in Gettysburg hospital.

ference in the total number of employe hours worked per week?

Will production (or business) in your plant for March be the same, up or down?

Is your backlog of orders higher, the same or down from a year ago?

The answers came back this way:

Employment in the 112 answering companies was off only 416, from 21,357 to 20,941, a percentage of 1.95.

Of the 112 companies, 88 reported employes worked more hours or the same as a year ago, 78.57 per cent.

Higher production or the same as a year ago was reported by 91 of the 112 companies, 81.25 per cent.

Textile, Metal Plants

Backlogs of orders were the same or higher than a year ago for 51 of the 112 firms, 45.54 per cent. (In companies such as banks or insurance firms where backlog is not strictly applicable and business was the same or better, the backlog was considered to be the same.)

Those are the statistics which rarely, if ever, tell the whole story.

The soft spots generally are in the heavy metals and the textile industries but the metals industry here is not off as much as in the nation. Many of the smaller metal working firms showed increases in employment and higher production.

Automation took its toll. A number of larger companies, for example, reported payrolls down slightly. However, fewer workers are producing more and backlogs are higher than a year ago. In a number of cases it was apparent that married women, whose husbands hold jobs, were among those who were laid off during the year.

Using Inventories

One executive commented it was his experience that customers are using up their own inventories and ordering from the manufacturer on a current need basis, which was the reason he had to report a lower backlog. Another said this demand must break and when it does, backlogs will become normal again.

The questionnaire also showed that in a number of cases where production for March and backlogs, as well, are down, the number of employes and the number of hours worked remained the same as a year ago, indicating management is retaining skilled workers and paying them full wages even though business presently, perhaps, does not warrant it. This supports the view of the employment services that unskilled workers generally are being hired more than skilled persons.

Further analysis of the answers from companies reporting fewer hours worked indicates that many of them previously were working more than the normal 40-hour week.

Some reported working up to 54 hours per week and cutting back to 48 or 44, others cut from 44 hours to the normal 40 hours, some from 48 to 40. These represented only 24 per cent of the reporting companies.

Another statistic: Of the 112 reporting companies, 51 have more employes than a year ago, 38 have the same number and 23 have fewer than in March last year. About 80 per cent, therefore, have the same or more workers. Most companies showed small increases in the number of workers, from 1 to 10. However, several larger companies accounted all alone for the 416 fewer workers.

Over all, the payrolls of reporting companies gained 383 workers and lost 789, making the 416 difference at the end of the reporting year.

Answer Breakdown

A further breakdown of the answers shows:

More hours were worked at 15 companies, the same at 73 companies and fewer hours at 24 companies.

Production was higher for 39 companies, the same for 52 companies and lower for 21 companies.

Backlogs were higher for 24 companies, the same for 57 companies and lower for 31 companies.

One Appleton executive blamed the so-called recession directly on the newspapers.

"Why must you exploit every layoff which, of course, will cause everyone to be somewhat apprehensive? This will retard planned progress and cause a natural chain reaction contrary to good," he asserted.

See Business Upturn

Here's what the Kiplinger magazine, Changing Times, has to say:

"Probe beneath the surface and you can see strengthening influences at work, slowing the slide and laying the groundwork for a business upturn. The fears of the frantic few that a bust impends are not borne out by the facts."

"Production is down but still higher than it was only four years ago. Incomes are off only moderately. . . . The danger is that the worriers will accent the bad, ignore the good, and talk themselves and others into a mood of desperation."

"Note the business stimulants. Money is loosening up, and that means it is becoming easier to buy a house or car, a 3 month illness with a heart ailment."

Lund, long an expert reporter of municipal affairs, joined the old Eau Claire Leader staff in 1903, and remained with the Leader and Telegram after the two papers were consolidated in 1912.

He died Tuesday afternoon and night.

One was to Gordon Schultz, Cabinet and Supply company, 1010 W. Wisconsin, where a fluorescent light's transformer burned out about 7:50.

Another was to the Joseph Herz, home, 914 E. Franklin street, where a chimney fire was reported about 9:10.

A third was to 1710 N. Division street about 4:10 after someone set fire to rubbish at the curb.

Destroys Hay, Barn, Garage

Chief, Inspector Investigate Cause On Vacant Property

Fire caused an estimated $1,000 damage Tuesday night as it destroyed an old barn, a 2-car garage and about three tons of hay at 1735 W. Second street.

Fire Chief Paul Neumann said cause of the blaze is unknown, but he and Fire Inspector Robert Ertl would investigate today.

The property is owned by Mrs. Mabel Spoerl, 117 N. Lawe street.

Two pumpers responded to a call about 6:30 and were on the scene for about five hours trying to douse the burning hay. Neumann said. They were recalled about 5:30 this morning when the hay blazed anew.

Roof Collapses

The roof of the old barn collapsed into the hay. Neumann said, making the firemen's job somewhat tougher. Hay had to be scattered to get at the fire.

The buildings, the chief said, have not been used for some time.

Firemen answered four other calls Tuesday afternoon and night.

One was to Gordon Schultz, Cabinet and Supply company, 1010 W. Wisconsin, where a fluorescent light's transformer burned out about 7:50.

Another was to the Joseph Herz, home, 914 E. Franklin street, where a chimney fire was reported about 9:10.

A third was to 1710 N. Division street about 4:10 after someone set fire to rubbish at the curb.

The last was a false alarm from the box at E. Wisconsin and N. Durkee street about 7:40.

There were two other minor calls this morning.

One was to a Soo Line Railroad boxcar at the end of W. Packard street. Sulphur was burning inside the car. The call came about 9:30.

The other was to the corner of N. Union street and E. Kandall street, where two small boys had set fire to oil from a street maintenance warning lantern after breaking the lantern. The call came about 10:10. Mothers of the boys were informed.

Nathan Died As Catholic

Formerly Called Believers in Hereafter 'Aboriginal'

New York — George Jean Nathan, caustic drama critic who once described those who believed in a hereafter as "aboriginal," died a member of the Roman Catholic faith.

A sharp-tongued iconoclast who prided himself on being a hedonist most of his life, Nathan was baptized a Roman Catholic on Oct. 9, 1937. It was learned shortly after he died Tuesday at 76. He had been ill two years.

Nathan received the last rites of the church on Friday from the Rev. Charles McManus of St. Patrick's Cathedral, the priest who had given him in-sight faith.

Since his conversion he had devoted much of his time to developing arguments to convince those he called "the doubters."

A factor in the conversion was reportedly Nathan's life-long friendship with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles B. McGinley, pastor of the Church of the Holy Child in Philadelphia.

Msgr. McGinley came to New York Monday to be with Nathan and remained when it became apparent that Nathan was sinking.

Msgr. McGinley will celebrate the mass assisted by the partly Jewish but his mother Father McManus. A third priest will be named later.

Burial will be in a Westchester cemetery.

"During the months after his conversion, Nathan had been attracted to the Catholic faith."

He had been ill two years.

Nathan ended a long bachelorhood in 1935 by marrying Miss Haydon. He was then 73.

She was received into the Catholic church a month following her husband's baptism.

Partly Jewish

Nathan's parents were both Jewish but his mother was a practicing Catholic.

PSC Authorizes Low Level Kept At White Lake

Madison — The public service commission Tuesday authorized the White Lake Improvement association in Waupaca county to maintain a low level on White Lake until September.

This will facilitate poisoning the lake's carp this summer by the state conservation department.

Attempts to eradicate the carp through winterkill failed during the last two winters. Winterkill occurs when a lake is at such a low level that the water freezes all the way to the lake bed.

Partly Jewish

Nathan's parents were both Jewish but his mother was a practicing Catholic.

He had been ill two years.

Nathan received the last rites of the church on Friday from the Rev. Charles McManus of St. Patrick's Cathedral, the priest who had given him in-sight faith.

Since his conversion he had devoted much of his time to developing arguments to convince those he called "the doubters."

A factor in the conversion was reportedly Nathan's life-long friendship with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles B. McGinley, pastor of the Church of the Holy Child in Philadelphia.

Msgr. McGinley came to New York Monday to be with Nathan and remained when it became apparent that Nathan was sinking.

Msgr. McGinley will celebrate the mass assisted by the partly Jewish but his mother Father McManus. A third priest will be named later.

Burial will be in a Westchester cemetery.

Santa Fe Police Seek Cause of 2 Boys' Death

Santa Fe, N. M. — Investigation continued today into the deaths of two teenage Santa Fe boys, apparently of the effects of an overdose of some type of drug.

Three other youths found in the abandoned house were hospitalized.

Police said that the district attorney's office had ordered an autopsy to determine if a drug caused their deaths and, if so, what type of drug.

Arturo Lovato, 17, and George Vigil, 16, were dead when police arrived at the old adobe house just a short way from downtown Santa Fe.

Two other boys, Claude Padilla, 18, and Richard Romero, 17, were unconscious on the floor of the house. A fifth youth, Edson Lovato, was stumbling around in a dazed condition. He became unconscious later.

Capsules containing a white powder were found. Edson Lovato, before he became unconscious, told police that all five had been taking the pills.

Frank Lovato, the father of Edson and the owner of the house, discovered the tragedy.

Failure to Yield Charge Dismissed

A charge of failing to yield the right-of-way has been dismissed against William Ohlrogge, 66, Greenville.

Ohlrogge was charged after his car was hit Dec. 22 by one driven by Junior J. Jarek, 25, 2539 Lindale avenue. Ohlrogge stopped for the arterial sign at Highways 45 and 76, then pulled onto Highway 45, testimony indicated.

lighting, more locker space for employes, better washroom facilities, more yard and loading dock space and larger office space for federal agencies occupying the building.

"We've been forced to expand mail sorting operations into the basement because the upstairs is so overcrowded," Sumnicht said.

"Old fashioned posts placed every few feet in the upstairs room prevent proper placing of equipment," he added.

Sumnicht noted that the 1957 Christmas mail rush forced the post office to expand operations to the old Shannon warehouse on N. Morrison street—the first such move in history.

Over 100 trucks per day use the post office dock and yard, but there isn't enough room to accommodate them, Sumnicht claimed.

"The government was ready to establish a vehicle service center in Appleton but it was changed to Green Bay because we didn't have room for it," he declared.

Eight federal offices occupy overcrowded space on the second floor, the postmaster said. They are the Civil Service commission, soil conservation service, internal revenue bureau, postal inspectors, army, navy and FBI office.

Furnace Firm to Settle Complaints

Calumet County Residents Getting Back Money Paid to Inspectors

BY ALICE SEBORA
Chilton—Payment of claims in numerous furnace inspection complaints probably will be completed this week, according to Calumet County Dist. Atty. Franklin J. Schmieder.

Hundreds of dollars in money or services will be paid by the furnace company to about 15 Calumet county householders who complained about three or four fast talking "inspectors" who worked through this area about six weeks ago, Schmieder said.

Representing themselves as heating inspectors, and implying they were employed by the state the men gained easy access to many homes in Chilton and New Holstein and the adjacent rural areas. At least one incident was reported from Brill.

Almost without exception, furnaces inspected were said to be in need of cleaning, sanitizing, minor or costly repair. At least two households were informed that if repair was not begun immediately it was "probable that the furnace would blow up in the night."

Payments Made
The inspectors then became servicemen who could begin work on the heating systems within a few days. A work contract was signed and an advance down-payment sought.

An intense sign-up campaign was worked through the southern section of Calumet county over about a 10-day period. In only two cases that are known did the servicemen return to do any work—one of these was the installation of a completely new heating system.

Many persons reported having difficulty getting the inspectors out of the house when they were refused admittance to the furnace room or did not agree to signing the work contract. Only one woman, however, called the Chilton city police for assistance.

Sheriff C. J. Kosmosky, Chilton Police Chief Norman Pfeiffer, and Schmieder all have stated that while street corner grumbings against the furnace men were plentiful, not a single formal complaint was made to any of the three offices.

No Signed Complaints
Schmieder said earlier that he had urged several persons to come to his office for warrants, but no one followed through on the suggestion.

About three weeks ago when there was a little flare-up about the inspections, Schmieder sent a strongly worded letter to the president of the furnace firm demanding restitution for the persons who had complained.

Within a few days the firm's legal consultant flew into Green Bay to begin work. Developments revealed that the men, while affiliated with the company, were working outside of their assigned territory. Calumet county is included in the Appleton sales district which has a good record of dealings.

Schmieder said Tuesday the district manager of the Appleton office of the firm was "highly reasonable" in helping to straighten out the problem.

"An extremely good adjustment was made on the case of the new furnace installation," he said. In all other known instances work will be completed, or work contracts will be cancelled with a refund of advance money. Adjustments also will be made on overcharges for service work on signed contracts.

Singler Calls Meeting of FPC Unity Committee

Shiocton — A meeting of the unity committee organized at the Fair Price committee rally in Appleton last Wednesday has been called by Mulo Singler, FPC chairman.

Representatives of state farm organizations have been asked to gather at the Whiting hotel in Stevens Point at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

The Wisconsin Council of Agriculture and Rep. Melvin Laird, Marshfield Republican, have called a similar meeting of representatives for 1:30 Friday afternoon to map strategy for hearings on Laird's self-help dairy stabilization board bill before congressional committees later in the month.

Steinle, Seeking GOP Party Endorsement, Visits in County

Former supreme court Justice Roland J. Steinle, candidate for the GOP senatorial race endorsement, visited Appleton Republicans Tuesday.

Members of the county federation of GOP women were hostesses at a coffee hour in the morning at the Appleton Elks club and at a dessert tea in the afternoon at the Conway hotel.

Steinle also was a guest at the county bar association's luncheon meeting at the Elks club.

During the dessert tea, Stein-le told Republican women that if he is not "chosen to spearhead the attack, I will bow to the wisdom of the delegates, and for the campaign I will be in there fighting to help elect the GOP choice."

"If the Republicans are united they will win this fall, but if they are divided again, we can lose," Steinle declared.

Steinle sent the party caucus Monday night his regrets because he couldn't attend, adding a summary of his record and asking support.

Hostesses at the GOP women's morning coffee hour were Mrs. C. C. Schroeder, federation president, Mrs. Harold M. Podzilni, Mrs. Fred McKeon, Mrs. W. G. Bryant and Miss Grace Hannagan.

Beauty Short Curly Cut Fine for Summer

By Marian Matthews
Question.—I have a heart-shaped face. What hair style would be flattering?
Answer.—The short all over curled cut should be a flattering one and excellent for spring through summer. However, if you wish to wear your hair longer you might try a center part with ends curled at the back of the neck. Don't detract from your pretty and unusual shape face with very elaborate or fussy hair styles. Keep coiffures simple.

Whiteheads
Question.—How can I get rid of whiteheads?
Answer.—Try the black lead treatments that are applied in a paste form to the skin and left on to dry. This is a grumpy powder which you mix with water and apply to affected areas such as chin and nose. After the mixture is dried on the skin, rub it off using a dry face cloth or if this is too rough for your skin remove with cloth dampened with warm water. Follow directions on any of the products you use. Continued care should bring results. Remember to keep skin as clean as possible since grime and soil are responsible in part for the whiteheads.

Shampoo Method
Question.—How can I give myself an egg shampoo?
Answer.—After you have carefully washed your hair and removed all soap suds rub on one or two broken eggs. After you have worked egg over the hair, rinse with warm to cool water. You will cook the eggs if you use really hot water!

Base of Tub Can be Made Stationary

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN
Question: How would you repair a stationary laundry tub where the material of the tub is wearing away from the drain fixture, causing a leak?

Answer: Widen the worn portion to make a groove one-half inch or deeper, using a hammer and cold chisel. Brush out all loose particles. Moisten the sides of the groove, and fill with a stiff mixture of one part portland cement and two parts sand, packing it in with a flat-end tool and hammer. Fill the tub with water, and allow it to remain for at least two days, to give time for the patch to cure naturally without shrinkage. Another method is to pack the groove with a soft cotton cord well smeared with white-lead paste.

Mildewed Sofa
Question: We have a grey sofa that has mildew on it from having been stored in a basement. Is there anything we can do to clean it up and get rid of the odor?

Answer: If possible, I suggest thorough airing of sofa in sun. If the fabric covering only is affected, wash fabric with mildew-proofing liquid, available in some well-stocked housewares stores. However, if odor is caused by dampness in stuffing and padding of sofa, it may be necessary to replace this. In the latter case, I recommend consulting professional upholsterer.

Local Artists to Hold May Show

Three picture exhibits — two of them watercolor, and one of them color photo enlargements of wildflowers — will be seen on the walls of the Worcester art center at Lawrence college during the month of April.

The colored photos are the work of Jun Fujita, Chicago photographer, who is a brother-in-law of Wayne M. Carr of Kaukauna.

The watercolors are groups of recent paintings by Tom Dietrich, Lawrence artist in residence, and a selection from the eleventh annual exhibit of the Michigan Water Color society.

Color Experiment
The Fujita photos and the Dietrich paintings are in the Wriston room, while the Michigan pictures hang in the lecture room.

Fujita has experimented with making color prints from the time processes were first developed about 1938. Since 1951 he has been using a process developed by Dr. Thomas Curtis who has a color laboratory in Los Angeles. This method involves the making of digangland Valentine Day masks. Some of his artistic associates and newspaper contemporaries were Carl Sandburg, Ben Hecht, Charles McArthur and others.

Much of the photographer's work is done at a year-round cottage in the Indiana dunes, where he has photographed wild flowers in their natural surroundings.

Local Artists to Show
The Michigan pictures, 26 in number, were chosen from a show presented last summer in Ypsilanti. Judges for the show were Tom Dietrich of Lawrence and C. E. Van Duzer, director of the Flint Institute of Arts.

Dietrich's recent paintings, hung in March, will continue on the walls during April. During May, the Worcester art center will again be host to a no-jury show of painters and craftsmen from Appleton and vicinity. Each year since the art center has been in use, there has been a local show in May. The shows alternate yearly between adult artists, and art of the public schools.

Any artist of voting age, living within a 25-mile radius of Appleton, may exhibit two pictures, or in the case of craftsmen, a small group of craft objects. The entries must be accompanied by an official envelope, which will be available after next week from the photographer ranged from the disaster of the steamer Eastland during which 812 persons drowned in the Chicago river, the race riots of 1918, and the

Man Should Hear Remarks Directed at Childless Wife

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: We've been married 16 years and my husband and I have great love, respect and admiration for one another. The sorrow of our lives is that we have no children. I've made the usual circuit of specialists in this field and have been told it's unlikely I ever will have a family.

straight in such a way that your mother-in-law will think twice before she unsheathes a claw in your direction again.

DEAR ANN: Your column is the first thing I turn to but I sometimes feel that you could show more respect for the beliefs of others—even the atheist.

Recently a woman who wrote to you asked if she should spend $90 on a suit in which to bury her uncle. She explained that money was a problem, and

Pair United In Morning Ceremony

My mother-in-law takes great delight in tormenting me about this "inadequacy." When she comes to our home she looks around carefully and says, "Your place is beautiful, my dear, but a home is just a house without children."

Recently she clipped an article from a cheap magazine and read this stupid sentiment: "A woman can never truly love a man until she bears his child." When one considers that my mother-in-law had 11 children and hasn't said a decent word to her husband in 20 years, it burns me up.

She's very clever about digging at me when her son is out of the room. He never hears any of these things, and I hate to repeat tales. What would you do, Ann? — NO-CLUCK NANN.

Wed at 10 o'clock this morning at St. Mary Catholic church, Kaukauna, were the former Mrs. Elsie Doeing and Herman Klister, 415 W. Ninth street, Kaukauna. The Rev. Earl Broutcheau performed the single ring nuptial ceremony. Mrs. Catherine Weiler served as her sister's attendant. Gus Van Denzen, brother of the bride, was best man.

Following the ceremony, there was a dinner at the Chatter Box in De Pere. A reception from 7 to 9 o'clock and a dance from 9 to 12 o'clock will be held at the Veterans' of Foreign Wars hall, Kaukauna.

When they return from a wedding trip to Philadelphia, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Klister will reside at 401 W. 10th street, Kaukauna, the bride's former residence. The bridegroom is employed by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad.

furthermore, she didn't care for her uncle because he was an atheist. Your reply was "Don't spend $90 on a new suit in which to bury an atheist. He'd be all dressed up with no place to go."

Some of our greatest men were non-believers, including Abraham Lincoln. I wonder if you know what you're talking about, Ann. Would you please, print your definition of an atheist? — TOLERANT

An atheist is a person who has no invisible means of support.

As for Abraham Lincoln—you're wrong. While he was not affiliated with any religious group, Lincoln believed in God and he was a deeply religious man.

DEAR ANN: I was interested in the letter from the high school kids who wanted to know what to do about tipping the waitress at the place where they have lunch every day.

They said they couldn't afford a tip some days, and wondered if it would be O.K. to leave a nice big tip at the end of the school term.

I worked in a snack shop and all my customers were kids. I waited on the same bunch, day in and day out. Once a week they'd each pitch in 10 cents and leave a thank-you note for me with their dime.

Believe me, Ann, I was crazy about every one of those punks. I could have worked places where the tips were bigger, but I'll take a bunch of kids with their dime and thank-you notes any day. — EX-HASIS-SLINGER

CONFIDENTIAL: Thrown out: I don't think it was very gentlemanly of you to ask her what she did with the potatoes when she appeared in her new sack dress. I agree, a dress ought to look as if it has a human body in it, but you pushed the joke too far.

NEW BRIDE: I can understand your eagerness to be "the hostess with the mostess" (and the menus you sent sound fine) BUT, the smart wife who wants her dinner parties to be a howling success learns that it's not what's on the TABLE that counts — it's what's on the CHAIRS.

Designing Woman

BY ELIZABETH HILLYER

There's nothing quite like a shallow, 1-foot-deep cupboard for the kitchen. Everything on its shelves is in plain sight, ready to get hold of instantly. And there's nearly always a place for it—perhaps only a strip of wall, perhaps a whole wall between doorways where no deeper cupboard or furniture could go.

The cupboard must be built to fit the wall space, and it should be plotted just as carefully to fit what's to go in it. Adjustable shelves are best, to change heights when stored items change, but where shelves go must begin with the measurement of everything they will hold. The first step is to see how tall cans, jars, bottles and boxes are. Then the shelves should be located so they allow just enough room above atop a row to make the supplies easy to lift out. Some rows might be double but the depth of the cupboard should be generous enough for the deepest item. And the depth that will never be missed from the wall is enough.

Decision Up To Daughter In This Case

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter has been invited with a young man a number of times to dinner at the beautiful house of his friends. They are very prominent elderly people. The young man has also invited them (and my daughter) to dine in a restaurant several times. I think my daughter should now make some attempt to return their many kindnesses. I have suggested inviting them here. She thinks not, and I believe she is reluctant because our house is not furnished in the latest style. It is however, a perfectly nice house and her father and I should be glad to entertain them. But she insists it is not necessary, nor even suitable, for her to try to make any return. Will you discuss this?

Answer: The fact that you have offered is all that is necessary and I think you would do better to let your daughter use her own judgment as to her obligation. You might remember that very few older people either expect, or actually want, any return from those who are very young.

Refusing a Tip
Dear Mrs. Post: In my job I am often offered tips by people for doing small favors for them. I do not expect payment for them and it embarrasses me when they offer me money. Some of them even insist that I take it. Will you please tell me how I can tactfully refuse without seeming unappreciative of their kind gesture?

Answer: You can say with an appreciative smile, "Oh, no, thank you so much. It has been a pleasure to have been of service to you."

Wedding Cake
Dear Mrs. Post: When wedding cake is served for dessert at a wedding reception, is it proper for a guest to wrap her piece up in a napkin and take it home if she would like to, or must it be eaten at the reception?

Answer: It should be eaten at the reception. At many wedding receptions a small white box tied with a white ribbon and containing a piece of wedding cake is given to each departing guest to take home.

Gov. Meyner Proves Level-Headed Politico

Successful Democrat Is Shrewd,
Hardworking, Prudent Policy-Maker

BY JOSEPH ALSOP

Princeton, N.J. — If you want an example of the Democratic party's irritating capacity to produce has, new types to suit the vol-tunes of the current tastes, all you have to do is drop in at New Jersey's governor's mansion here in Princeton.
The setting is admirable — a big, handsome yet unpretentious 18th century house, fine inside as well as out, yet agreeably livable too. The house's occupants, Gov. and Mrs. Robert Meyner, are everything that a dim, majestically dull Republican publican by the name of Trout liberal Democratic governor, and his newly married wife, ought to be — right out of the book, so to speak.
At 50, Bob Meyner is a fine-looking man with a thick shock of grey hair, a pleasantly easy manner, and the fortunate knack of appearing 10 years younger than his age. You would take him, perhaps, for a youngish professional man with piece. Every time you read it, intellectual proclivities. Mrs. Meyner, by the same token, is a poke at poor Trost.
"And what did you do, hon-

further embellished by the special style of an old-fashioned educated American that her Cousin Adlai Stevenson also has. No couple could seem further from the smoke-filled rooms of professional politics. But if you talk with them for a couple of hours, you discover that no couple could be more sternly professional.

Likes Politics
As for gentle, seeming Mrs. Meyner, she takes a positive delight in the dust and gore of the politics. Consider one change between these two, which occurred during Bob Meyner's relaxed and happy reminiscences of his first gubernatorial campaign against Republican by the name of Trout liberal Democratic governor, and his newly married wife, ought to be — right out of the book, so to speak.

At 50, Bob Meyner is a fine-looking man with a thick shock of grey hair, a pleasantly easy manner, and the fortunate knack of appearing 10 years younger than his age. You would take him, perhaps, for a youngish professional man with piece. Every time you read it, intellectual proclivities. Mrs. Meyner, by the same token, is a poke at poor Trost.
"And what did you do, hon-

cy?" asked Mrs. Meyner, with a pretty enthusiasm. "Just hit, bit, hit?"

"I sure did," said Meyner, "It was a campaign, after all. But Trost is a heck of a nice guy, all the same. He's on my highway authority, and he does a fine job."

Or consider the story of New Jersey's former Republican Gov. Hoffman, who died while under investigation by Meyner, but left a letter confessing embezzlement of $300,000 of state funds. Hoffman had been a likeable fellow, and before the embezzlement was revealed, Meyner was savagely denounced for having all but murdered his predecessor. "Everyone said you were through, didn't they?" said Mrs. Meyner, in a tone suggesting that anyone who said that would always be mistaken.

Hard-Hitting Pro
"Yes," said the Governor, and added regretfully: "If I could only have held the embezzlement story for another 10 days, I'd have had every Republican in the state on record that poor Hoffman was a saint and martyr."

Bob Meyner is a professional, and a hard-hitting professional when campaign time rolls around. He is long-headed, too. As the twice elected governor of Woodrow Wilson's state, his position in relation to 1960

Candy Consumption Increases in 1956

Each man, woman, and child in the United States ate an average of 17.4 pounds of candy during 1956, according to the department of commerce. The previous year, the amount for each was only 16.6 pounds.

Bananas Good For Eating or Decoration

Bananas purchased for practical use can do double duty by using the fruit bowl as a centerpiece for the dinner table.

When there are children in the household, it is the banana that is usually picked out for dessert. As this is one of the few seasonable fruits that has not been in competition with the weather, the price has remained reasonable.

The fruit itself is a product of the semitropical regions and is shipped under conditions that will allow it to ripen a little during shipboard transportation, or delay this process if it seems desirable.

Planned for the Perfect Shower, this lovely buffet table artfully blends imagination and good taste. A cool turquoise-blue cloth with white applique scrolls makes a lovely background for the colorful Wedding Ring Salad—entwined molds, one of meat, the second, crisp raw vegetables. Two types of party punch arranged in twin pitchers for guests' choice and dainty petits fours complete the menu. The make-it-yourself centerpiece is a tree branch tied with lacy yellow parasols.

Creative Cookery

Jellied Salads Fashion Double-Ring Effect for Bridal Shower Setting

What fun to shower the bride-to-be! Use your imagination and really be creative in setting the scene for this happy occasion.

In planning your menu, choose refreshments that are eye-appealing and require little effort to prepare. A double-ring mold of jellied salad—one ring meat, one slaw—looks like a caterer's masterpiece and says, "here comes the bride." Select different flavors and colors of gelatin for your molds—lime for the meat, lemon for the slaw. Cut a pie-shaped section from the slow mold and move the meat mold into place, so the two seem to intertwine. Then, fill each ring with contrasting shades of crisp greenery—pale hearts of lettuce in the green mold, dark green curly chicory in the yellow.

It's always wise to include one hot food in every salad-meal menu. Your favorite chafing dish recipe for a rice combination or scalloped vegetable will make a perfect companion for the Wedding Ring Salad. Light, refreshing punch is an ideal solution to that all-important beverage problem. Try serving two—one tart, one sweet—in twin pitchers for an attractive, new type of punch service.

For dessert, dainty finger foods simplify the necessity of having extra equipment on your table. Bite-size petits fours—in pink, white and yellow, decorated with tiny candy fruits and flowers are lovely to look at, delicious to eat.

Queen Slaw
2 packages lemon-flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
11 cups shredded cabbage
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup finely chopped carrots

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water and seasonings. Cool. When gelatin is about ready to set, blend in vegetables and your mixture into a 9-inch ring mold that has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm.

Royal Ham Aspic
2 packages lime gelatin
2 cups boiling water
2 cups cold water
2 tablespoons dry white wine
1 tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
Dash Worcestershire
1 cup sour-sweet pickles
2 cups diced ham

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water and seasonings. Cool. When aspic is about ready to set, pour one third into 8-inch ring mold that has been rinsed in cold water and arrange ham cubes and pickles decoratively. Chill the layer quickly, then add remaining aspic into which ham and pickle relish have been mixed. Chill until firm.

Place slaw mold on serving platter and cut 4-inch pie-shaped wedge from one side. Unmold meat on same platter and move gently into cut on slaw mold. Trim away small slices of the slaw mold until two molds have a figure-8 look. Be careful not to cut too much. Molds should look approximately same size.

Make a paper pattern of the molds before you start, to get the right effect. Garnish center of the rings with two kinds of lettuce—deep green escarole for the slaw, pale hearts of lettuce for the meat. Add radish roses and celery curls for trimming.

Punch Supreme
1 cup strong tea
Juice of 2 lemons
1 teaspoon sugar
1 can frozen orange concentrate
2 jiggers brandy
1 jigger rum
1 quart white wine
1 quart club soda
Mix first six ingredients. Just Serve Shrimp Cooked Chinese style surrounded by sautéed croutons.

Shrimp Served Chinese Style Exotic Treat

The Chinese have the reputation of being among the world's best cooks. Their methods have developed naturally in relation to the foods available in China, and also to the kitchen equipment.

Some excellent suggestions in regard to the treatment of fish are based on two principles: Remove odor, develop flavor. In the interest of the first, use wine, lemon, garlic and fresh ginger root as a marinade or to be rubbed over the surface of the fish. Flavor developers are listed as salt, sugar, vinegar, soy sauce and mono-sodium glutamate.

Cooking should be done over a high flame in order that the flesh may cook quickly, without breaking down.

For the interesting shrimp recipe prepared by Mrs. Dorothy Lee, home economist of the China Institute, the Chinese products (water chestnuts or bamboo shoots) should be used if available. But instead, the amount of celery may be somewhat increased, or one-half package of frozen peas may be added.

Lawrence Says:
Ike Exposes
Soviet Aim in Test Proposal
President Challenges
Reds to Accept System
Of Inspections

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
 Washington — President Eisenhower has dramatically exposed the Soviet game, which is to seek ostensibly an end to nuclear tests but really to plan to continue testing. The theory that the United States would fall for the bait, and suspend nuclear tests just after the Soviets have finished an important series of tests, has collapsed. Instead, the president calls on the Moscow government to agree now to a cheat-proof inspection system.

"It seems peculiar," writes the president to Khrushchev, "that the Soviet Union, having just concluded a series of tests of unprecedented intensity, should now, in bold headlines, say that it will not test again, but add, in small type, that it may test again if the United States carries out its already long announced and now imminent series of tests."

If the Soviets were sincere, they would announce that they never intended to resume testing. As it is, they are not yet ready for another series and will use the next few months to prepare for a resumption of testing. Meanwhile, they will blame America, and certain groups will keep up a constant propaganda inside the western countries with parades and demonstrations and lawsuits, all designed to frustrate the western governments and, if possible, force them to stop testing.

Clever Apparatus
 The communist apparatus is clever. It works insidiously and without detection. It uses stooges — many of them unwittingly. In England, for example, the London "Times" had an article the other day describing the demonstrators in the protest march there as largely foreigners. Many of them were known communists. "They certainly don't look English," said one bystander.

Little by little Americans, too, will get wise to the Soviet propaganda. Just now efforts are being made to scare the American people by exaggerations about "fall-out." Unquestionably, when there are tests, the amount of radioactivity increases. It may double the previous figure but, even if the tests were continued at their present rate for 20 years, the total amount of radioactivity would still be an infinitesimal fraction of what would be considered dangerous to health. That's the word from the top scientists of our government.

But even such authoritative statements are brushed aside by persistent critics as simply a matter of "degree," which is only another way of alarming people. It is difficult to understand the motive of the dissenters who seem to think they must continue to scare the public about the dangers of "fall-out." If they are loyal Americans, they ought not to be playing the communist game. If they are just humanitarians who honestly believe they are right and that the top scientists of the government are wrong, they should present their evidence to the proper committee in congress—which, incidentally, investigated all the reports recently and also came to the conclusion that the "fall-out" thus far has not endangered the nation's health and is a very small fraction of what would be dangerous.

Subject of Inspection
 Take the subject of cheat-proof inspection. Many exponents of the communist side of the argument are insistent that all explosions can be detected. Strictly speaking, this isn't true. There are underground explosions which the Soviets are planning "ostensibly for civil purposes."

"You cannot tell from a distance of several thousand miles," said Secretary of State Dulles to his news conference Tuesday. "whether an explosion of that character is actually for civil purposes or whether it is for military purposes. So there would have to be, we think, a considerable degree of inspection."

Thus far the Soviets have shied away from inspection. They talk vaguely of "control" of tests, but for several years now the United States

26 Children Schedule First Communion at Sacred Heart Church
 Sherwood — A class of 26 children will receive first communion at the 8 o'clock mass in the Sacred Heart Catholic church. Classes at the Sacred Heart school resumed class today after the Easter holiday. The Sacred Heart Catholic school will meet Thursday night, at the school house.

Balanced Diet Lengthens Life, States Doctor
 "A child born today may look forward to 70-plus years of life. Compare this to 50 years of a little more than a generation ago," states Dr. Fredrick J. Stare of the Harvard School of Public Health. This result has been achieved through the cooperation of agriculture, industry and the medical profession, he states. Children are generally healthy, and the ills that strike those of middle age, especially men, could often have been avoided if they had not allowed themselves to become overweight. The daily use of the bathroom scales is a safeguard against allowing fat to pile up. Twenty-five pounds of extra fat may actually decrease life expectancy by five years, he explains, pointing out that the easiest way to reduce the intake of calories is to eat less fat than usual.

Name Prize Winners At Darboy Card Party
 Darboy — Mrs. Phillip Dietzen was chairman in charge of a public card party sponsored by the St. Ann Altar society Monday evening in the Holy Angels' school hall. Winners were Lester Kemkes, Herman Schreiber, Ed Nabbefeld, Herman Probst, Mary Benotch, Joe Vanevenhoven, Herb Wolff and Frank Goetzman. Winners in the children's division were Gary Emmers, Paul Sprangers, Les Kasten and David Stumpf.

Costly Prank
 Wewoka, Okla. — A prank of stuffing rags and rocks into a fire hydrant caused a house to burn to the ground. Firemen arrived at the fire in time to put it out but when they hooked their equipment to the plug, it got clogged with the rags and rocks.

Centennial Feature

Former Neenah Man at World's Exposition

BY JINGO
Leslie E. Arndt, former Neenah resident and now newspaper staffer for the Bay City Times, Bay City, Mich., will be one of 70 American newsmen in Belgium next week for opening ceremonies of the Brussels World's Exposition.

Jingo
He will have the dual role of covering highlights of the fair as well as entertaining fairgoers daily in the U. S. pavilion as America's "Davy Crockett on Parade" under auspices of the state department.

His parading in frontier buckskin at fairs and festivals throughout the United States and Canada the past three years, including last year's Appleton centennial and the state fair, won him the trip.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Arndt, 317 Klein street, Kaukauna, he attended the University of Wisconsin and started his newspaper career with the Neenah newspaper.

He has been featured at such top festivals as the New Orleans Mardi Gras, Oklahoma Semi-Centennial exposition, Memphis Cotton carnival, and Canada's Niagara International Grape festival.

"The Young Lions," now playing the Viking theater, is an excellent story of men at war.

The film adaptation of Irvin Shaw's novel suffers a little bit in its screen portrayal, but fine acting performances by Marlon Brando, Montgomery Clift and Dean Martin make it good entertainment.

It's the story of three young men — a German and two Americans — caught in the throes of World War II. Events in each man's life are woven skillfully together to a thrilling, though somewhat offbeat, climax.

Brando, hair dyed platinum-blond, turns in a fine performance as the young German officer, Christinn Diestl — a man who believes in Germany, but not necessarily in Adolf Hitler. Brando's German accent is amazingly genuine as he once again proves himself tops at "living the part."

Clift plays Noah Ackerman, an essentially shy soldier, who displays heroic qualities in one of the thousands of isolated humdrum incidents that make a war.

Martin, as an easy come, easy go goldbrick, does a surprisingly good job in his first serious acting effort.

Navy Left With Supply of Plate

Washington — The end of the battleship era found the navy with 45,000 tons of high grade steel armor plate on hand.

Most of this nickel-alloyed steel, carried on the books at $25 million, now will be sold as scrap.

A house appropriations subcommittee heard about the steel during closed sessions last month and made the record public Monday.

The navy decommissioned its last battleship, USS Wisconsin, early this year.

Witnesses for the navy bureau of ordinance, besides telling about the steel, contributed to the requiem for the dreadnoughts.

The navy, rapidly converting to missiles, now buys no ammunition for guns larger than 5-inch caliber.

There was a time when the battleships' 16-inch rifles were the ultimate weapon.

Lillian Gish Will Direct First Play

New York — Veteran star Lillian Gish is trying her hand at directing for the first time.

She has accepted an invitation to supervise the dramatic end of "The Beggar's Opera," that is to be given by the Experimental Opera Theater in New Orleans in May.

Miss Gish said she found the prospect "startling."

Rules Contract Can't Supersede UAW-Constitution

Madison — Collective bargaining contract provisions covering resignation from a labor union can not overrule provisions of a union's constitution, the supreme court held Tuesday.

The high court reversed a decision of Judge Francis X. Swietlik of circuit court for Milwaukee county. He had dismissed a complaint of Local ed. 261, UAW-CIO, against Cecilia Schulze, former Hotpoint Co. and its members, the court employee. The union contended she had resigned improperly and owed it $37.50 in dues.

The court upheld the union's contention that the former employee is liable for dues until she resigns from the local in accordance with provisions of the union's constitution. She resigned under terms of an "escape clause" provision in the contract between the union and Hotpoint.

Miss Schulze, the court held, upon becoming a member of the union became bound by all provisions of its constitution by reason of the membership application blank she had signed.

The constitution is a binding contract between the union and its members, the court employee. The union contend-

Offer Local Plan, Part of Regional Survey, to Neenah

$21,000 Approximate Price for
2 or 3 Year Growth Study Program

Neenah — A proposal for a local plan and a share in a regional plan, with a price tag of about $21,000, was offered to the city Tuesday night.

The city plans commission, which heard representatives of the Fox Valley Regional Planning commission, voted to hold the matter over until its May meeting before making any recommendation to the city council.

The cost to the city of Neenah is only approximate. Final figures will be submitted after a meeting of the executive council and education committee of the regional group Thursday at Kimberly.

The total cost of such a plan should be divided over a two- or three-year period. Under a two year plan Neenah's share would be about $9,271 for the first two years, $3,079 for the third year and $3,809 for each subsequent year to keep the regional plan operating. Under the three year plan Neenah's share would be about $7,207 each year, and $3,809 per year thereafter.

Include 10 Units
This plan would be a share in a $72,000 regional plan for growth to be prepared by a professional organization. It would include the four cities, three villages and three towns represented in the regional commission. Nearly half of the regional plan is expected to be financed by industrial and private donations. The balance is prorated among the member.

Neenah Club Picks Four Directors at Annual Meeting

Neenah — Four new directors of the Neenah club were elected for 1958-59 at the group's forty-ninth annual meeting Tuesday night at the clubrooms.

They are the Rev. Norman Ream, Harvey Leaman and John Westgor, named for three year terms, and Arnold Cane, who will serve for two years. Retiring directors are C. S. Bell, John Catlin and Earl Pantton.

Other directors are Paul Dawson, club president who presided at Tuesday's session; Willard Bellack, Robert DiRenzo, Armin Schroeder and Irwin Pearson. The new president will be selected from the board at a later date. Harry Korotev was reappointed secretary-treasurer.

The Neenah club was organized in 1909 and presently has 178 members.

Paper Company Fetes Employee On Retirement

John Woehler Ends
29 Years Service as Electrical Engineer

Menasha — John Woehler, electrical engineer at John Strange Paper company, was honored at a retirement dinner at the Hotel Menasha Tuesday night. He retired March 31 after 29 years of service with the company.

Woehler joined the employ of the company in January of 1929 as chief electrician. At that time the motive power for the plant was supplied largely through steam engines, aggregating around 1,500 horsepower, plus water power. Generation of electrical energy was limited to 300 kilowatt hours at 480 volts through a small condensing turbine using exhaust steam.

Consumption of electrical energy was limited to 300 kilowatt hours at 480 volts through a small condensing turbine using exhaust steam. Consumption of electrical energy per ton of paper at that time was around 250 kilowatts. Since then, generation of electrical energy was stepped up first to 3,125 KVA at 440 volts and then to 7,500 KVA at 4,150 volts through the installation of steam turbo-generators. Consumption of electrical energy per ton of paper is now at 575 kilowatts.

All steam engines have been replaced with electric motors and the water wheels have been removed. This transition from steam and water power motivation to electric motors was carried out under Woehler's supervision over a period of about 25 years.

Woehler indicated he plans to "take it easy" from now on. Present at the dinner in his honor were J. H. Levandoski, president and general manager; L. A. Blume, treasurer and production manager; D. W. Retarded Children Association Begins Drive for Donations

Ask Community's Support for Special Education, Recreation Plans for 1958

Neenah — A plea for funds to continue its services is being issued by Twin City residents this week by the Neenah-Menasha Association for Retarded Children.

The only organization of its kind in this area, the local group is seeking financial support for its school and special programs which it instituted a year ago, shortly after its foundation. The association also hopes to begin some new projects with the proceeds of its drive.

Nearly 500 letters are going into the mail this week to local residents, but all Twin City people, even those whose contributions are not solicited in (the mail, have been asked to donate to the association's cause.

No goal has been set in the fund drive. Mrs. F. J. Liebl, president of the association, said that the group will plan its activities for the coming year according to the amount received, rather than asking for a certain amount to carry on a preconceived program.

Special School
Most extensive and most expensive of the association's activities in the last year has been the special school for retarded children. A nursery school for youngsters aged 5 to 10

Hundreds of acres were involved in the burn-off. Smaller fires were started east of County Trunk M. The Rat river that meanders through the marshes helped contain the fire. The marsh fire had burned out by this morning.

Harry Johnson and his son, Howard, stood guard during the night over their 108-year-old homestead that stood at the western point of the fire. He said this morning there was no damage done.

Emulating USSR Education Mistake, Provost Warns

Neenah — To emulate the Soviet system of education because of Russia's present achievements in science would be dangerous and tragic for our country, warned Dr. J. Martin Klotsche, provost of the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee, at the Woman's Tuesday club meeting at the Boys Brigade building.

"Freedom is indispensable to good education," he said, pointing out we believe people should have the freedom to criticize, dissent and the right to choose their own vocation.

We should not be too alarmed about the Soviet advance in satellite development; said the speaker, since "no nation can consider itself immune from the competition of another nation." A nation must be selective and thus it is natural that a country should excel in certain fields, he explained.

Dr. Klotsche said among the things our education system has done is to produce the Salk vaccine, the highest standard of living the world has known and on two occasions helped to save the world from tyranny. Nothing in our history justifies the present fears in some quarters, he said.

He expressed the hope that the concern shown some months ago about the Soviet science advances will not take the people of this country down a path of "science showmanship" at the expense of the humanities and other educational fields. It is the responsibility of the American people to support all phases of education, said the provost.

Propaganda War
History has proven over and over again that ideas too can be weapons, said Dr. Klotsche. He called attention to the current propaganda war pointing out we seem to come out second best and "have been at a disadvantage in the field of propaganda." In a free society, we have a press, opposing political parties and public opinion for people's opinions to be manipulated, he said. Another propaganda disadvantage in comparison to the Soviets is we must be more sensitive to our allies than the Russians have to be in regard to the satellite countries.

He illustrated the Russian method of achieving propaganda victories by their stands on a summit conference and nuclear tests. They force us in the position of looking like we don't want such a conference when we insist on advance discussions, which we hope would avoid a repetition of the Geneva conference where we found out the Soviets had no intentions of supporting principles on lower echelons.

On nuclear tests, we say that testing and production of nuclear weapons with adequate inspections should be treated as one package in opposition to the Russians, who only say nuclear tests should be halted, he said.

History Themes
Americans have never fully appreciated the value of ideas in a propaganda war, said Dr. Klotsche. He said we have a set of ideas, themes of American history, that have relevance in terms of world politics and the hopes and aspirations of the peoples of the world.

He listed the themes as the story of American independence, the struggle for larger measures of freedom for the individual and the firm purpose and determination to extend economic and social justice to larger numbers of people.

We are witnessing at this time a mass unrest, said Dr. Klotsche. He said we must demonstrate that the revolution of the twentieth century is not the revolution of Karl Marx, but the revolution of Thomas Jefferson.

The war with the Soviets is not to be won in outer space, but in the hearts and minds of the peoples of the world, said the provost. People are more interested in their misery than in security, he pointed out. He said one of our most important ways to exchange ideas and achieve understanding is to have an exchange program of people on a large and protracted scale.

Local Retarded Children Group Begins Drive

7 is held two mornings a week and a more advanced school for older children on the other three mornings.

The association is aiming for a full-day school program for Twin City retarded children, such as are common in New York, Illinois and certain areas of California.

At the present time the youngsters who go to the private association school at Menasha Congregation church three mornings a week also attend the special education classes at Neenah's Wilson school five afternoons.

The local group is made up of 23 sets of parents of retarded children. Of these 23 families, 15 have 16 children in the association's school. Seven of these are in the nursery division. Six of them also attend the Wilson school classes.

The other eight families either have children in state institutions at Union Grove or Chippewa Falls or else have youngsters too young for school.

Six of the 16 youngsters at the special association school also attend the Wilson school class.

Recreation Program

The proceeds from the fund drive will be combined with donations from local service clubs and the group's members to continue the special school and to begin a summer recreation program for retarded youngsters.

Whatever is left over in the group's treasury after these two projects have been taken care of will be used for a winter recreation program for older retarded persons. This would be an evening social program with games, square dancing and handicraft projects.

The group also hopes to be able to provide for scholarships for special teachers of retarded youngsters. In order to qualify for special education certificates, a graduate teacher must take 12 to 15 semester hours in summer schools at state institutions.

The broad aims of the local association are to educate parents and the community as to the specialized needs of retarded youngsters, to provide school training for children from 7 to 16 and kindergarten training for children from 5 to 7, to provide summer recreation programs for youngsters aged 5 to 18 and Boy and Girl Scout programs for children

Although Baseball Draws Most of the attention at this time of the year, professional football was discussed at Tuesday night's annual meeting of the Neenah club. Discusses Trades

Bays Aren't Building; Want Title or Contender in '58, New Coach Reports

Neenah — The Green Bay Packers aren't building for the future but are looking directly to the upcoming season with the hope of making the team a champion or contender.

So stated new head coach Ray "Scooter" McLean, who spoke at the forty-ninth annual meeting of the Neenah club here Tuesday night.

McLean declared that the Bays will go all out to have a champion or an outstanding contender in 1958 and let 1959 and 1960 take care of themselves.

He stressed his point by discussing the recent trades made by the club. The coach pointed out that in acquiring Ray Krouse, a 265 pound defensive tackle, the club has a fellow who is 30 years old but who should have a year or two of good football left. He told that Krouse is one of the roughest boys in the league in rushing the passer.

Another step in making the 1958 club a top-flight contender was the purchase of J. D. Kimmel and Steve Meilinger from Washington, "Scooter" said.

Slotback Insurance He explained that Meilinger, former Pittsburgh assistant, is 6-2, weighs 230 pounds and is a fine pass receiver. He will provide excellent slot back insurance in the event that Ron Kramer isn't able to operate effectively after last year's injuries.

Kimmel, McLean said, is 6-4 student of the game, telling and weighs 249 pounds and can that he coached Reid in six of his seven seasons with the Pack.

The coach stated that he is very happy that the club will be training in Green Bay. He said the facilities were excellent with three practice fields next to the new stadium and the training room facilities will be available which will be used all year.

Open Practices He thinks it is a good idea to have the club practicing where the boys can see the stadium all the time. That in past years the players didn't see their home field until about a week before the game. The Bays will live in a St. Norbert college dormitory which is only a 10 minute drive from the practice field.

McLean declared that if he had his wish all six games would be played in Green Bay. He said all the practices will be open and invited the fans to come up and watch the team work out. He believes such drills will add to the enthusiasm and morale of the players.

Service Returnees As for service returnees, the new coach told that halfback Vervyl Switzer, guard Hank Bulough and tackle Forrest Gregg would be out in time for the season and Paul Hornung, Don McIlhenny and John Symank are in service now but are in halfback who will work with the offensive backfield, is a keen released in time for practice. Asked about the quarterback and situation, he reported that Bart

Stenson Wins 2 More Games For Miami '9'

Menasha Hurler Now Boasts Five Straight Triumphs

Coral Gables, Fla. — (Special) — Vic Stenson, sophomore hurler from Menasha, picked up two more wins for the University of Miami baseball teams this past week to run his season pitching record to 5-1.

Stenson has accounted for more than half of the Hurricanes' victories. Their season record is 9-4 and four of the other hurlers combined have a 4-3 total record.

Last Tuesday Stenson put down a strong Wesleyan college nine to win his third game in relief. He took over in the third inning after two other hurlers faltered and gave up one run and five hits before Miami finally won in the tenth inning. Stenson retired the last nine men to face him.

On Saturday the Menashan came back to lick Florida Southern 7-2 as he gave up six hits, four of the scratch variety.

The win was especially sweet since it came at the expense of the only club to defeat him. Since his first loss he has won five straight.

This week Miami meets the University of Michigan Friday and Rollins college on Saturday. Both games will be played in Winter park.

units according to their equalized evaluation.

So far the towns of Neenah and Menasha and the village of Kimberly have given the proposal a vote of confidence.

A regional plan for the Fox Cities would be an overall picture of smaller and more detailed local plans for each of the member units, Clarence A. Hammond, regional planning director, said.

If Neenah wants a plan, this would probably be the least expensive way to obtain it, according to Ira Caple, chairman of the Neenah park commission and Neenah representative on the regional planning commission. Economic advantages would be obtained by having a local plan done for all the Fox Cities at the same time, he said.

Benefit From Other Plans
Each member community would also benefit by the other communities' plans, Hammond said. "A Neenah planner wouldn't even consider the Menasha street program," he noted, "but the population with different planning consultation to begin negotiations with different planning consultants. When bids and proposals are obtained, the regional group will return to each local group with a proposal of a plan 'for sale.'"

The advantage of having a single organization do the entire plan was illustrated by Wayne Bryan, Neenah public works director, who noted that the Highway 41 relocation from south of Neenah to north of Kaukauna was engineered by a

Orville Pitts Wins Unanimous Verdict

4,018 Watch Milwaukeean Grab 5th Victory in Six Bouts

Milwaukee — (AP) — A rough-house fistic clown, Art Swiden climbed into the ring here Tuesday night and was defeated in 10 rounds by Milwaukee's Orville Pitts who started fast and finished the same way. Swiden weighed 193, Pitts 179. A native of Pittsburgh, Swiden did his only major fighting in the middle rounds. Otherwise he was content to grin at ring-siders, wink at the referee and cover his ears when the crowd began to boo. He also used his head and elbows in fending off the young Pitts.

Best action came in the second, fourth and tenth rounds. Swiden hangs on.

In the second, Pitts, a student at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, stunned the easterner with a stiff right chop to the head. But Swiden hung on and Pitts missed his chance. In the fourth Pitts was down for no count, but to ringers it looked more like a push than a knockdown.

As the tenth was drawing to a close both fighters flopped out of the ring, but were pulled back in to continue until time ran out.

A crowd of 4,018 paid $7,919 to see the meeting in the Milwaukee auditorium. It was the fifth victory in six starts for the 23-year-old Pitts, and the ninth defeat in 40 appearances for Swiden, who is 27.

Pitts got the unanimous decision on the basis of his peppery left jab and rights slammed to the body and once in a while to the head.

Merlin Fink Wins Swiden began talking to Pitts in the middle round and the Milwaukeean behaved as if he were listening. Swiden dared Pitts to put one on his chin, or try for his mid-section. When Pitts made the effort Swiden would grab his gloves and lace home a resounding blast to the beltline.

About the ninth round Pitts quit listening, backed off and kept his jab and cross working

Holt Paces Badger Nine To 12-2 Win

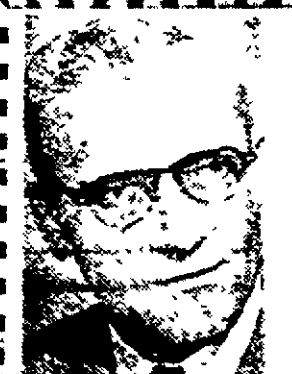

Tallahassee, Fla. — (AP) — The Wisconsin baseball team pushed over three runs in the seventh inning Tuesday to break a tie and march on from there to crush West Virginia, 12-2. Florida State's Invitational baseball tournament.

The victory was the second in four tournament starts for the Badgers. West Virginia has yet to claim a victory.

In a game Tuesday night Florida State scored its fourth victory over the Cincinnati Red-straights triumph by beating legs, and also chipped in with Notre Dame, 3-2. A victory three singles and stole a base over West Virginia tonight Pedro Ramos went six innings would give Florida State the and blanked the Redlegs at title in its own tournament.

After pulling out in front in the seventh the Badgers showed over four more runs in the eighth and added three in the ninth.

The Badgers' 13-hit attack was led by "Bunky" Holt who crashed a 3-run, ninth-inning homer and belted a pair of singles.

Rolls All-Time State Record For Women

Milwaukee's Janie Dobiecki Smashes 750

Milwaukee — (AP) — Janie Dobiecki, Milwaukee, Tuesday night bowled a 750, the highest series ever rolled in Wisconsin by a woman, and the highest in the nation this season.

Bowling in the Women's Classic league at Kuglitsch alleys, Miss Dobiecki fired games of 215, 267 and 268. A week ago she rolled a 716, and shortly before that finished fourteenth in the National All-Star Tournament at Minneapolis.

The previous national high this season was 741 by Charlotte Kardas of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The state record of 742 was held by Gladys Light of Milwaukee and Eunice Kuep of Fond du Lac.

Washington Wins, 10-3

Courtney's 4 Hits Help Senators Rout Redlegs

By The Associated Press

Bespoke Clint Courtney may not haul the Washington Senators out of the American League basement this year, but he certainly appears set to do himself proud.

The Senators have many weaknesses, but catching is not one of them. In fact, Courtney, who hit .300 or better twice since coming to the majors in 1951, had to share the Senator catching duties with Lou Berberet last year.

At the moment, though, Courtney is the No. 1 man. With a .435 batting average, he is Washington's leading spring hitter.

Courtney's big trouble is that he does not hit a long ball. He had half a dozen home runs last year, and that was his fattest in production.

Jolt Home Run He connected for one in yesterday's 10-3 Washington victory over the Cincinnati Red-straights triumph by beating legs, and also chipped in with Notre Dame, 3-2. A victory three singles and stole a base over West Virginia tonight Pedro Ramos went six innings would give Florida State the and blanked the Redlegs at title in its own tournament.

After pulling out in front in the seventh the Badgers showed over four more runs in the eighth and added three in the ninth.

The Badgers' 13-hit attack was led by "Bunky" Holt who crashed a 3-run, ninth-inning homer and belted a pair of singles.

lote, N. C.; the Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4, at Wichita, Kan.; the Chicago Cubs decimated the Baltimore Orioles, 6-5, at Scottsdale, Ariz., and Mexico City of the Mexican league turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-3, in a night game south of the border.

Ford Goes Route "Whitey" Ford became the first New York pitcher to go all the way but it was for a losing cause. Harry Anderson hit a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning, scoring Chico Fernandez, and that was the ball game.

The White Sox loaded the bases in the seventh inning. Card first baseman Irv Noren dropped a double play permitting the tying and winning run to score.

The Cubs scored the winning run in the tenth inning against the Orioles on Bobby Adams' double and Dale Long's single. Pedro Ramirez, a 28-year-old Mexico City pitcher, held the Pirates in check except for a 3-run homer by catcher Danny Kravitz in the ninth.

Expect Machen To Win 25th In Row Tonight

Eddie Rules 2-1 Favorite for Cow Palace Bout

San Francisco — (AP) — Ambitious heavyweights Eddie Machen and Zora Folley, the No. 1 and No. 2 title contenders, battle tonight at the Cow palace with their expected big prize still a phantom in the future.

Both hoped when they signed for the 12-rounder that the winner would get a shot at champion Floyd Patterson.

The National Boxing association says it hopes so too, but the champ's manager Cus D'Amato says the undefeated Machen forfeited his chance to fight for the title by refusing a previous offer and says "no comment" when asked about Folley.

Stops 16 Foes Machen of Redding, Calif., unbeaten in 24 fights, has stopped 16 foes. Folley, from Chandler, Ariz., with a 39-2-1 record, hasn't been defeated in 17 straight fights and lists 25 knockouts. The Californian is the 2-1 wagering favorite.

Both fighters aim for early knockouts.

The two resemble each other in physical characteristics and each expects to enter the ring at about 195 pounds. Machen is 5-11 and Folley an inch taller. The reach of each is 75 inches with a normal chest of 42.

Under California rules the fight will be scored under the 10-point must system with the winner of each round getting the 10 and the loser nine or less depending on his performance.

The bout will be telecast at 9 o'clock, CST.

Chisox' Landis Hasn't Had Hit in Last 11 Trips

Denver, Colo. — (AP) — Outfielder Jim Landis is gradually working his way out of a possible starting job in the Chicago White Sox outfield.

Landis, who has been labelled as one of the players who must provide the Sox with power, went 0-for-4 Tuesday and hasn't had a hit in his last 11 trips to the plate.

His average has dipped to .192, exactly 20 points below his disappointing performance last year.

Howard Assigned To Green Bay

Green Bay — (AP) — Frank Howard, the Los Angeles Dodgers' "can't miss" $50,000 bonus rookie from Ohio State university, has been assigned to the Green Bay Bluejays of the Class B Three-I league.

The promising outfielder, who also starred in basketball at OSU, is 6-6 and weighs 220.

Warren Giles Named Foxes' Baseball Banquet Headliner

Covington Hurts Knee Scoring Deciding Run; 'Red' Has Sore Leg

Austin, Tex. — (AP) — About the only thing that turned out right for Milwaukee Tuesday when the Braves and the Los Angeles Dodgers tangled in a 13-inning marathon exhibition game was the score. The Braves won, 5-4.

But on the deficit side for the world champions were: The loss for at least a week of slugging outfielder Wes Covington who injured his left knee sliding home with the deciding run.

Leaves With Sore Leg The injury of second baseman "Red" Schoendienst who left with a sore leg after smacking a double in the first Milwaukee turn at bat. There was no information on how long he may be lost.

The failure on the mound of Bob Buhl and the assorted troubles of his successors, Gene Conley, Don McMahon, Humberto Robinson and Phil Paine.

And in the way of embarrassment more than damage was the ejection by the umpires in the fourth inning of Manager Fred Haney and Coach Johnny Fitzpatrick. They got the heave-ho for arguing.

The batting stars for the Braves were Hank Aaron, who doubled home the first run and tied the score at 4-4 in the eighth with his seventh homer of the spring, and Paine, who sent Covington home on a perfect bunt.

The defensive standouts were Aaron and Covington.

The Braves looked like world beaters as they grabbed three runs the first time they picked up the bat. After Schoendienst doubled, Ed Mathews walked and then Aaron doubled sending one run home.

Mathews scored on a bad throw to the plate and Aaron went in when Danny McDevitt, the Dodger

Dinner; 300 Reservations Available

Warren Giles, president of the National league, will be the featured speaker for the Fox Cities Baseball club's pre-season banquet April 24 in the Appleton Elks club.

Hal Totten, 3-I league president, is another of the luminaries who'll be present at the dinner that's designed to welcome professional baseball back to the area and to acquaint fans with the first edition of the Foxes.

The Foxes, and their manager, Pete Suder, will all attend the affair. Three days later they open the 3-I league season at Davenport.

Approximately 300 reservations will be available for the banquet, which starts at 6:30 the evening of April 24. Tickets, which sell at $2.50 apiece, will be on sale at a number of outlets in each of the Fox Cities early next week, according to Business Manager Bob Willis.

In his letter of acceptance to Willis, Giles said, in part, "Because of the Fox Cities Baseball club being a new venture, I would like to be of any help that I can."

Giles is scheduled to be in Milwaukee April 26 to present the Braves' Henry Aaron with the 1957 "Most Valuable Player" award—and will come into the state two days early in order to be on hand for the Foxes' banquet.

Elect Canadeo Chairman of Commission

Milwaukee —(P)—Savior Canadeo of Green Bay is the new chairman of the Wisconsin Athletic commission which supervises professional boxing in the state.

Canadeo was elected to the post Tuesday at a commission meeting. He succeeds Billy Goodsitt of Milwaukee who took over the vice chairmanship vacated by Canadeo. Goodsitt had held the post for more than two years.

The commission granted a manager's license to Joe Sellers, 23-year-old son of Mrs. Mildred Sellers who was denied a license last year because of her sex. Mrs. Sellers, a Milwaukeean, wanted to manage middle-weight Howard Thomas who scored a victory Tuesday night in his pro debut at the Milwaukee auditorium. He defeated Bob Townsend of Milwaukee in three rounds of a scheduled four rounder.

The commission also voted to continue the present policy of allowing only the chairman to distribute free tickets to boxing events. If the chairman is not available then the duty shall fall to Secretary Fred Saddy.

Former Boxing Champ Villemain Conscious

Tebbetts Says Covington Was Braves' Key Man Last Year

New York —(P)—The player who topped the scales in Milwaukee's favor last year was a comparative newcomer named Wes Covington, who was injured yesterday. That's the considered opinion of "Birdie" Tebbetts, the Cincinnati Redlegs' shrewd manager.

"The guy who made the Milwaukee club last year was Covington," Tebbetts said. "He gave them that extra big bat they needed."

Covington jammed his knee yesterday in an exhibition against the Dodgers in Austin, Tex. He is expected to be out a week.

Played 96 Games
Covington played in 96 games in 1957, nearly all of them after his recall from Wichita May 15. He cracked 21 home runs and drove in 65 runs on a .284 batting average.

Despite his open admiration, it is Tebbetts' contention the Braves won't have an easy time repeating.

"When I hear somebody say the Braves will win by games," he said, "I'm convinced the guy is clear off his rocker. I predict the Braves are not going to win by five games. And they may not win it at all. Winning the pennant has never been easy in the National League."

Tebbetts conceded, however, it will take a real good team to beat the Braves.

Murphy Pin Team Leads Tournament

Murphy construction leads the team division in the nineteenth annual Appleton Bowling association tournament.

The Builders league team racked up a 2,839 score in the tourney which opened Monday evening at Hahn's. A close second is Kronberg Market team of the Appleton High school league with 2,828.

Rounding out the top 10 are: Reetz brothers of the Tavern league, 2,788; Johnny's restaurant of Kimberly, 2,752; Appleton Neon of the Builders league, 2,730; Subway bar of the Tavern loop, 2,723; the Gay Spot of the Tavern league, 2,707; Appleton Concrete of the Builders wheel, 2,700; August Winter and Sons of the Builders wheel, 2,695; and the Plateau of the Tavern league, 2,685.

Steelers Move Training Base Closer to Home

Pittsburgh —(P)—The Pittsburgh Steelers will train for the 1958 National Football league season at California (Pa.) State Teachers college, abandoning facilities they used for six years at St. Bonaventure university in Olean, N.Y.

The club said Tuesday the change was made to bring the training camp closer to Pittsburgh. California is about 50 miles south of Pittsburgh.

Rookies will report July 27, the veterans Aug. 1. The camp will break up Sept. 1 as the college team begins practice. The Steelers plan additional drills in South Park, near Pittsburgh, prior to the season opener Sept. 28 with the San Francisco 49ers.

Levene Named Knicks' Coach

Predicts Team on Verge of Becoming A Great One

New York —(P)—Andrew Levene, new coach of the New York Knickerbockers—although he does not have a written contract—predicted today his National Basketball association team is "on the verge of becoming a great one."

Levene was named Tuesday to fill the position vacated last Saturday by Vince Boryla, who resigned. The 37-year-old native New Yorker, former coach of the Milwaukee St. Louis Hawks, has been the main Knick scout in a "3-year plan" aimed at building the New York club into a title contender.

Boryla now becomes the scout. After his appointment, Levene said:

"I feel I am taking over a good club that is on the verge of becoming a great one. The groundwork has been laid and the youngsters, who developed fast during this past season, are ready to blossom into stars. I think the club next year will be ready to challenge the leaders for the No. 1 spot in our division."

The Ben Duthler's of Grand Rapids, Mich., still pace the open division with a 2,975 they stuck up April 2.

Earl Corino of Scotia, N. Y., maneuvered into third place in the all-events category early in the day when he accumulated 1,854 for the entire nine-game route. Corino, who tosses a backup ball, shot series of 622, 608 and 624 in assembling his aggregate.

John Germann, Jr., of Albany, N. Y., was only three sticks short of Corino and fell into fourth place with 1,851.

Ted Williams Says He Hopes to be Able To Play in Opener

Memphis, Tenn. —(P)—Ted Williams was available for pinch-hitting duty today as the Boston Red Sox stopped off on their trip north for an exhibition with their Memphis farm in the Southern association.

The 39-year-old slugger, who hit .388 last season hasn't appeared in a spring training game this year because of an ankle injury and a pulled muscle in the side.

"It hurts me to run, but I hope the second shot of cortisone I had the other day will help as much as the first one," Williams said. "My side doesn't bother me a bit. I still hope to be able to open the season."

Montreal Wins Opener of Final Hockey Series

Moore Breaks Tie In Viciously-Fought, 2 to 1 Contest

Montreal — The big first-game getaway in the Stanley cup final went to Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night, a 2-1 win over the Boston Bruins in a rock 'em-sock 'em affair that could well signal one of the most viciously fought post-season hockey classics.

Dickie Moore, his left wrist long in a cast, scored the tie-breaking goal at 13:52 of the second period, a goal that will be talked about for a long time.

The goal was set up by big Jean Beliveau, the villain of the piece for goalie Don Simmons of the Bruins. Simmons was tempted and baited into a gamble. He lost. Moore took Beliveau's pass and lifted the puck into the open side of the net as Simmons tried to scramble back.

Geoffrion Scores
Bernie Geoffrion gave Montreal a lead at 12:24 of the opening period on a screened shot and defenseman Allan Stanley of Boston evened things up on a similar play at 5:45 of the second period.

Before a roaring crowd of 14,316, the teams tore into each other seconds after the initial face-off.

It was apparent the Bruin strategy was to hit 'em hard and often, slow 'em down and grab an early lead. For a while it was a give-and-take affair with nothing barred and a seemingly endless procession to the penalty box.

Coach Milt Schmidt of Boston said he was "proud of the way the Bruins played."

"They showed the same kind of fight they did against New York in the semi-final and they'll be heard from in this series yet."

The second game will be played here Thursday.

Friend Is Likely To Hurl Opener

Mexico City — Manager Danny Murtaugh of the Pittsburgh Pirates says righthander Bob Friend probably will pitch for the Pirates in the National league opener at Milwaukee Tuesday.

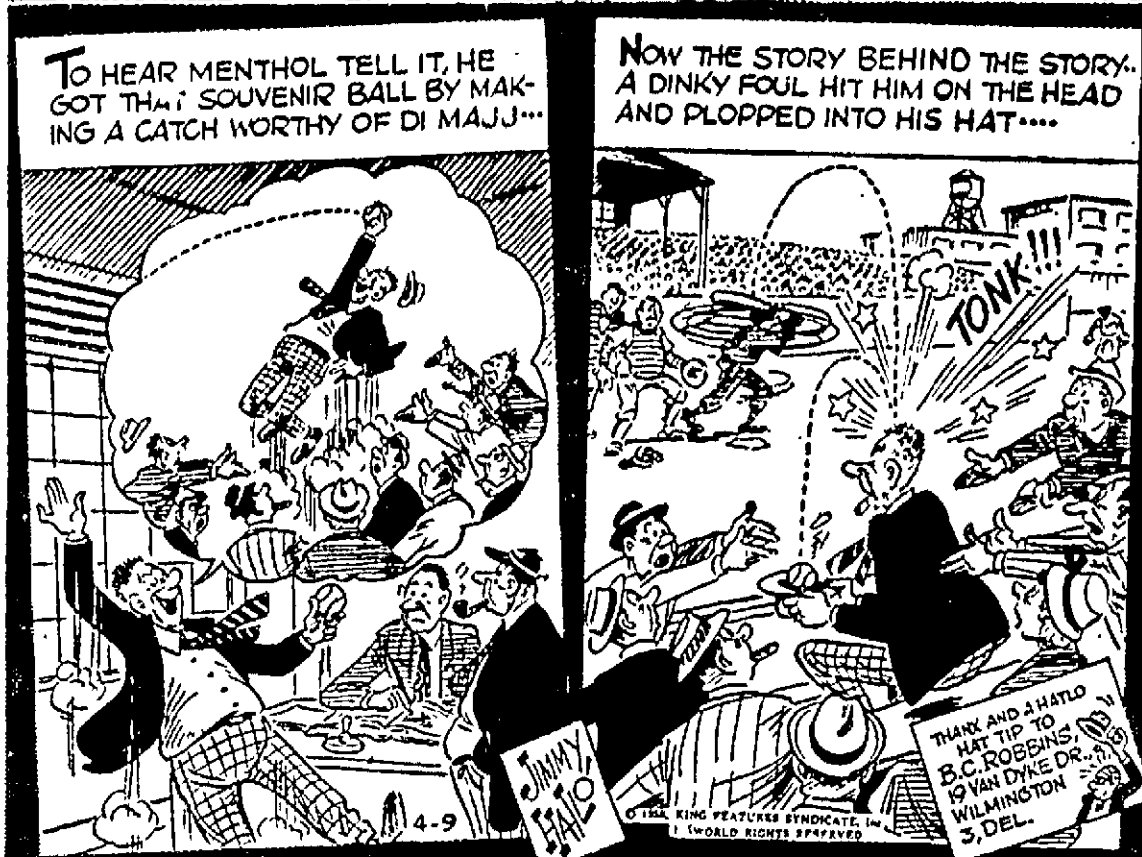

The Pirates lost, 5-3, to their Mexico City club of the Mexican league here Tuesday night.

Mesa, Ariz. — The Chicago Cubs observed their first day off of the current training season today while Manager Bob Scheffing made plans for a 4-game series with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Dodger series will give the Cubs their initial crack at first division opposition this season. The 4-game set also will wind up the Cub exhibition schedule.

Scheffing announced that Glen Hobbie, a $50,000 rookie, will open the Dodger series. The final game of the series will be played in Las Vegas Sunday.

They'll Do It Every Time

Another Wild Scramble

AP's Jack Hand Selects Cardinals To Win Flag, Sees Braves Second

St. Petersburg, Fla. — Although Milwaukee's Braves are favored to repeat as National league champions, it looks like another wild scramble with the St. Louis Cardinals picked here to sneak home first.

The Braves are the odds-makers' choice of their 8-game victory in 1957 and their fine performance in beating the New York Yankees in the World Series. This observer, who picked the Braves a year ago, is not convinced they have the stuff to repeat.

- This is how it looks from here:
1. St. Louis
 2. Milwaukee
 3. Cincinnati
 4. Los Angeles
 5. Philadelphia
 6. San Francisco
 7. Pittsburgh
 8. Chicago

St. Louis must have exceptional years from men like Wally Moon, Ken Boyer, Del Ennis and Stan Musial. It must find a couple of 20-game winners among Sam Jones, "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, Lindy McDaniel and Larry Jackson. Al Dark must learn the tricks of third base play. Most of all, they have to be lucky.

Center Field Problem
On the basis of their spring training performance, Fred Hutchinson's Cards rate a long-shot chance of upsetting the favorites.

Milwaukee has the club, on paper. The pitching is solid with Bob Rush added to Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette and Bob Buhl. Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron give the Braves the big punch.

However, Manager Fred Haney still has a center field problem with Bill Bruton recovering slowly from a knee operation. Aaron probably will have to play center again for the first part of the season. If anything serious should be the matter with Del Crandall's elbow, the catching could be a prime headache.

It remains to be seen whether "Red" Schoendienst again can stand up under everyday play. And who expects Bob Haze to hit .403 again?

Cincinnati sacrificed tremendous power in trading Wally Post and Ted Kluszewski. It is the opinion here that the added pitching of Harvey Haddix and Bob Purkey won't be enough to rescue a staff that was last in the league last year.

The new fans in Los Angeles' vast Coliseum will see a Dodger team based on pitching, rather than home run power. Manager Walter Alston has perhaps the best staff in the league.

Campanella's Loss Hurts
Roy Campanella's loss will weaken the club. The Dodgers do not have an adequate No. 1 replacement. Duke Snider's slow recovery from an off season knee operation, may cut into his value.

Philadelphia has infield trouble. Robin Roberts has been in-and-out. The club still lacks punch despite the addition of Post.

San Francisco must count on new men like Orlando Cepeda, Willie Kirkland and Jim Davenport to give their new Giants enough punch to beat out Pittsburgh and Chicago. Willie Mays, of course, is the man who makes the big difference on this club.

Kluszewski can mean the difference between sixth and eighth with Pittsburgh. The pitching behind Bob Friend, Ronnie Kline and Vern Law remains thin.

When Moe Drabowsky gets back from service soon to team with Dick Drott, the Chicago Cubs will have two top-notch pitchers. Ernie Banks and Dale Long are the home run threats, but the batting order is weak.

Hawks Map More Relaxed Style of Play

Boston — The injury-plagued Boston Celtics and the healthy St. Louis Hawks, all even at two games apiece, meet in the vital fifth contest tonight in their best-of-7 series for the National Basketball association championship.

The Celtics, crippled by the loss of big Bill Russell and minor injuries to other key players, hope determination and hustle will pay off as in the fourth game at St. Louis Saturday.

The Hawks, stung by their home court loss, mapped a more relaxed style of play.

"We were pressing too much so as not to make mistakes and the Celtics couldn't do anything wrong in the last game," St. Louis Coach Alex Hannum said. "We'll be a different team tonight."

Russell, the 6-10 former All America, has been declared because of an ankle injury suffered in the third game at St. Louis.

His top replacement, veteran Arnie Risen, was ailing with a sinus attack. Risen missed a 90-minute practice Tuesday, but is counted upon to carry a heavy load tonight.

Bob Cousy still is shaking off the effects of a collision in Saturday's game, while backcourt mate Bill Sharman was limping from an ankle injury.

Don Newcombe Passes Nerve Test, He's Cool Through Flight Troubles

Dallas, Tex. — Don Newcombe, who had to go to a psychiatrist to alleviate his fear of flying, passed the nerve test Tuesday.

The Los Angeles Dodgers were about 20 minutes away from Austin when the engine of their plane began smoking.

"Once they shut them doors," Newcombe observed philosophically, "there's nothing you can do."

The plane was brought down safely at Austin.

Hortonville, Reedsville Again Have Strong Baseball Entries

Begin Defense of Little Nine Divisional Honors April 22

The Hortonville and Reedsville high school baseball teams, which were division title holders in last season's Little Nine conference baseball race, appear well fortified to go in search of repeat honors this year.

Coach Russ Tiedemann's Polar Bears—who beat Reedsville in a playoff for the circuit title—have six lettermen back from last season's outfit. Hortonville, which finished last season with a 12-2 overall mark, lost to Markesan, 2-1, in a playoff for a state tournament berth.

Largest Contingent
Coach Bob Wilson's Reedsville Panthers have nine 1957 monogram winners on this season's roster, the largest contingent of returning lettermen in the league. Reedsville dropped one of four games on its way to copping the Eastern division title. Reedsville opens non-league play against visiting Mishicot Thursday.

The league season begins Tuesday, April 22, and will continue on the four succeeding Tuesdays. Some of the circuit teams have non-loop contests slated for next week.

The team-by-team rundown:
Hortonville — The Polar Bears lost fine hurler Larry Huebner, but two other Huebners—Ken and Wayne—and a pair of Steffens—Joe and Jim—are back. Ken is a sophomore catcher while Wayne is a senior pitcher. Joe is a junior outfielder, and Jim, a senior outfielder-pitcher.

Other 1957 monogram winners were: senior shortstop Bob Broehm and senior third baseman Dennis Sommers. Hortonville will play non-conference games with Clintonville April 15, at home; at Menasha April 24, and with Menasha St. Mary at home on May 13. Another non-league contest, with Kimberly, may be scheduled.

Reedsville — Wilson, in his second year at the baseball helm, lost just three regulars from last season's club. Veterans returning include: seniors—Wayne Rameker, first baseman; Jack Cummings, second baseman; Larry Kath, third baseman; Warren Piepenburg, left fielder; Gale Mangin, right fielder; Don Dvorachek, catcher; John Dietrich, pitcher and Mel Otto, pitcher, and junior Gene Schultz, shortstop.

Reedsville has non-league home games with Mishicot Thursday, and Brillion May 13. Non-loop road tilts are at Mishicot next Monday and at Brillion May 16.

Shiocton — First-year tutor John Bowers is building around five letter winners. They include: seniors—Dennis Conrad, catcher, and Dennis Diermeier, outfielder; junior—Myron Kruzicki, shortstop; and sophomores—Barry Schwandt and Larry Ritchie, both outfielders.

Shiocton, which was 3-3 overall last season, has no non-league contests slated as yet.

Wrightstown — Second year baseball mentor Pete Tinsley has just four 1957 letterwinners back. They include senior Keith Vanevenhoven, first baseman; juniors Tom Van Zeeland, shortstop, and Curtis Meulemans, second baseman; and sophomore John Seitz, catcher. Senior Joe Bowers wasn't out for the club last season but played the year before. Wrightstown was 2-2 in the loop last season.

Wrightstown will play no non-conference games.

FREEDOM—Bill Van Laanen, in his third year at the helm, is building around seven veterans: seniors—Stan Jens, pitcher, and Vernon Weyers, second baseman; juniors—Ken Schiebe, catcher; Dan Carney, shortstop; John Williamson, third baseman-pitcher; sophomore Vernon Bowers, right fielder-pitcher, and Jim Beyer, outfielder.

Dates for non-conference games with Little Chute S. John, at Freedom, April 23 and at Little Chute, May 15, have been set already. Dates for other non-league affairs, with Seymour, East DePere, Kaukauna and Brillion, haven't been established. The Irish were 6-5 overall last season.

starter, threw wild trying to get the walking Joe Adcock at first.

The Dodgers started catching up in the second when Buhl walked in turn Charlie Neal, Gino Cimoli and Rube Walker to fill the bases. A single by McDevitt sent two runs across. In the third the Dodgers drew into a tie when Norm Larker walked before Dick Gray singled, but Aaron turned the hit into an out when he scooped up the ball and threw to third to catch Larker. But then Elmer Valo singled and Neal's foul fly sent Gray home.

The Dodgers got their last run in the sixth as Neal caught one of Conley's pitches for a homer to give Los Angeles the edge.

Then came Aaron's homer to tie the score again, and finally the thirteenth. Covington opened the inning with a double and took third on Johnny Logan's long fly to right. After Del Crandall was passed Paupé bunted toward first and Covington beat Larker's throw to Walker by a hair.

The Braves and Dodgers were scheduled for their last exhibition meeting today at Dallas with Lew Burdette facing Sandy Koufax.

College 'Stars' Lose, 109-107, In 2 Overtimes

Denver, Colo. — The College All-Stars pressed the Harlem Globetrotters to the limit here Tuesday night before dropping a 109-107 double overtime decision in an exhibition basketball thriller.

There was no clowning by the Trotters who trailed nearly all the way. The two teams resume their 18-game road series in Albuquerque, N.M., Wednesday night.

Paced by Guy Rodgers of Temple university, Vern Hatton of Kentucky and Connie Dierking of Cincinnati, the All-Stars raced to a 48-41 halftime edge.

The older, more experienced Trotters kept nibbling away at the lead in the second half and finally tied the score at 86-83 to put the game into overtime.

The Trotters now have an 8-2 edge in the series.

Cincinnati Farms Rookie Jay Hook

Cincinnati — The Redlegs farmed out on a 24-hour recall basis two rookie pitchers Tuesday. Bonus babe Jay Hook was sent to Nashville (Southern association) and Ted Wicand to Seattle (Pacific Coast league).

The 21-year-old Hook, a right-hander, was signed last year off the Milwaukee sandlots and pitched in three games with the Reds. He had an 0-1 record.

The club is attempting to set up an instalment, payroll-deduction plan for the purchase of tickets through the cooperation of credit unions at some of the area mills, according to Willis.

Willis indicated that the early purchase of season reserved grandstand seats ($55) will help the club determine how many seats to set aside. At present, the club plans to reserve approximately 300 seats in the first six rows of the grandstand. The prices of season tickets other than the reserved grand-

Amateur Federation Won't Set Up Rival to Olympic Games

London — Although there are divergent opinions on whether Olympic games tickets should be taxed to help the International Amateur Athletic federation, relations between that body and the International Olympic committee are apparently peaceful.

What had been reported as an international feud is apparently just a tempest in a teapot. Donald Pain, IAAF secretary, said there had been no suggestion that the financially hard-pressed federation should set up a rival to the Olympic games. He did say, however, that the IAAF had approached the IOC for a small percentage of Olympic games receipts.

His statement came after reports that IAAF had threatened to set up its own track and field championships every two years sandwiched around but in competition with the Olympics.

In Chicago, Avery Brundage, IOC president, said he had not heard of the reported IAAF revolt, but added, "I am unalterably opposed to such a tax, or small surcharge, although I am aware that the IAAF needs some assistance. But such a tax would not be countenanced by the public."

Grand Chute Group Will Meet Tuesday With Town Officials

Appointment of five village study committee members was approved Tuesday night by the Grand Chute town board.

The committee members are John Timmers, John Stevens, Norbert Loecke, Leonard Gerrits and Joseph Griesbach.

Town Chairman Arthur Lecker scheduled a joint meeting of the committee and town board for 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening at the town hall.

Town electors approved formation of the committee at their annual meeting, April 1.

The committee will study feasibility and methods of incorporating the town as a village. Other duties include investigation of ways to consolidate all Grand Chute school districts and formation of a town planning commission.

Committee recommendations will be submitted to a public hearing.

The town board will set a pay scale for the five members.

Five Dairies Acquired Of Milk Price Fixing At Jacksonville, Fla.

Jacksonville, Fla. — A federal district court acquitted five dairies of conspiring to fix milk prices in sales to government installations in the Jacksonville area.

The five companies — Foremost Dairies, Inc., parent organization of Appleton's Western Condensing company, Dinsmore Dairy Co., Velda corporation, Southern Dairies, Inc., and the Borden company — had been accused by the government of conspiring to restrain interstate commerce by fixing prices in sales to naval installations here.

In an order directing a verdict of acquittal, Federal Judge Bryan Simpson said the government had not shown that any of the milk products sold to the navy had been involved in interstate commerce. Judge Simpson added that there was no evidence of a conspiracy to fix prices, even though the dairy concerns had submitted identical bids to supply milk for the navy.

Wellington Paul, vice president in charge of Foremost's southeastern division, said his company plans to move for dismissal of two similar charges still pending against Foremost and the other defendants in the Jacksonville and Tampa areas. A year ago the dairies were acquitted of price-fixing charges in the Miami area.

Agree on Program for Improving Jones Park

Area Will be Cleared of Brush; Money To be Sought for Construction of Steps

The Appleton park board Tuesday night agreed to organize a program for improving Jones park.

Board members voiced their general approval of four major requests submitted on petitions signed by 342 residents. The requests were:

1. That Jones park be cleaned of debris, brush and rubbish immediately and that it be kept in a clean condition the year around.

2. That the park be restored to the same status as other parks of the city.

3. That playground, equipment, play areas, tables, proper shelters, etc., be provided. 4. That supervised play be provided during the summer.

Mrs. Thomas Planner, 317 S. Elm street, filed the petition at city hall March 14.

Cleaning Park
Clearing the park of brush, dead limbs and debris will begin immediately, the board told about 10 representatives of petitioners. Park Board Sec. Arthur Jones said the park has been cleaned weekly, the same schedule maintained for other parks, but he explained that since it is in a deep ravine it is difficult to keep debris from accumulating there.

New Budget
As far as restoring the park to the same status as other city parks is concerned, Jones said he will take up the request with the recreation commission at its next meeting. He will ask, Jones said, that the park be added to the city's supervised play program next year.

The board assured the representatives that funds will be included in the new budget next fall for construction of cement steps on Eighth street, leading to the park and for opening a roadway on Seventh street.

Board Chairman George Johnson explained, however, that the board could only include the request for funds in its budget recommendations. The council will handle the request as it sees fit.

The board also agreed to request funds for additional playground equipment earmarked for Jones park. Johnson said the equipment would be added a little at a time and surveys would be taken to determine the extent of its use. If the equipment received heavy use, he said, additional facilities would be installed.

Attractive Shelter
The board agreed a more attractive shelter might be constructed in the park at some later date. The quonset shelter presently used could then be moved to some other location.

In other action, the board agreed to ask for a joint meeting of representatives of the school board, recreation commission and the recreation committee of the council for 7:30, April 29, at city hall to discuss next winter's ice rink policy.

The board accepted the low bid of Ted Utschig contractor for St. Pius church, for fill dirt for use later at Bellaire park.

County Surveyor F. M. Charlesworth was engaged to fill in the topography map of Bellaire park. He will determine exact land lines and ownership of property abutting the park. Conflicting claims then will be turned over to the city attorney for clarification.

Wells Tested
The board noted that four wells in city parks have been tested and found safe by the Appleton water department working under the direction of Deputy City Health Officer Claude N. Greisch. All usable wells in the parks are in good condition and operating under supervision.

The board received but took no action on a proposal from a landscape architect for planning the Bellaire park project. A. Pepernick, of McKay Nursery, Madison, submitted the plan. He would operate, his letter said, in much the same manner as a building architect.

His letter said he was a graduate of the Landscape Architecture school of Wisconsin and listed work he has done for the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, Wisconsin Rapids, and in Stevens Point and other cities of the state.

Industrial Growth Corporation Formed

Organization to Do All It Can to Stimulate Job-Giving Plant Expansion in Appleton

A corporation pledged to do all it can to stimulate job-giving industrial expansion in Appleton organized formally Tuesday afternoon at the chamber of commerce office.

The corporation is authorized to buy, sell and lease land at cost to interested expanding industries and to promote, through publicity and public relations, Appleton as an attractive industrial community.

Articles of incorporation and the by-laws were reviewed by incorporators Tuesday. They were prepared and presented by a committee whose chairman was Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell. Committee members included Atty. Walter H. Brummund, David Bliss and Franklin Nehls.

To Sell Stock
Money to defray operation costs will come from the sale of two classes of stock. Each class is limited to 5,000 shares of no par value. There is no limit to the number of shares an individual may buy. One of the two classes, Class B, will be redeemed by the corporation for whatever was paid for the shares upon 90 days' written notice.

Rules also state that any excess money available after dissolution of the corporation will go to a charitable organization. The board of directors will set a value for the stocks and determine when and how they will be sold. The board meets for the first time sometime this week to elect a corporation president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.

Provisions adopted Tuesday permit the board to name assistants to the general officers, such as an executive secretary, and any committees, including an executive committee.

Newspaper Ads
The initial office is 527 W. College avenue, the chamber office. The initial registered agent is Kenneth Corbett, chamber secretary. Incorporators include all members of the chamber's industrial development committee.

George Howden, chamber industrial development committee chairman, explained that the state industrial development committee soon will begin a newspaper advertising campaign to convince people there is need for a concerted industrial expansion effort.

After members accepted his plan to carry a companion advertisement by the new corporation, members decided to ask the chamber for an appropriation of $2,000. The committee was given $500 for operation when it was organized last year and has about $250 left, Howden said. This was deemed insufficient to pay for the advertising and billboard advertisement which Howden also suggested.

Fact-Finders
The committee fact-finding subcommittee, Co-chairman John R. Riedl said, has gathered much material and is condensing it for a small brochure. It is hoped, he said, the brochure will entice industrialists to ask for some of the great volume of details the committee has gathered. Riedl was instructed to get a cost estimate of the brochure.

One of the problems his committee has to face, Riedl said, is how and to whom the brochure and other information should be distributed. The committee meets at 7:30 Thursday night, April 17, at the chamber offices.

Howden reported the industrial sites subcommittee has prepared a form which will be kept on file in the chamber offices, the state committee's office and the Chicago and North Western Railway company's office. It lists size, location, access, owner, price and zoning of all available industrial tracts in the city. It also lists the type of utility services available to the sites.

Harwood Orblison, chairman of the industrial division's new program committee, said results of a questionnaire his committee sent about 71 industrialists have not been compiled. He believes that when the results are compiled they will show more study is needed to formulate a program for the division.

Sears, Roebuck Narrowing Its Profit Margin
Chicago — Sears, Roebuck and company is managing to cut prices but much of the reduction is coming out of profits, Theodore V. Houser, chairman, disclosed at a press conference. The company also announced earnings of $2.15 a share in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, down slightly from the $2.20 a share of the preceding year.

In the latest year, Sears' net profit was equal to 4.47 per cent of sales, down from 4.64 per cent the year before. Houser said this "indicates the necessity of absorbing higher costs to maintain our competitive position."

Houser and Fowler B. McConnell, president, said in the annual report that prospects for 1958 are bolstered by indications 1953 capital expenditures will remain high and employment will likely rise from increases in residential building, increased federal expenditures for defense and increased state and local government outlays stemming from population growth.

In pointing out trends of costs and prices, Sears' officials said at the press conference a survey of company figures indicated that costs of non-durable goods, such as clothing, have climbed 22 per cent since 1953. But Sears' selling prices of those items declined 12 per cent in the same period.

Comparing 1953 with 1955 working capital in 1953 was in "different" category as costs of durable goods climbed 10 per cent while prices paid for construction work

Set Boating Dates for Fox, Wolf Rivers

Commercial Season Opens on April 23; Recreational May 15

Dates for opening of navigation of the Fox and Wolf rivers were announced today by the United States army corps of engineers.

The commercial navigation season will begin at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, April 23. The recreational boating season will start at 8 o'clock Thursday morning, May 15.

Pleasure boats, said Norton E. Saxton, acting chief of the corps' operating division, will be provided lockage only from 8 o'clock in the morning through midnight. They will be limited to one lockage each way through the same lock during a 24-hour period.

Reminder
All boats will be given lockage at DePere and Menasha locks from 8 o'clock in the morning through midnight during the recreational season without prior arrangement.

Boats will be given lockage at intermediate locks without prior arrangement only from 8 o'clock in the morning to 4 o'clock in the afternoon Monday through Fridays.

If lockages are sought at any other times, an hour's notice to the dispatcher at Kaukauna's First lock is required. If a lock tender is available, lockage will be given.

Saxton said the locks between Eureka and Portage have been discontinued. "Small craft can navigate all pools as formerly and transfer between pools can be accomplished on haulovers installed at Eureka, Berlin, White River, Princeton, Grand River and Monticello," he says.

Canners See Little Change Ahead in Type of Employees

Local People Don't Want to Pitch Pea Vines, They Say

The consensus among major canning companies in the Fox Cities area is that they will be of little help in lowering unemployment in the harvest season ahead because they feel local people won't pitch pea vines, weed beets or pick cucumbers and corn.

Company spokesmen made the observation in commenting on a statement received today from Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell.

Mitchell's statement, released through the Wisconsin State Employment Service, calls for intensified recruitment and full use of unemployed workers available for agricultural work and a curtailment of use of foreign workers.

Comment of Victor E. Quakenbush, manager of Appleton's Stokely-Van Camp, Inc., plant, typified general reaction of local canners to Mitchell's statement.

Quakenbush said that while the company is not in a position to comment on Mitchell's statement, it is completely cooperative with local workers in the past, has had the same hard time obtaining them as other companies.

Stokely-Van Camp imported about 75 Jamaicans last season, and probably will bring in about 65 this year, Quakenbush said. Some local field hands are always employed, he said, but the largest number on any single day last year was five. Stokely needs workers to harvest peas for about six or seven weeks starting about June 20, for the beet harvest near the end of August and for the combination of peas and carrots toward the end of the pea season.

Set Dates for Fox Cities Chess Tourney

The third annual Fox Cities chess championship tournament sponsored by the Appleton Chess club and the YMCA will be held at the YMCA Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Hans Huse, club secretary, said today.

It will be a 6-round Swiss type tournament, with play beginning at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Rules on speed of play are for 45 moves for the first two hours of play and 25 moves per hour thereafter. The entry fee will be $1 and entries will be taken up to the time of play.

The tournament formerly was for Appleton only, but this year is for the entire Fox Cities. In past years it has been held at city hall.

To Give Prizes

Prizes will be awarded in two divisions. The first two positions in the senior (over 18) division will receive awards, along with the best junior player. Dr. Andrew Berry, of the Lawrence faculty, is defending city champion.

The schedule of play calls for the first round at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, the second at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the third at 7 o'clock Saturday night, the fourth at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, the fifth at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and the sixth and final round at 8:15 Monday evening.

Charge of Failing To Stop for School Bus Is Dismissed

A charge of passing a school bus stopped for children was dismissed Tuesday against John R. Gonnering, route 2, Kaukauna.

After the school bus driver and the arresting officer testified that the bus's flasher lights were on but the bus was not stopped, Dist. Atty. George Greisch asked for dismissal.

State law forbids passing a school bus with its flasher lights on and the bus halted, but not when only the flasher lights are working and the bus, still moving.

Hectic Easter For Former City Priest

It was a hectic Easter morning for parishioners of Sacred Heart Catholic church, Aurora, and their pastor, the Rev. Wilbert Staudenmaier, formerly assistant at Sacred Heart church, Appleton.

Because 10 to 12 inches of wet snow fell during the early morning, many people could not come to church—an occurrence that turned out to be fortunate.

During the 7 o'clock mass electric power service was interrupted several times by the storm and because of power failure the oil burner exploded during the offertory of the mass.

The furnace was destroyed and the church damaged by smoke and soot. The Rev. Mr. Staudenmaier didn't leave the altar and continued with the mass when the danger was over.

14-Year-Old's Eye Injured as Rocket Experiment Explodes

Despite widely publicized warnings by authorities, children continue to experiment with explosive mixtures and build rocket-like contraptions.

Latest victim in this area is Peter Damm, 14, 128 E. Marquette street, who was burned on the fingers and face when a copper tube packed with black powder exploded Sunday near his home.

Peter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray H. Damm, and a friend were setting up their experiment on a curb. Peter later told his parents he had no fuse, so he lit the powder-packed tube itself. Instead of driving the tube, the powder exploded violently, forcing some particles into the boy's eyes. The boy will not lose sight in his eye. He was treated at Appleton Memorial hospital and released. His companion was not hurt.

Damm said his son bought the ingredients for the black powder without trouble. None of the ingredients themselves are dangerous, but the mixture can be.

Black powder is simply gunpowder—a mixture of potassium nitrate (saltpeter), charcoal and sulphur. All of the elements are easily purchased and control of their sale is impossible, authorities say. They say that parents should discourage experiments by children, since the danger of losing limbs or sight is ever-present when explosives are involved.

Industrial Film

Governor in City to Complete Acting Chores in New Movie

Gov. Vernon Thomson paid a brief visit to Appleton Tuesday to complete an even brief appearance — 45 seconds — he'll make in an industrial film being produced here.

The governor will introduce a movie on industrial development completed today at Rudy Swanson Productions, Inc. The movie uses a mythical Wisconsin town to show how a grassroots movement can develop into a successful community-wide project aimed at bringing more industry to the area.

Gov. Thomson's introductory remarks indicate the film was made for the people of the state to aid them in getting more industry. He says the state is interested in development but the greatest success comes at the local level.

The film tentatively is scheduled for a press premiere May 12 in Madison and will make its public debut during a conference at Green Lake May 14.

Purpose of the movie is to create a greater awareness of what can be done and what a town must do to prepare for industrial expansion.

13-Member Board Named By Planners

Four to Serve by Virtue of Offices, Others at Large

Nine at-large members and four ex officio members were elected to the board of directors of the Appleton Industrial Development corporation Tuesday afternoon at the organizational meeting of the corporation.

Four were named to 3-year terms. They are Andrew C. Pertain, Appleton Wire Works Inc., treasurer; Walter H. Brummund, attorney; George A. Howden, Wisconsin Telephone company commercial engineer, and Otto A. Hansen, Outagamie County Bank president.

Howden, chairman of the chamber of commerce's industrial development committee, and Hansen, the banker, are members by virtue of their positions with the chamber committee and banking world, respectively.

Four were named to 2-year terms. They are Victor I. Minahan, Jr., Post-Crescent editor; William H. Pifer, H. C. Prange company store executive vice president; Harold C. Adams, First National Bank president, and Kenneth J. Benson, resident manager of Employers Mutual Insurance companies. All were elected as at-large members.

Meeting Set

Five were picked for 1-year terms. They are Richard Hinz, business representative of General Drivers Local Union 563; Leonard E. Pasek, Kimberly-Clark corporation, the mayor and the president of the chamber.

Both the mayor and the chamber president may serve themselves or name appointees to serve their terms.

The directors were nominated by a committee of three which had been selected beforehand and was ready Tuesday to report. The committee included Minahan, William E. Buchanan, Appleton Wire president, and Richard W. Mahoney, Sr., Appleton Coated Paper company president and general manager.

A unanimous vote for each nominee was ordered when there were no other nominations offered.

Howden and Kenneth H. Corbett, chamber secretary, said a meeting of the board to elect officers will be held sometime this week.

Three Candidates Still Have Not Filed Expense Lists

Three of 11 candidates in the April 1 city election who failed to file campaign expense statements by the Saturday deadline still had not filed the statements through noon today at City Clerk Elden Broehm's office.

They are Victor Sumnicht, re-elected school commissioner, and Albert Gerhardt and John Landusky, unsuccessful candidates for Eleventh ward county board supervisor.

The eight who filed and their expenses include Park Bruyette, $21; Lawrence Burch, $19.60; Don L. Jury, none; Franklin Nehs, none; Charles Hervey, $13; Allan L. Mink, $85.50; Roy Pontier, $12.60, and P. J. Heenan, $18.51.

Car Recovered

A 1954 station wagon stolen from a parking stall at Alexander gymnasium Monday was found by city police in the 700 block of N. Division street Tuesday afternoon. The wagon belonged to Roy Hanson, 411 Walnut street, Menasha.

Wisconsin Indians Hit By Economic Troubles

Reports Indicate 1,800 Tribe Members Are on State General Relief Rolls Now

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — As in other periods of economic dislocation, the Indian population of Wisconsin is the first to be severely distressed.

Reports reaching the capitol tell of heavily increasing public assistance caseloads in those Wisconsin counties which include substantial minorities of Indians in their population and the state has already taken some emergency steps to cushion the effects of such demands upon the treasuries of local governments.

Relief Roles According to the most recent tabulations of the state division of public assistance, there are now about 1,800 Indians on the general relief rolls of the state, or about an eighth of the Wisconsin Indian population. The figures do not include those Indians receiving old age assistance, aid to dependent children or other relief of air's.

Upper Wisconsin local government officials have been sending distress calls to the state capitol. This week Gov. Vernon W. Thomson and other members of the state emergency board responded by approving an additional emergency fund of $50,000 with which such Indian relief payments can be subsidized during the rest of the present fiscal year. The legislature has generally provided about $100,000 a year to aid localities with exceptional Indian relief claims. This year the demands have over-shot that allowance at least 100 per cent.

Part of Population In some of the northern Wisconsin townships the Indian population amounts to a third to a half of the total. Pulpwood cutting has virtually ended in much of the north, the local authorities have reported, as the mills have reduced their buying. Such seasonal work as cranberry harvesting, last fall, was also curtailed because of the introduction of mechanical harvesters. Indians who migrated to city industrial jobs are being affected by factory lay-offs and are returning to their ancestral homes.

The Indian population is centered in half a dozen localities, western Wisconsin, as one example, but there are 17 counties which participate to some degree in the special Indian relief financ-

Varied Volumes Added to Library Children's Room

Indians, cowboys, animals and science fiction characters run rampant through books added this week to the children's room of the Appleton Public Library. Geared to the tastes of elementary school youngsters, the volumes will be released for circulation Saturday.

New books include "Buffalo Boy," "Cowboy Sam and Miss Lily," "Little Wolf and the Thunder Stick" and "Young Hawk," all by Chandler, "Tommy O'Toole and Larry" and "Tommy O'Toole at the Fair," both by Cordis, "Peter and the Moon Trip" by Corson, "What Is a Chicken," "What Is a Cow," "What Is a Frog" and "What Is a Tree," all by Darby.

"Money Island," "Pony Ring," "Pretty Bird" and "Surprise Egg," all by Der-man, and "The Buttons and Mr. Pete," "The Buttons and the Boy Scouts," "The Buttons at the Soap Box Derby," "The Buttons Go Camping" and "The Buttons Take a Boat Ride," all by McCall.

ing program of the state government. Jackson county in western Wisconsin, as one example, is spending at the rate of $25,000 a year for assistance to Indians.

More Juvenile Courts Using Foster Homes

System Replaces Putting Boys in State Institutions

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Some juvenile courts of the state have found a way to remove juvenile delinquents from their home environments without committing them to the state correction institutions.

The story came out here when state welfare department officials scrutinized the request of the state welfare department for emergency funds to finance rising costs of caring for the dependent children in foster homes.

Not only are the costs for payments to those foster parents increasing, department men said, but there are more foster home placements today because of the requests of local magistrates. As a result, the department needs considerably more money than it estimated when it prepared budget requests for the last legislature.

Avoid Commitments Some judges have tried to avoid committing male delinquents to the state school for boys at Waukesha, according to the discussions, while trying at the same time to remove them from the local family and environmental situations that brought them into trouble.

Thus they have got into the habit of committing them to the state department of public

The Law and You

Legal Meaning, Consequences Connected With Domiciles

"Domicile" is more than just a $2 word for the house you live in. It has legal meaning and legal consequences.

You may say "Home is where I hang my hat," but domicile means a great deal more than that. You might say that domicile is where the heart is—it is the place you intend to stay and to return to when you are away from it.

Since your domicile depends upon your intentions, it is a matter that is not always easily proved in court. The fact that you maintain a home in a particular place, live there most of the time or at least with some regularity, vote in that district and participate in local affairs is strong evidence that such place is your domicile.

You may have only one domicile at a time, and when that welfare with a strong request that the youngster be put in a foster home.

Sager B. Powers, head of the division of corrections, explained that the department is not required by law to carry out such court requests, but he said it has generally done so with the result that the number of foster home placements has increased considerably in the last year. The emergency board this week granted $91,000 for additional foster home costs not included in budget estimates.

is established, it remains until you have taken a new one. Ordinarily you do not acquire a new domicile until you actually arrive at the place you are intending to make your new home. A family moving from New York to Wisconsin, for instance, would not change its domicile until it crossed the Wisconsin state line.

Why Important?

Why is domicile important anyway? Many legal rights and duties depend upon your domicile. Statutes using the word residence frequently are interpreted to mean domicile. State veterans benefits usually depend on the domicile of the veteran at the time of his service. State veterans benefits usually depend on the domicile of the veteran at the time of his service. State old age and relief benefits frequently are based on domicile.

Statutes often require domicile for a certain period of time to entitle you to certain state benefits. You cannot vote in Wisconsin until you have been a resident here one year. In order to obtain resident tuition rates at the University of Wisconsin you must be domiciled in the state for at least a year before you first enter the university. Otherwise you do not obtain resident tuition for a period of four years.

Your right to have a lawsuit tried in the federal courts rather than in a state court may very well depend upon your domicile. Location of your domicile may determine where your estate will be probated and which state will collect inheritance taxes.

In a famous case 25 years ago, a wealthy man had died after having maintained homes in each of two states. Each law state decided he was domiciled in their jurisdiction, and each collected $17 million in inheritance taxes.

Planning Street Work

It seems to us the Appleton city council, Ald. Roy Pointer in particular, last week earned plaudits from economy-minded taxpayers by upgrading the official concept of an average residential street.

At Pointer's urging the street committee and then the entire council voted to require — except for extremely good reason — construction of asphalt surfaces on streets for which curb and gutter is scheduled. To their credit, the aldermen apparently didn't need much selling.

Asphalt surfaces, we've been told, have an average life of about 15 years. The so-called turnover and double sealcoat surface — the type favored for most curb and gutter streets in the past — has an average life of about seven years.

It is true that abutting property owners will pay more per front foot for asphalt than for turnover and double sealcoat, but not much more under the council's present attitude toward special assessment. The unofficial ratio is $1 a front foot for asphalt to 64 cents for turnover and double sealcoat. The ratio could be $1.28 to 64 cents and the property owner still would be ahead in the long run.

It may seem like fiddling with figures to prove a point, but consider this: All property owners share in the city's street maintenance charges. If a street has a 7-year life span it probably will require at least twice the repairs of one with a 15-year life span — a series of repairs before it is replaced after seven years, and another series before it is replaced the second time after 14 years. In contrast, the asphalt surface needs relatively little work during its 15-year life.

School All the Year 'Round?

Children have been appalled for some time at the spectre of a year-round school program which would do away with those balmy days with absolutely nothing to do. But the pressure of heavier attendance and ever rising costs to the taxpayer has brought the matter up again. A legislative committee is studying the possible wider use of school buildings, and the suggestion for a 12-month school program was brought up for discussion at a recent Republican platform committee meeting in Green Bay.

Several communities in the nation have, during the last two decades, tried out the 12-month program, usually with the year divided into five sections and youngsters assigned to staggered vacation schedules. The advantages include a more economical use of school facilities, higher pay for teachers and sometimes a slightly wider curriculum.

But the handicaps have been so much greater that such programs have in most cases been abandoned. Families found their youngsters assigned to different vacation schedules, teachers were unable to get the professional training they usually take during the summer months, building repairs had to be sandwiched in during classroom hours, students graduating at other times than the traditional June found colleges closed to them and temporary jobs hard to get.

However, many communities have found practicable a program of voluntary summer school in a limited number of subjects.

Americans Like Milk

There has been such a surfeit of discussion and dispute about the political position and demands of the dairy producers of Wisconsin and the country lately that some of the basically important economic trends involving the industry have been denied the attention they deserve.

Thus the Milk Industry Foundation currently reports that consumption of fluid milk in America continues to increase.

Fluid milk offers the most profitable milk market for the dairyman. When Americans drink more fluid milk and cream, the farmer's prosperity is aided. In 1956, according to the foundation, per capita consumption in the country rose to 355 pounds. Final figures for 1957 are expected to show another gain.

Taking all dairy food consumption into account, American per capita use of milk in 1957 approximated 707 pounds.

That is an encouraging figure, but the comparative data provided by this trade group offers several suggestive reminders. First, American per capita consumption is below that for most of the other advanced countries of the world. Canadians, for example, use the equivalent of 1,027 pounds of milk yearly.

Only two western nations have per capita consumption figures less than that recorded for the United States. They are Italy

Thanks Blood Donors

Editor, Post-Crescent:

It has been most gratifying to the New London chapter of the American Red Cross for the cordial response to our call for blood donors to meet the requirements of our requests for blood. We are grateful to the 158 who volunteered to give the lifesaving fluid that someone might live. Although only 140 were deemed acceptable it means we went over the top by a great percentage and we can now be listed as "The Chapter That Really Did."

Edw. L. Fredrick
Chapter Chairman

Pointer also suggested a move which strangely remains unaccomplished in light of the present day emphasis on planning. He called for establishment of a full season's street construction program before fall budget hearings. Drafting of a program in the fall, he rightly pointed out, would enable the budget committee to pinpoint its tax dollar need for the next year in the street construction field. Such a program simply would mean that individual aldermen or the street committee would turn attention to their street problems six months ahead of their present timetable.

There is an old city hall tradition that aldermen wait until after the spring elections — in which half of them must run for re-election each year — before putting in requests for street work in their wards. The theory, of course, is that some voters might be irritated, and why irritate them before the election? We are glad to report that more and more aldermen in recent years have been ignoring this tradition and have been coming in with their requests during the fall or winter; however, the time has come for putting the whole system on a more businesslike, planned basis.

Pointer made another reasonable point in calling for the year-ahead program. He repeated contentions of contractors that the city would receive better bid prices for street work if the volume of work were known at bid time.

His stand was nothing new. Director of Public Works Edwin J. Duszynski has been reciting the advantages of such a plan for some time. It was good — especially for taxpayers — that Pointer took initiative. We hope the council will follow through and buy the rest of the package.

Schools in Madison, with the fortunate cooperation of the university, have been conducting an extensive program for many years. Appleton's public school system has a 6-week summer school with four subjects offered at present for a semester's credit, and there is some talk of expanding both the time and the number of courses offered.

This type of program has many modern advantages. It permits a student to take a subject such as personal typing, for instance, usually a one semester course, without interfering with his academic program; to take a semester of a course which was particularly difficult for him, or to squeeze in the extra courses desirable which cannot be worked out in the ever increasing pressure of the regular high school year. It also offers something worth while for the younger high school students who are unable to find jobs. Since a full teaching staff is not needed or the entire summer used up, both teachers' professional training and school repairs would not be curtailed. In a community such as this where a large number of youngsters attend parochial schools it offers a further opportunity for such families to have contact with and use of the public schools which they must pay to maintain.

A 12-month school system presents some almost insurmountable problems. But a part-time, voluntary summer course is an extra service to the citizens of a community, and a more economical use of the tax dollar.

and the Netherlands. In both, of course, the per capita consumption of meats is considerably lower than in this meat-loving nation.

Yet these comparisons show that there is a considerable market potential for fluid milk and cream that the U. S. farmer has not yet realized.

For the country as a whole, moreover, nearly half of all milk produced goes into bottles, as milk or cream. In Wisconsin the proportion is much lower. The basic market for the Wisconsin farmer is in manufacturing channels, with correspondingly lower prices.

This may be a confession of regional selfishness, but those politicians who are forever uttering confused proposals about what the government can do for the milk farmer by way of treasury subsidies would make more sense if they would spend their energies opening up further fluid milk markets for the Wisconsin producer. Wisconsin milk is now excluded from many of the major metropolitan markets of the land, arbitrarily and by design, through the device of federal milk marketing orders. Wisconsin could ship milk to those markets, good milk meeting all standards, at lower prices for those consumers and more profitable returns to Wisconsin dairymen, save for those mechanical trade barriers constructed by the national government.

Letting Sleeping Dogs Lie — He Hopes!

These Days

Lotte Lehmann, Now 70, Enjoys Autumn of Life Aiding Others

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY

(Copyright, 1958)

In this complaining world, it is so good to hear something cheerful, something different. So I want to give you the words of Lotte Lehmann, 70, the Metropolitan Opera singer who sings no more. They are rich words and rich thoughts:

"I belong to those very blessed people who are able to live in the evening of their lives exactly as they wish. I live in great beauty of nature; and in inner harmony; and I have found a way to try to give to our young generation of singers what I have learned in a long career as a singer and performer."

"America is overflowing with talented young singers. To live vicariously in them; to sing with their voices... (since my own has completely disappeared); to live with them through their worries, their joys and their triumphs, that is now my life and it makes me very happy."

"Life Is Full!"
"Besides my main work, I have found many ways of expressing myself in new, and for me, exciting creative activities. Life is very full for me; the days have not enough hours. The only thing which is missing is time. Time runs away in a frightening tempo..."

How beautiful to approach autumn in the spirit of spring; to find a renewal of life's activities even in those later years when some only know of aches and complaints and egocentric dissatisfactions.

Our population is growing older because we live longer, but many older people do not know what to do with their last years. They have not filled their lives with activities and ideas and satisfactions which sustain them in the years of lesser physical and mental strength.

The deepest hurt of old age, and the most usual, is disappointment in children. Each parent expects so much of his own; he sees in their faces luminous beauty which no one else sees; he imagines a brilliance which no one else recognizes. He anticipates a love and respect in old age which is too much for anyone to give.

Often oldsters forget that they themselves messed up the lives of their children by interference and annoyance and false doctrines and stupid prejudices. Sometimes the parent is shocked that a particular boy loves a particular girl who is never good enough. And then for these older people there is no satisfaction that kindness was found precisely where it was unexpected.

In our society of multiple marriages, old age can be trying indeed when an older man finds himself surrounded by children of several mothers. This situation is difficult enough in polygamous societies where the various wives play household politics to advance their children.

We do not have harems nor even a substitute for them but we permit lives to be disturbed and distorted by multiple marriages in which the children really become the masters of the parents who often allow themselves to become subject to juvenile blackmail, believing that the love of a child can be bought by things, not recognizing that the child can thus be corrupted by the parent.

Can't Meet Demands
If such a family is poor, life can become very hard on all parties, for the child's demands cannot be met and the child then goes to the gangs because it believes that it is not loved; if the family is rich, the situation can indeed become a horror, for not only the child but mothers and nurses and governesses become involved in family politics and in all the messiness of lies and tricks and betrayals.

Old age should be sublime and for an aged parent there can be no better reward than respect and love and the peace of mind that can only come from the knowledge that one is still wanted. There comes a moment in every person's life when the ambition of youth, the excitement of achievement, the competition for place have run their course. To some, this moment comes early in tragic disappointment; to others it comes in the glory of success.

That man is wisest who counts his blessings, as Lotte Lehmann does here, and who gives way to the facts of life. That man is indeed foolish who never recognizes that for the grey beard it is best to watch the youngsters learn by making their own mistakes in their own way. Some age gracefully; some find their last years a self-designed imprisonment of the spirit.

Looking Backward

Mayor Gives Inaugural Speech

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of April 12, 1879.

On Tuesday evening, the Twenty-Second common council of the City met for the last time.

After finishing the business, retiring Aldermen escorted their successors to the vacated chairs. Ex-Mayor Ryan introduced his successor, Hon. O. W. Clark, the mayor-elect, who at once proceeded to deliver his inaugural address.

It occasioned surprise and remark that Mayor Clark should draw such a gloomy picture of the financial affairs of the municipality because the city clerk, treasurer and finance committee presented them in such flattering condition, the best financial exhibit of any year since the close of the war. It is possible the Mayor intended to refer to the bonded indebtedness of the city—$104,000—a scant three per cent on the real value of all property for which the general public has had full value on all except the "Grand Chute Plank Road Bonds," and even for them had half value.

The Crescent has no apologies to make to capitalists for that indebtedness, nor for the school-houses, engine-houses, bridges, streets and roads which have been built, the water power developed. They cannot find a city in the northwest with so many advantages for the investment of their capital that carries so slight a burden of the debt.

The Crescent joins in the hope that the Mayor will cut loose from old fogysm.

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, April 5, 1933

The rural districts of Outagamie county elected F. P. Young, Appleton, county superintendent of schools for the next four years. Young defeated A. G. Meating, incumbent, who served the county as superintendent for more than a score of years.

Mrs. Earl Mc Court was reelected president of Kappa Delta alumnae association at a meeting at the home of Mrs. A. L. Franzke, Appleton. Mrs. Ross Williams was again named secretary, and Mrs. Russell Flom, Menasha, was reelected treasurer. Mrs. Roy Hauwer was named editor.

Mrs. Judson Rosebush, Mrs. F. C. Hyde, Mrs. Wilmer Sauberlich, and Mrs. R. N. Clapp and their crews were to have charge of the annual spring luncheon of the Social Union of the Methodist church.

Edward Gerlach was elected president of the village of Weyauwega.

Walter M. Singler, state president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk pool, left that morning for Washington, D. C. Singler said he received a telegram calling him to Washington to confer on the milk problem. Gov. A. G. Schmiedeman was in Washington to confer with President Roosevelt on the problem.

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, April 7, 1948

Richard J. Mullen, Appleton, was elected to the board of education replacing A. D. Wilkinson, who was on the board for two terms. Mullen, an electrical contractor, won by 128 votes.

Hint Closer Adherence To Retirement Policy

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — In every corner of the Wisconsin state government today veteran civil servants are wearing apprehensive looks as the word is getting around that the state's retirement policy is about to be more literally applied.

For more than a decade the state has nominally retired its employees at the age of 65, under the terms of the state pension act. Actually, however, the requirement was a lenient one. Anybody who had a reasonable claim and a desire to remain in harness could ask for and get an extension of employment from the department head. Thus relatively few of the key officials and technicians were retired at 65, unless they chose to get out.

But the situation is changing. Department heads, with the evident prodding of the executive office, are quietly passing the word that 65 years is going to be the limit in most cases in the future. No general public announcements have been made, but employing officers are advising their aging subordinates to make their retirement plans on the assumption that there will be very few extensions in the future.

THE BACKING

They have respectable backing in the more strict application of the law.

Gov. Thomson recently told a convocation of principal administrative officials that the state should strive for a uniform rule on retirement. It is obviously bad for morale, he explained, to have a strict 65 year rule in one department, while favored employees of another agency across the hall are able to get extensions. There can be little quarrel with the governor's reasoning. But the employing officers also got the impression from the governor's remarks that he favored a 65 year old retirement rule on its merits, for the encouragement it offers to younger civil servants in the way of promotion opportunities, among others.

What is a proper retirement policy is one of the most difficult decisions to be made by management, in public or private enterprises.

There are men who are old and tired at 50. There are men who are vigorous and alive at 75, and who may be worth more to their employers at that age than when they were 20 years younger, and especially when brain and spirit are involved, rather than physical dexterity or strength.

Yet in a big organization there must be a consistent rule, however arbitrary and wasteful it may be in individual instances. The life span has been lengthened. The 65 year rule was established a considerable time ago. A fair argument can be made that 70 years would be a better criterion. Yet 65 is the common standard in employment elsewhere, and in the political arena, as in the pressure for amendments to the federal social security act, there is a heavy demand for even younger retirement eligibility.

TRAGEDIES

There are tragedies in retirement programs. The other day a distinguished state officer, a career man, complained to this correspondent about the 65 year old standard. He is far more effective in his job today than he was 15 years ago, he insisted, and this correspondent agreed. During the post-war boom he had turned down attractive private employment opportunities, because he liked his state work, appreciated its security, and fully expected to stay at his assignment until the age of 70. Now he is abruptly required, to plan for retirement at 65, without much chance for other employment after that in his highly specialized field.

Sometimes it is suggested that a system of examination could be devised to salvage such valued men from the arbitrary waste of retirement rules. But such tests would involve mental as well as physical capacity, with such obvious complications resulting as to be almost surely impracticable or unpalatable to the legislature that would have to approve it.

The house TV investigating committee takes a breather. It showed that some Republicans came to clean up the mess — while others, less ambitious, merely came to clean up.

Khrushchev, at a Budapest military parade, asks Ike to quit testing H-bombs. Khrushchev is like the speaker at a whisky dealers' convention who asks everybody to swear off brandy.

of the Kimberly-Clark corporation and president of the American Paper and Pulp association, was to speak on "Economic Trends in the Paper Industry" at a meeting of the Lake States section of the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry.

Norbert Marx was elected president of the Appleton Policemen's Protective association. Walter Hendricks was named vice president and Frank Blick secretary and treasurer. Named to the board of directors were Robert Lathrop, Harry Salzman, Alfred Gosha and Marvin Green.

Clarence W. Merkle, Neenah, was one of 88 members of the symphonic singers and college orchestra of Stout Institute, Menomonie, on concert tour.

Miss Minn Smith was elected to represent Delta Gamma alumnae at the international sorority convention June 22 to 28 at Swamscott, Mass. Miss Patricia Ryan, Appleton, entertained the group.

"I'll bet the government scientists are feeling the pressure already!"

State Colleges Still Feeling Growing Pains

Regents Order Study Of Need for More Dormitory Space

Fast-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Growing pains of state colleges, in spite of immense building programs, have not yet eased.

Regents have ordered a study of the need for additional dormitories for expanding student bodies at the 10 institutions where some 4,000 students have been accommodated in dormitory spaces since World War II.

At the same time the regents have asked the state engineer's office for a "reevaluation" of the long-range campus development plans that were drawn about a decade ago—when the heavy surge of enrollment now being experienced was not anticipated.

The colleges now enroll about 12,000 students, or about twice the pre-war number, and all forecasts are for continued growth.

Private Lodgings
Some of them are located in relatively small communities, where the growth in private lodgings has not been commensurate with the heavy increases in student populations.

But even in such larger communities as LaCrosse students have their troubles in finding places to live. It was a report from President Rexford Mitchell of the LaCrosse college that led the regents at their session here to order a study of further women's dormitory building.

National described an "urgent need" for more women's housing near the LaCrosse campus.

The college regents have devised a system of long-term borrowing for the financing of such self-liquidating campus improvements. Debt payments are arranged out of rental income collected from the students on a long-term basis. Thus no state treasury outlay of funds are required.

The regents were also asked to consider the possibility of future low-cost apartment houses for married students at the state colleges, after a pattern already developed by the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Vertical Integration Hovers Over Dairy Farm Future Study

Some Solutions Seem to Point to Possible
'Lunch Bucket' Farmer, Sharecrop System

BY JAY JOSLYN
Post-Crescent Farm Editor

The spectre of vertical integration foreshadows the controversy over the future of farming now being aired in Washington and the nation.

Paradoxically, attempts to reduce farm surpluses such as the cut in the dairy support price that went into effect April 1, tend to increase rather than decrease production in many cases.

Ed Malcheski, dairy records analyst at the University of Wisconsin, in a study of farm management association figures from 1946 to 1956, has drawn a pattern of this increased production in the dairy industry.

Malcheski's study reveals a pattern of the relation between costs, prices and the size of dairy herds.

Price Down, Herds Up

He contends that when prices decrease by 5 per cent or when costs increase by 5 per cent, a dairy farmer is prone to increase his herd by two or three cows.

An increase in dairy herds in the near future will be facilitated by the current abundance and low cost of feed.

The size of a herd that can be economically handled by a family is limited. If the price-cost squeeze continues beyond that limit, the farmer is tempted to think of some way of breaking that barrier.

One solution attracting interest is the use of central milking parlors where a number of small farmers would drive their cattle for milking while concentrating on feed and other herd management.

Complete Control

Another approach to the squeeze problem has been suggested as handling the complete cycle of dairying by the farmer, including the manufacture of dairy products, their promotion, transportation and sale.

The combination of these two suggestions leads directly, it would appear, to the sight of farmers carrying lunch buckets, punching time clocks, or at the least, the creation of a sharecropper farm industry in dairymen.

Kenneth Hones, state president of the Farmers Union, pointed up another paradox in this drift when he recalled how the United States foreign policy in many areas of the world has been aimed at land reform resulting in the break-up of large farm estates into small, family-size farms.

Remove Farms

In some sections of the nation the government is attempting to remove complete farms from the market and the move is backed and recommended by the quasi-legal Committee of Economic Development.

It is believed more efficient farms could take up any necessary slack caused by the reduction of individual farms.

The farmers removed from their farms would retire or become a part of the labor market, either in industrial centers or following his trade as a hired hand.

Part-Time Farmers

The current abundance of cheap feed is tempting more and more farmers in this area to operate their farms on a part-time basis, keeping a comfortable sized herd, buying feed and holding industrial jobs most of the day.

The invasion of the non-farm rural families into agricultural land around industrial centers such as the Fox Cities is credited with one of the main reasons for this increase of part-time farming.

Reports indicate the old homestead gets to look too urban dwelling is constructed within hailing distance and the farmer takes on the part-time job to fatten up his income so he can keep up with his new neighbors.

No Longer Isolated

The farm family has lost its isolation in other ways, in addition to becoming a neighbor of a suburbanite. Hard selling on radio and television is leveling out standards of living above that which once was accepted as simple agrarian living.

Along with the household items that have become "necessities" on the farm, the suburbanite's work day is becoming a goal for the progressive farmer and research being conducted at the University of Wisconsin is aimed at giving the farmer a work-day more closely resembling the industrial worker than his usual can-see-to-can't-see schedule.

The farm situation is in flux. These factors and more won't be able to be solved by legislation or lack of legislation.

Farmers Union's Hone has pointed to one of the pitfalls that may be lying in wait along the farmers' path in the guise of corporate farming. He called it "the breeding place for communism."

Dr. R. K. Froker, dean of the agriculture college at the University of Wisconsin, saw an expansion of the cooperative system to complete control of the dairy industry as another alternative during his Farm and Home week address in Madison this year.

The National Dairyman's association sees the need of a legalized, price fixing monopoly as the answer to the dairyman's problem.

In the midst of sundry such suggestions, there seems to be one solid forecast. The farm as we know it is in line to be changed.

Harvest Oat Companion Crop Early for Good Green Silage

You may get more out of an oats companion crop and the legume seeding, too, if you take the oats off before the grain matures.

University of Wisconsin agronomist Dale Smith says you can do that by using the oat companion crop for silage or green feeding. His research during the last two years shows that the best time to harvest oats this way is between the milk and dough stages of the kernels.

Smith concludes that farmers can get as much or more feed value from oats cut early as from grain. In years when disease cuts grain yields, chances of getting good feed value from oats are increased by early cutting.

This also reduces the possibility of grain lodging, accumulation of straw, and legume killing under shocks. All these things can interfere with the well-being of the legume seedlings grown with the companion crop.

Oats compete very heavily for soil moisture. Early cutting makes the badly needed soil moisture available to the legumes. Volunteer oats growth from shattered seed is also eliminated, he points out.

And oats can make good forage, Smith says. Though they're rather hard to cure for hay, they make good green feed or silage. Pastering is also possible. Highest quality silage is usually obtained with oats at about 70 per cent moisture. That means wilting may be necessary at times.

Farmers who have tried taking oats off early are generally enthusiastic. Some say the legume seeding grew so well that they were able to take off as much as a ton of very high quality hay in late August of the seeding year. Using oats in this way presents a problem as to source of bedding, Smith points out.

The County Agent Answers

How can the best buys in fertilizer be determined?

For inorganic forms of fertilizer, the value is measured in terms of available nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash. If these materials are present in the same ratio, the higher analyses fertilizers usually are the best buys. For example, a 6-24-24 analysis provides more for your money than a 3-12-12. These fertilizers are of the same ratio but with the higher analysis form, handling charges are less and smaller amounts can be applied per acre.

What is the sign-up deadline for the 1958 conservation reserve program of the Soil Bank?

Farmers must sign up at the A.S.C. Office, 341 W. College avenue, Appleton, by April 15. Farmers sign a contract with the government agreeing to keep a specific tract of land out of production and under conservation practices for a stated period of time. The government agrees to make annual payments and give financial help in establishing the conservation practices. The minimum contract is for three years.

What are the recommended rates of seeding for hay and pasture?

For long rotations on soils adapted to alfalfa, the best mixture is 8 to 10 pounds of Vernal or Ranger alfalfa, 3 to 3 pounds of Brome Grass, and one-half to one pound of Ladino Clover per acre. The heavier rate of Ladino should be used only when the mixture is intended for pasture. For sandy soil, the amount of alfalfa can be reduced by two pounds per acre.

Is electronic cooking safe?

Electronic cooking is as safe as conventional cooking. The cooking utensils, except where the hot food contacts the utensils, and the Electronic Compartment are cool to the touch. The metal screen in the door is scientifically designed so that microwaves cannot pass through.

Productivity Per Acre Measures Farm Income

Farmer Seeking Best Return From Labor

If the more hours a farmer put in, the more income he received, then a good many Wisconsin farmers would be better off than they are.

But the farmer who puts in the most hours doesn't always wind up with the most income, say farm management specialists at the University of Wisconsin.

How do you measure the value returned for labor on the farm? The management specialists say that measuring crop value per acre is one good way.

In a recent survey of some 386 farms the management specialists found that labor income increased appreciably with increases in the value of crops per acre.

Labor and Price

For example, one group of 91 farms had an average value of crops worth $36 per acre. Yearly labor income for these farms averaged just over $1,700. Another group of 91 farms had an average crop value of $84 an acre. Their labor income averaged over $5,200.

The economists say that a high value of crops per acre increases labor income because it (1) increases volume of sales, (2) reduces expense for purchased feeds, (3) reduces costs — not per acre, but for each bushel of grain or ton of hay or other roughage produced.

They explain that probably two-thirds of our production costs are fixed, regardless of the yield we get. These fixed costs include interest, taxes, insurance, depreciation, and to a considerable degree, labor and power.

With high production each bushel or ton bears a smaller proportion of these fixed charges than when production is low.

The specialists say that productivity of crops can be increased first, by decreasing acres of unproductive land per farm. That might involve land clearing or drainage.

A farmer can also increase production on his current crop land by more thorough seed bed preparation, by better seed, more fertilizer, more intensive cultivation, more effective weed control, improved crop rotations, and a number of other practices.

But how high a productivity is desirable?

Diminishing Returns

Farmers, the economists say, operate under the principle of increasing costs or diminishing returns to a much greater degree than people in most other industries.

For example, a farmer may want to increase his crop yields through more fertilizer. But he knows that his yield response will be less and less for each additional 100 pounds of fertilizer applied.

A farmer must weigh the value of each increase in yield against the additional cost to bring it about. It may not pay to add additional units of fertilizer. The same applies in additional units of labor and feed.

It's not just a matter of piling up production without regard to cost, they conclude. In addition, a farmer has to have a market outlet for his increased production.

And a farmer now may achieve more income by placing some of his land in either the conservation or the acreage reserve and taking it out of crops.

It's a wise idea to look at all the alternatives, they conclude.

Pair Acquires Rights to Stage Remarque Story

New York — Warner LeRoy, son of film producer Mervyn LeRoy, and Charles Vidor, are teaming for production debut on Broadway.

The two have acquired stage rights to "The Last Stations" by Erich Maria Remarque and plan to present it next fall.

The venture will be Vidor's first stage stint. LeRoy got started in the theater this season as co-producer of Tennessee Williams' "Garden District," an off-Broadway success.

Alice Contest Offers Chance of Lifetime

Current Dairyland Representative Praises
Experiences Awaiting Winner for 1958

"It's the chance of a lifetime."

Those were the words of Miss Nancy K. Trewn, Whitewater, when asked about her reign as Wisconsin's 1957 Alice in Dairyland. As "Alice", Nancy works full time for the Wisconsin department of agriculture promoting the Badger state's famed agricultural products throughout the state and nation.

"Every Wisconsin girl between 18 and 25 should enter this program for a really wonderful experience," Nancy said as she discussed the plans for the 1958 Alice in Dairyland Princess program which began April 1.

"My work as 'Alice' has taken me all over the nation. So far, I've probably traveled close to 100,000 miles to such cities as Miami, Florida; Memphis, Tennessee; Philadelphia, Pa.; Los Angeles, California; Salt Lake City, Utah; Billings, Montana; and scores of others. It is hard, but wonderful work."

Growing Scrapbook

"As 'Alice', the list of people I have met reads like a flight of fancy and my scrapbooks grow rapidly with clippings and letters; but, Nancy emphasized, a really gratifying part of my job is the look of pleasure and appreciation that appears on the faces of out-of-staters when I greet them with a tidbit of fine Wisconsin cheese as I work in retail stores and make appearances promoting it."

Her enthusiasm for her job was plainly evident when she remarked wistfully, "Just think, here we are looking for my successor and in five more months a new 'Alice' will be taking my place; but—what happy memories I will have!" "Girls all over Wisconsin should get their application blank right now, fill it out and send it to us at the Wisconsin department of agriculture, state capitol, Madison," she said.

Blanks at Post-Crescent Blanks are available at the Appleton Post-Crescent. The main requirements are that girls must be at least 18 and not over 25 on April 30, 1958, and have been a resident of Wisconsin for at least a year. Musing over her experiences in last year's contest Nancy said, "It was exciting to go to the regional contest and be interviewed. The regional city was a wonderful host and treated us like queens with a luncheon, parade, banquet, and ev-everything; and, when I was named as one of the two girls to represent my region at the state contest, I felt like I was walking on air."

"The three other princesses from last year, Diane Zaborowski, Thorp; Janice Crane, Manawa; and Beverly Thomas, Cobb; and I are looking forward to greeting and visiting with the entrants at the regional cities next month. We will answer questions and describe 'Alice's' work, travels, thrills, and fun."

The regional contest for the Fox Cities area contestants are at Kiel for Outagamie, Brown and Calumet county girls and Fond du Lac for Waupaca and Winnebago county girls.

The Fond du Lac contest will be on May 17 and the Kiel contest on May 24. The state contest will be at DePere on June 19, 20, and 21. Four princesses will be chosen and one of them will be named Alice at the state fair.

Mechanization Growing on State Farms

Farm mechanization in Wisconsin is still moving rapidly ahead, according to a University of Wisconsin farm engineer.

Orrin Berge reports that since 1950 there are 52,000 more tractors, 18,000 more forage harvesters, 23,000 more balers, 23,000 more combines and 15,000 more corn pickers in Wisconsin.

Tractors led the list of farm machines in 1957. There were 223,000 on Wisconsin farms last year. There were 31,000 forage harvesters and 31,000 pickup balers, 37,000 combines; and 25,000 corn pickers.

Berge feels all new owners of farm machinery should study safety regulations, learn the best way to operate and adjust machines, and carefully study selection of additional machinery before buying.

Well Managed Woodlot Makes Farmer Money

District Forester Declares Only Small Percentage Being Given Correct Care

BY JOHN E. POWERS
Outagamie County Agricultural Agent

A well managed farm woodlot makes money. Growing timber for a profit is like any other farming program — it takes good management.

In order to make woods produce profitably, owners must protect them from grazing and practice good management with periodical planned harvest.

Alex Katovich, district forester for Outagamie, Winnebago, and Calumet counties, estimates that of the total 13,000 acres of woodlot in the district, less than 10 per cent is being properly managed.

Every citizen recognizes the need for more timber, better soil protection, improved game and watershed conservation, and good windbreaks. However, because of the demand for time on the part of the land owner, the woodlot is often overlooked.

Assist Owners

To assist land owners that wish to do a better job, the Wisconsin conservation department has located a district forester in Appleton. His free service includes making tree plantings, marking trees, good productive woodlots for harvest and improvement, and helping owners find a market for their wood management.

products. His office is located at 341 W. College avenue.

The federal government, through the A.S.C. program, encourages more land owners to improve and protect their forests and soil. Under the present program, a payment of $15 per acre is made for each woodland acre that is improved. Cost sharing is extended to those owners wishing to plant trees.

Tree Planter Here

In Outagamie county, a tree planter is made available for use in the county. A small fee is charged for rental to keep the machine in repair and working order. This fee is $5.00 for 1,000 trees and $1.50 for additional 1,000 trees. Contracts, for use of the machine are available through the district forester or the agricultural extension office.

A land owner who just grows trees is not managing his woods since he is growing as many undesirable trees as ones that will bring a good price. Under Wisconsin conservation department to make way for the new desirable ones and to increase the growth of the large healthier trees. Dairy Help Bill
Laird Calls Meeting
To Map Strategy for Committee Hearing

Representatives of farm organizations in Wisconsin are to gather in the auditorium of the Hardware Mutual Insurance company at Stevens Point Friday afternoon to map out strategy for what may be the last commodity farm bill to be acted on by congress.
The meeting has been called by Rep. Melvin Laird, Marshfield Republican, who has authored one of the self-help dairy bills before congress.
He said in his invitation that hearings on his bill are to be scheduled before the house agriculture committee late this month or early in May.
The Wisconsin Council of Agriculture is co-sponsoring the meeting.

Preview at Rally
The meeting at Morgan school in Appleton last week organized by the Fair Price committee may serve as a preview of what might happen in Stevens Point.
Several points in the existing bill are sure to come up for clarification.
Last Wednesday the definition of a "dairyman" was spotlighted as one of these points.
The existing proposals incorporate a referendum of acceptance among dairy farmers.
The Agricultural Stabilization committee office has been suggested as the polling place for this referendum.
One of the few points which won unanimous agreement at the FPC rally last week was to have the polling place changed.

to milk reception centers to avoid the vote of a dirt farmer whose claim to being a dairy farmer is one or two cows.
Make-up of Board
The make-up and selection of the self-help dairy stabilization board is another point sure to arouse discussion. It was a major bone of contention at the FPC rally.
The proposals indicate the board will be made up of 15 men, 11 of which would be farmers, appointed by the president from nominations named in a vote of the farmers.
The home locality of these farmers is to be allocated by milk production, but it was feared by farmers at the FPC rally Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois, the milk pitcher of the country, could be outnumbered and made ineffectual on the board.
The 6-year term of office for members of the board also came under fire last Wednesday.

Third Conference
Rep. Laird held two dairy conferences before writing his bill. His call for a strategy meeting to map out representations before the congressional committee hearings may indicate his fears that the commodity approach of his proposal may be faced with stiff opposition.
Rep. Tewes, the Republican, Waukesha, who attempted to divorce dairy supports from the vetoed farm price freeze bill, found it was politically impossible to shepherd an individual commodity relief bill through the present congress.
The reaction to President Eisenhower's veto also indicated the commodity approach to the farm problem has lost favor.
Overall Overhaul
Kenneth Hones, state president of the Farmers Union who attended farm legislation hearings at the start of the current session, told the FPC rally his experience in Washington made him feel the commodity approach was the thing of the past.
His argument indicated the approach disjointed the industry rather than helped it by alternately making one segment after another more profitable, causing some farmers to switch back and forth in their operations.
He believes the alternative will be a major overhaul of the philosophy of the government towards agriculture supports written in a new overall farm bill.
If Laird is able to get his bill or one like it through congress, it may mark the end of such legislation.

He says it's a good idea to plan your machinery needs for the next five years. Then you can budget or set aside some money each year to cover replacement costs.
If you're thinking about a machinery change, consider these alternatives: (1) buying a new machine, (2) buying a second-hand one, (3) buying one on shares with a neighbor, (4) hiring the work done by a neighbor or a custom operator.

Cold Facts of Ages Past Base of Today's Wedding Customs

Every bride-to-be knows the "old, new, borrowed blue" jumble of wedding tradition but her long locks tugged as she most modern misses are unaware that today's nuptial customs are based on some pretty cold facts rather than rosy sentiment.

Investigation into history's archives have unearthed one conclusion: ancestors of the modern bridal couple were more practical than their offspring; in fact, they could be downright blunt in pairing off.

The sturdy caveman was no swooning swain to pop the question on bended knee — no such docile pose for him. Marriage by capture was his way and his fair lady might well have had her long locks tugged as she was dragged her to a secret hide-out.

Caveman's Accomplice
Reprehensible practice perhaps, but successful, and this page in history has given rise to many customs surrounding marriages of 1958. Today's best man for instance, was the caveman's accomplice who served as lookout for the outraged father and brothers in fast pursuit.

The groomsmen too, who play a nominal role in the wedding party, were men of stature in yester-year. For it was these sly lads who had waiting horses bridled and saddled for the couple's escape from the furious family.

Bridal aids, who are often described as a honor guard, did more than look pretty in the days of marriage-by-capture. Most often sisters or female cousins of the bride, their shrill cries sounded the alarm when the aggressive bridegroom appeared at the door of the cave.

Price on Bride's Head
Association also places the honeymoon in the veiled past, with the time spent in hiding the bridegroom and his captured wife, until relatives dropped their frantic search, serving as inspiration for the modern wedding trip.

As the ages progressed, the savage male gentled slightly but his mellow ways were still somewhat crude—he placed a price on his bride's head. Heirress to a medieval castle or caretaker's daughter—she was worth a cash and a dowry got the nod over love.

Many customs, including the trousseau or dowry, and the use of ushers and the wedding itself, have come down from the days of "purchase marriage" when a maid's affections were gilded.

But not only the father paid in those days, for the bridegroom also had to hand over compensation. And in the fiscal wrangle, most marriages were as devoid of romance as a banking transaction.

The word wedding comes from the term "wed" which was the money or property the bridegroom gave to the girl's father. It was also considered a person or thing given or deposited as pledge, stake or wager.

Medieval times saw the "purchased" bride escorted to the church, accompanied to the altar and given to the bridegroom by bride knights who saw to it terms of the marriage contract were carried out. These protectors have resulted in the bridegroom's ushers and the bride's father continues to give his daughter in marriage to this day.

Since marriage was based on money rather than mutual attraction, most wedding ceremonies were arranged and it was the fortunate bride who knew her bridegroom prior to the match. The bridal veil stems from this era, with the filmy fabric used to cover the bride's face on her wedding day. The pair often looked at each other for the first time when the veil was lifted after the nuptial blessing.

Today, however, true love has won over all and the glint of gold is seen only in the wedding band and its dimmed by stars in lovers' eyes. For modern custom has evolved its own tradition realizing all too well, that honeymoons are soon over and budgeting problems drop romantics from the clouds.

Gifts Addressed to Bride Before Rite

Before the ceremony, all gifts are addressed to the bride alone. A gift sent later is addressed to the couple.

It's in best taste to send gifts before the wedding, if possible. They should be sent or delivered to the bride's home — never presented to the couple during the reception or at the site of the ceremony.

Simple Wedding Band Has Roots Deep in Antiquity

The wedding ring—symbol of two lovers willingly tied for life by the insignia of eternity, the circle, has its roots deep in antiquity.

Over the centuries, lovers have plighted their troth with the words: "With this ring..." The caveman is said to have encircled the ankle of his fiancée with grass or plaited rushes, then transferred the circle—symbol of future marriage to the finger.

In ancient Egypt the wedding ring was worn on the right hand and still is, but the engagement ring goes first on the left, to be transferred to the right at the wedding ceremony.

Other tales relate that the religious aspect of the ring as found in the Greek church rite goes back to the 13th century. Two rings—one of iron, symbolic of masculine force, the other of gold, representative of the less hardy but purer feminine constitution—were laid on the altar by the priest. The rings, also signifying sealing of the marriage contract, were consecrated and exchanged three times.

Traditionally the wedding ring is worn on the third finger of the left hand, as the ring finger in 1549. His Book of the left hand because our ancestors believed it to be the "heart finger," with a vein or nerve running directly from the finger to the heart. Another idea suggests that the right hand was thought to symbolize power and authority and the left, subjection.

Decision of Edward VI
An old Anglo-Saxon rite placed the ring on the thumb with the words: "In the name of the Father," then to the first finger with "and of the son," the second finger with "and of the Holy Ghost," and finally to the third finger with "Amen."

Through the years, tradition continued to locate the wedding band on the third finger left, until Edward VI of England officially named that finger as the ring finger in 1549. His Book

Blood Test is Essential to Nuptial Plans

Without a marriage license there is no wedding and there is no license without the very important blood test required by the state, so brides, don't wait for the last minute. You and your fiancé make sure you have your tests long enough in advance so that hectic rushing will be avoided.

The simple tests take only a few moments and the certificate you receive at the completion of the laboratory investigation is valid for over two weeks so do it early and you can present it at the time you obtain your license.

Although not probable, there is a possibility of breakage or misplacement in the laboratory so keep this in mind and you will not have to be worried at the last minute when numerous other details will need your attention.

The day to remember...

A day that will reflect happiness, always. Meet our lovely June bride, Mary Helen Denil and her husband to be, Donald C. Jensen as they prepare for the most wonderful day of their lives! Accompany them as they plan for the wonderful days and years ahead. And perchance a measure of their radiant happiness will filter through to you — for the bridal season is truly a time of joy!

Attend Out-of-Town Colleges 'Cover' Couple Plans June 14 Nuptials By 'Long Distance'

A wedding by "long distance"—is the situation these days at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Denil, 722 E. Byrd street as the daughter of the house, Mary Helen, a Mount Mary college senior, happily plans a June 14 wedding with her fiance, Donald C. Jensen, Neenah, who is studying at College of St. Thomas, St. Paul.

And as the great day approaches, telephone lines hum busily between the three cities as details for the semi-formal nuptials are checked by our "cover" couple. Don, the 22-year-old son of Mrs. C. W. Jensen, 510 Oak street, Neenah, will claim his bride-elect in a double ring ceremony preceding a nuptial low mass at St. Therese Catholic church.

Gown Originally Designed

The couple's wedding has been in the "making" since last summer when Don and his 21-year-old fiancee chose the June 14 date, conferred with the Rev. M. A. Hauch, St. Therese pastor who will officiate at the rites, and drew up invitation lists for an afternoon reception from 12 to 3 o'clock at Butte des Morts Golf club.

Mary, a blue-eyed brunette, will don a traditional but original gown for the nuptials, with the design sketched by her matron of honor, Mrs. Merlin Derr of Milwaukee, her former roommate at Mount Mary. Her cap-style headpiece "to match" is being fashioned by Mrs. Denil.

Bridesmaids will be Mrs. Robert Denil, 518 E. Marquette street, Mary's sister-in-law, and Miss Joan Mandle, Chlcago, the bride's current roommate at Mount Mary. Attire for the aids will complement her gown is all Mary will reveal on the topic, as she plans to surprise Don.

Nephews Ringbearers

Don has asked Robert Kersten, Menasha, to be best man, and Matt Willems, Sturgeon Bay, who roomed with Don at the Sigma Phi Delta fraternity house at Marquette university prior to Don's transfer to the St. Paul school, will be groomsmen. Dr. Robert Denil, Mary's brother, who with his father runs an Appleton chiropractic office, will also be a groomsmen.

Ushers will be Jack Herrick, Bismark, N.D., a fraternity friend from Marquette, and Paul Schierl, Menasha. The tiny four-year-old sons of the Mary and Don, Who Will recite wedding vows prior to a 10:30 low mass on June 14 at St. Therese Catholic church, confer with the Rev. M. A. Hauch, pastor, at the church altar. The pair and their wedding party will use prie-dieu, the traditional altar kneelers, at the celebration of the nuptial mass. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Robert Denils, Robert and Dick, will assist their Aunt 'Mimi' as ringbearers.

Mary and Don have decided on a 2-week honeymoon trip to Mackinac Island, and Mary, who is taking home economic classes at school, is busily sewing twin bermuda shorts in red plaid cotton for canoeing expeditions on the Mackinac straits. She is also designing and making many trousseau articles, including woven place mats and a rug.

The prospective newlyweds expect to live in the Tom-Town units for couples at College of St. Thomas, where Don will complete degree requirements. Mary, who has studied business administration, hopes to get an accounting position in St. Paul.

Start of Romance

Although both Mary and Don attended St. Mary Catholic High school, Menasha, where Don was a year ahead of his fiancee, their romance actually began two years ago at Christmas time.

Don, who was serving as an army chef, visited the home of his best man, Robert Kersten, while on leave, and there met Mary, who is a friend of Robert's sister, Evelyn. Correspondence began by mail and on June 1, 1957, the engagement of the couple was announced.

Wedding Plans Illustrated by June Bridal Pair

Though many miles separate our cover couple collegians, Miss Mary Helen Denil and her fiance, Donald C. Jensen, plans for their nuptials on June 14 have long been in the "making."

Shown writing wedding invitations, Mary, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Denil, 722 E. Byrd street, and Don, son of Mrs. C. W. Jensen, 510 Oak street, Neenah, throughout the Post-Crescent's "The Day to Remember" bridal edition illustrate typical pre-nuptial activities occupying Fox Cities couples.

Her special "day to remember" is dreamed of by Mary as she poses in traditional bridal attire with her 4-year-old twin nephews, Robert, Jr., and Richard, right, who will be ringbearers in the June ceremony. They are the sons of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Denil, Sr., 518 E. Marquette street.

Guests are Invited By Early Mail

Invitations for the wedding ceremony should be mailed from three to four weeks before the date set for the marriage, with both the bride's family and the bridegroom's being consulted on who should be included on the invitation lists.

The tissue which covers the invitation, enclosure cards, or announcements should not be removed, as engraver's ink rubs off easily and the tissue insures the invitation being received in perfect condition.

For the formal invitation, two envelopes are used. The inner envelope contains the invitation and enclosure cards and is not sealed. It carries only the name of the person or persons to whom it is sent, as "Mr. and Mrs. Glen Jones." This envelope is inserted in the outer with the name facing the flap for easy reading when removed.

The outer envelope carries the full name and address, with no abbreviations except the "Mr. and Mrs." Each grown person should receive a separate invitation. When expense must be considered, it is correct to address the inner envelope: "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith," with "Miss Marion Smith" beneath.

An invitation may be addressed to two sons, with both envelopes addressed to "The Messrs." On the outer envelope "and family" never appears, although this is sometimes done on the inner envelope when the family is a large one or composed of several younger children.

Wear Engagement Ring on Right Hand

On the wedding day, a bride should remember not to wear her engagement ring on the third finger of her left hand. For the ceremony, she can wear it on her right hand or leave it off entirely, if she desires.

Bride Decides on Type

Dignity Keynote of Wedding

Whether Formal or Informal

While the formal church wedding is a beautiful and impressive occasion, it calls for a considerable expenditure of time, effort and money. The informal wedding can be just as charming and dignified with much less expenditure.

The wise bride, no matter how large her circle of friends and relatives, will plan a wedding which is in keeping with her own and her parents' circumstances and means.

In choosing the type of wedding, the bride's first consideration should be (1) The amount of her budget; (2) Her own personality, and (3) The place where the ceremony is to take place.

Religious customs may influence the hour and place of the nuptials, but the type of wedding — formal, semi-formal or informal — is the bride's decision. In turn, her decision will strongly influence what the bride and bridegroom will wear, the type of invitations sent, the number of bridal attendants and their attire and to some extent, the number of guests invited.

Versatile Mode
Today, the marriage mode is so versatile that a couple can have the type of wedding suitable to both their tastes and the budget allowed by the bride's family. The three basic arrangements from which the bride can choose include:

The large formal church club or hotel wedding with an equally large reception later. A formal, semi-formal or informal wedding at church, club or hotel followed by a small home or club reception, to which only the families and close friends are invited, is the second choice.

A small wedding with a large reception later is another arrangement, or the couple, preferring informality and simplicity, can have a small chapel, rectory or home wedding, with no reception later and guests being received near the entrance of the church after the ceremony.

Dignity Important
Dignity should be the keynote of every wedding, whether it be informal or formal. And it can be so if the couple adheres to a few simple rules of etiquette.

A large and elaborate wedding can be carried off as easily as a small informal affair with careful advance planning on the part of the bride-elect and her mother.

The formal affair need not necessarily be costly or elaborate, for formal actually means adhering to a tradition of dress, invitations, cake, receiving line and reception.

Actually, there are varying degrees of formality. An ultra-formal wedding is the most elaborate — and most expensive — of all. It calls for a long-trained gown and long veil, with several bridal attendants and the entire wedding party and parents in formal attire.

A reception with food served by a caterer or a semi-buffet meal of several courses, lavish church decorations, instrumental music, engraved invitations and reception cards, aisle carpet and champagne are all part of the ultra-formal ceremony. Usually such a wedding is attended by many guests, but a smaller invitation list is not the measure of its formality.

The formal wedding follows the general pattern of the ultra-formal, but the bride has a wider choice of dress and veil. The wedding gown may have a short sweep or be trainless and contemporary fashions often suggest a shorter-than-floor-length dress with a finger-tip veil. Many attendants also are part of the formal ceremony.

For the smaller wedding — in church, rectory or at home — the bride has fewer attendants and may wear a wedding gown of ballerina or street-length and a short veil or lovely little chapeau.

Rehearsal A 'Must'

A rehearsal is a "must" for the smooth performance of the actual ceremony.

At the rehearsal, under the careful tutelage of the officiating clergyman and perhaps a bridal consultant, all members of the wedding party will learn their roles for the wedding itself.

If the bride is superstitious about standing at the altar with her husband-to-be before the ceremony, she may choose a friend or relative to stand in for her. However, she and her father should practice together to get in step with the music and be sure of the procedure in the ceremony. The bride walks down the aisle on her father's right and then gives her right arm to the bridegroom, who slips it into his left arm. As soon as dad has given the bride to the bridegroom, he leaves the bridal party and joins his family in the first left-hand pew.

A dinner or buffet supper usually follows or immediately precedes the rehearsal. And as this event is considered part of the wedding plans, it should be given by the bride's parents — not the bridegroom's family.

Reply Card Should Not be Included in Wedding Invitation

"RSVP" or "Please reply" is included in the lower left hand corner of the dinner or reception card, when the bride's family wishes to be able to estimate the number of guests planning to attend the event. It is improper to enclose a separate reply card in an invitation.

Guests receiving invitations on which "RSVP" has been included are obliged to send a formal handwritten reply, of acceptance or regret.

Marriages May Be Made in Heaven; But Weddings Take Earthly Plans

While marriages may be made in heaven, weddings take a good deal of down-to-earth planning.

Two to three months planning, preferably three, is recommended to insure that the bride's big day will be one to cherish. The first questions for the prospective bride and bridegroom to answer are—"when to marry?" and "what type of wedding?"

The first involves deciding upon month, date and hour. And as soon as this question has been answered, the couple should visit the clergyman to insure that he and the church will be available for the ceremony at the time and on the date they have chosen. If the ceremony is to be held in hotel or club, these arrangements also should be made at this time and the place in which the reception or dinner will be held should be secured.

On the visit to the clergyman, the couple should talk to him about church rules on decorations and music; make appointments for any necessary instructions and set a rehearsal date.

Before visiting the clergyman, formal, semi-formal or informal—the type of wedding menu and reception refreshments. Invitation lists also should be determined. As the bride and her family assume financial responsibility for the wedding, it usually is up to them to decide on the type. Of course, the bridegroom and his family should be consulted often and there should be agreement between the bride-elect and her fiancé on whether the ceremony will be small and simple or large and elaborate.

After the clergyman has been consulted and type of wedding decided upon, estimates should be gotten for music, church and reception decorations, catering and invitations. Orders for these items should be placed as soon as possible, at least two months in advance will avoid last minute worries.

Select Bridal Attire

At this point, too, attendants should be chosen and the bride—especially if the ceremony is to be in a popular bridal month, such as June—should select her gown and decide on what the honor aid and bridesmaids will wear. Custom rules that the bride chooses her maids' outfits—and the maids pay for them.

Apartment-hunting, buying of furnishings and honeymoon planning by the pair also should be started and the bride should begin her trousseau shopping early in the schedule of wedding preparations.

Two months before the day, the bride should also attend to her silver, china, glassware and linens and have her choices recorded in local gift registries.

During this two-months-before period, final decisions should be made with florists on bouquets and corsages for the women in the bridal party and other floral decorations for the ceremony and after-festivities; appointments should be made with photographers for the advance bridal portrait and wedding day candid shots, and arrangements should be completed for breakfast or dinner menu and reception refreshments. Invitation lists also should be readied by the families of the couple and as soon as the invitations have arrived from the printers, the bride should begin addressing envelopes.

Seek Quality for Modern Trousseau

Seek quality, not quantity, when shopping for your travel trousseau and you will insure longer satisfaction with your garments. Be practical. Always-crisp sharkskin and never-wrinkle jersey are packable partners. Nylon-tricot lingerie, or a dacron-cotton combo is both practical and becoming. Laundering is a breeze!

First, consider the basic essentials: lovely lacy lingerie, at least three nightgowns; a gown and pignoir matching set; and other undergarment necessities. Mimosa yellow is the newest color for beautiful bridal lingerie.

Plan for Climate

Be sure to pack several pairs of stockings so you won't be caught short by mishaps. Depending upon where you and your husband will spend your honeymoon, suppose that you will have to be dressed for many activities from speed boating to spinning gayly on the dance floor, or from skiing to skin diving. With your destination in view, make sure you have both casual and more dressy apparel for the climate.

Consider weather changes and don't be caught in a down-pour without your raincoat. If your budget is restricted, accessories make the difference! The appearance of a dress can be altered (so it can't be recognized) by the clever use of a stylish scarf, pin, necklace, or a combination of them.

If you expect to dress formally during your trip, don't forget your important foundation garments, often more vital than the dress itself for an alluring effect. Plastic crinoline keepers cut down space in the suitcase and wear and tear on the crinoline. Also, plastic bottles for all-important cosmetics will eliminate breakage and fatal stains on lovely new trousseau-togs.

Avoid Excess

Avoid taking more than you will need. Sit down and plan, with pen and pad, what you think you will need. Then pack carefully, your basic items, shoes, accessories, and finally your modish new dresses and sport clothes.

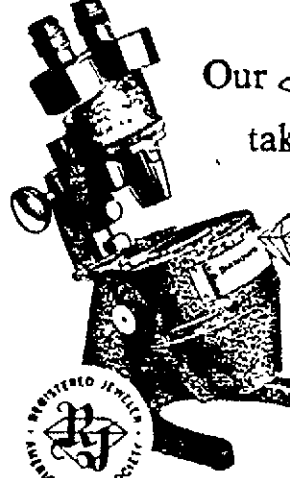

A small container of soap flakes is nice to have for those

Post Note Of Thanks Quickly

Rules — almost as strict as those for invitations — govern the "thank you's" brides must write.

One of the most important of these rules concerns prompt acknowledgment of each gift—within two or three weeks, say etiquette authorities. However, an extended honeymoon of three or four weeks may understandably make this period a bit longer.

If "thank you's" are written as the gifts arrive, each item will be acknowledged in the enthusiasm of receiving it and the writing will be a pleasure instead of a burden. When gifts are received very close to the day of the wedding or after, making it impossible to acknowledge them until after the wedding trip, the note might include the reason for the delay.

Definitely taboo are the ready-made printed "thank you's" to which the bride merely signs her name. A "thank you" note should be sincere, informal and hand written on fine grade note paper. Folded note paper, with the couple's name or the bride's new monogram engraved on the outer fold is a popular form, with the thank you's being ordered at the same time as the invitations.

Each note should make specific mention of the gift and the possible ways in which it will be used, and above all the bride should sound as if she really appreciates the donor's thoughtfulness. Although the bride writes all notes herself and signs them, her husband's name and comments should be included within the note.

What the Well-Dressed Man Wears to a semi-formal wedding was discovered by Don, right, and two of his attendants when they visited an Appleton men's store. Robert Kersten, Menasha, who will be Don's best man in the June 14 nuptials, is helped on with his coat by Dr. Robert Denil, Appleton, brother of Don's prospective bride. Dr. Denil will serve as groomsman in the wedding party. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Formality of Wedding Influences Male Attire

What shall the bridegroom wear?

According to authorities on the subject, his attire, as well as that of his attendants depends on the type and hour of the ceremony and the season of the year in which the wedding takes place.

Men of the wedding party—best man, groomsmen, ushers, fathers of bride and bridegroom—dress like the bridegroom.

For the formal daytime wedding, when the bride wears a full length gown and veil, the bridegroom and his party wear formal daytime clothes—a cut-away coat of black or gray and striped trousers.

When the bride chooses a ballerina gown and a veil which is fingertip length or shorter, the daytime wedding is semi-formal and the male members of the party wear gray or black stroller jackets and striped trousers.

In a formal evening wedding, the bridegroom wears a tailcoat, while for the semi-formal evening ceremony, he wears a tuxedo.

When the wedding occurs in summer, the men may wear white flannels and navy coats for a wedding in a country church, or a white linen suit for a garden wedding.

For the informal wedding, when the bride wears a small hat with or without veil, a navy business suit is the correct choice. Pastel colored dinner jackets are never considered correct wedding attire, the authorities say.

Man's Role Is Small But Vital

Although the bridegroom's role in planning for a wedding is relatively small, he does have certain obligations for which he is solely responsible. Being a happy, contented and eager bridegroom is first of course, but there are others.

Naturally, he presents the bride with the engagement and wedding rings. He makes arrangement for the purchase of the bride's flowers; boutonniere for the groomsmen and fathers; and corsages for his mother and the bride's mother.

He obtains the ties and gloves for his attendants, if the wedding is a formal affair. The wedding license, the minister's fee, and the honeymoon expenses are his. Gifts for his attendants will be presented by him to his attendants either at the bachelor dinner or at the wedding rehearsal. This dinner is often given by him, although the best man or a close friend may give it.

SONNY BREITENBACH SHOES

128 E. College Ave. Ph. 4-9770

The brilliantly beautiful engagement ring, sparkling on a young woman's finger, is considered by many to be the "queen" of gems. And indeed, this stone has royal origins as its use was once reserved for only queens and princesses.

Diamond historians relate that the diamond ring for betrothal purposes only became popular with the general public toward the end of the 15th century. Today, about 85 per cent of engaged girls wear the treasured diamond which stands for unconquerable and unchanging love.

The gem has its practical side too; it is not only the most brilliant of stones, but also the toughest and can be passed on three and four generations.

Round Cut Popular

While one of the hardest stones known, the diamond can be cut into several forms. The most popular among brides-elect is the round American or brilliant cut which has 58 facets.

Other diamond shapes include the emerald-cut, rectangular in shape, faceted with concentric squares and known for its depth and clarity. Also traditional is the marquise-cut, having 58 facets and shaped in a rounding oblong, and the square cut, with its trim smart lines.

Jewelers report that most couples choose the engagement ring together, which gives the bride an opportunity to select a ring both suitable and pleasing.

4 C's Set Value

Color, clarity, cutting and carat weight are the 4 C's which determine diamond value. The diamond's weight is measured in carats, with each carat having 100 points.

The price of a diamond is based on the number of points, on its clarity or freedom from imperfections, on its color and cut which determine the stone's brilliance and sparkle.

A popular selection of engaged couples is the "solitaire" which means the ring has only one stone in it. When the gem is centered by smaller stones on each side, it is called a center stone.

Prefer Simple Setting

Setting of the stone will depend on personal preference and size of the gem. While those with a limited budget should consider size, jewelers remind them that more stone and less setting is to be favored, as a setting is easily replaced while a stone can last a lifetime.

The trend in settings has swung away from heavy metal frames and toward the simpler post-prong mounting (which holds the stone by four prongs). White gold is the top metal choice with the more expensive platinum also available.

While settings vary, those that are seen widely are the Tiffany, ripple, which sways to one side, and the cluster design.

Match Wedding Bands

Many engagement rings match the simpler wedding bands, with identical trim and with stones starting and stopping at the same points on both rings. Often the wedding band is notched to allow the engagement ring to slip into it.

Once the couple has decided on engagement and wedding bands, jewelers suggest the pair invest in diamond insurance to protect the treasured jewels. They advise a "float-er" policy which will cover loss of any kind and as an added precaution, to take pictures of the rings for identification purposes for the insurance company.

Open Seam of Glove For Placing Ring on Finger During Rite

When a bride selects a gown with short sleeves which necessitates the wearing of long gloves, they should not be removed during the ceremony. However, the under seam of the ring finger should be opened so the bride can bare her finger to receive the wedding band.

The bride wearing a long-sleeved gown doesn't wear gloves. If the style of gown is such that short gloves are worn, these may be removed — at least the one on the left hand — for the ring ceremony.

Tradition abounds when wedding bells rung out and one of the most sentimental customs of the occasion is the exchange of gifts by the bridal couple to mark the great day.

The impact of this custom has swept the country in recent years and a recent survey indicates that 66 per cent of the men give their new brides a gift and close to 60 per cent of the women return a cherished sentiment to their new husbands.

The bride's gift to her bridegroom is usually a personal article inscribed with a thought understood intimately by both and their initials. Her bridegroom will choose his gift to her with equal care but most often his present will be a lasting token signifying the beginning of married life.

Pearls For Bride

Gift ideas for the bride might be a string of pearls, which many girls favor to complement their nuptial attire. Treasured heirloom pieces — sometimes donated by the bridegroom's mother or aunt, can be reset in modern rings, bracelets or pendants. Other good choices include diamond pins, fine gold jewelry and lovely watches set with semi-precious stones.

Many bridegrooms have been pleased with silver cigarette cases, gold cuff links and studs, fine watches or a matched luggage set. The bride selecting might keep in mind that most men will appreciate any gift, but are usually happier with a present that is elegantly conservative.

Rings to Last a Lifetime are chosen by Mary and Don, with Mary checking Don's finger size so the simple band will slide on easily during their double ring nuptial ceremony on June 14 at St. Therese Catholic church. The majority of couples being married this summer will exchange matched wedding bands. The couple is shown at an Appleton jewelry store. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Presents of Bridal Pair Mark Big Day

The sparkling engagement ring worn by about 85 per cent of engaged girls attains most of its flashing beauty from the way it is cut. When jewelers speak of a diamond's cut, they refer to the shape of the stone and arrangement of facets (the small planes that reflect light and make the diamond sparkle).

The most popular cut is the round—often called the brilliant. The marquise is boat-shaped, the emerald cut is oblong or square and the pear-shape diamond tapers from wide to a narrow point.

Step-by-Step Process

Diamond Sparkling Beauty After Cutting

- 1. The Octahedron — a common form of rough diamond which is examined by a diamond expert through a magnifying glass called a loupe. He checks for imperfections (bubbles, fissures, carbon specs) and decides how they will be ground out and the direction in which the stone will be saved or cleaved.
- 2. Octahedron Sawed — in two parts by a tiny disk of phosphorbronze a few inches in diameter and as thin as a sheet of paper. Covered with diamond dust, the disc rotates from 5,000 to 6,000 times per minute, continually whetted by diamond dust as it cuts into the stone.
- 3. Girdling the Stone—occurs when the diamond is cemented into a holder fitted on a revolving shaft. Another diamond is cemented at the end of a long rod. As the shaft turns, the two stones connect and grind each other to shape.
- 4. Lopping the Diamond—is done by mounting the stone in a holder to create facets (tiny planes which reflect light) by spinning a flat iron disk. The diamond craftsman grinds four facets on top and four on the pavilion (the part below the mounting).
- 5. Main Facets — of the diamond are the planes between the table and the girdle. Termed bezel facets, they make up a framework which will be filled in by additional facets called the brilliantheers.
- 6. Brilliance—is done by the craftsman who puts in the little "star" facets around the table at the upper corners of the bezel facets. The "break" facets at their lower corners along the girdle, and more "break" facets at the bottom of the pavilion.
- 7. The Finished Gem—has a total of 58 facets and is considerably smaller than the original stone. Over half the weight has been ground away into powder but the finished diamond is worth more than twice as much as the rough stone.

Courtesy Governs Wishes to Couple

While the wedding guest's main function is to share in the happiness of the bride and groom, there may be times when a question will arise as to the rules of polite society dictating for the guest.

Generally, common sense and courtesy can be relied on as good guides, for etiquette is only a formal word for courtesy and the manners and the observance of social rules are the outward expression of one's inner consideration, not a stylized, outmoded ritual.

In the area of wedding invitation protocol, the guest is always obliged to be courteous. While a formal note of acceptance or regret is not expected for an invitation to a large church wedding (unless a few card is enclosed), acknowledgment must always be made promptly for a home, club or hotel wedding and for a dinner or reception invitation. Even when there is no request for a response to a reception invitation, it is always good manners when "the pleasure of your company" has been asked.

Answers to formal wedding or reception invitations should be written in the third person on fine white, formal notepaper. While it is not necessary to repeat every word of the invitation, the date and time should be repeated to show they are correctly understood.

Informal handwritten invites to either wedding reception or both should be answered with personal notes of acceptance or regret. And while the wedding announcement does not require acknowledgment, a note to the couple is a courteous gesture when a gift is not being sent. An invitation to a reception, dinner or a home, club or hotel wedding ceremony generally calls for a gift.

Smartness is the tempo to follow in dressing for a guest role at a wedding. Feminine guests should not try to outshine the bride, but they should be smartly dressed and in keeping with the formality of the wedding. Hats or suitable headaddresses and gloves are in order for women at any wedding.

It's courtesy-wise for guests to arrive for the ceremony no later than 15 minutes before the hour scheduled. Guests attending weddings in churches foreign to their own denominations should try to conform out of respect and courtesy as nearly possible to the church rules observed by members. They should not, however, try to carry out the rituals with which they are unfamiliar.

Passing through the receiving line (where one shakes hands and makes some pleasant brief remark about the wedding, the bride or bridegroom) is a guest's first responsibility at a reception, and it is generally expected that guests remain at the event until the bridal couple has departed.

Receiving Line Posts

Who stands in the receiving line? This is one of the worries of many a bride-elect as she works on plans that will assure her big day will be perfect in every way.

There are actually several correct forms, depending on circumstances. However, a few rules apply in all cases.

These steadfast rules place the bride always on the bridegroom's right (except when he's in uniform). The best man and groomsmen or ushers are never in the line and flower girls and ringbearers are rarely included. The father of the bride joins the line only at the most formal of receptions.

The usual order of the receiving line places the mother of the bride, as the day's hostess, first in line. Next to her is the father of the bridegroom, then the mother of the bridegroom. The father of the bride is next if he joins the line, although usually he circulates among the guests near the line.

A little apart, often standing in front of a decorated backdrop or fireplace is the bridal party — bride, bridegroom, maid or matron of honor and bridesmaids. When the reception is held at home, or in club or hotel where space is limited, the parents and bridal party lines often merge into one, beginning with the mother of the bride and ending with the bridesmaids.

If the father of the bridegroom is a member of the community, he also may choose to join the father of the bride in circulating among the guests, rather than standing in line.

Receiving Line Comments Should Be Short and Sweet

Short and sweet sums up the type of comments guests should make as they pass along the receiving line. While comments should be as brief and to the point as possible, the guest must, however, seem cordial and happy to be where he is.

To each person in the receiving line, the guest says "how do you do," "lovely wedding" or "so happy to meet you" during a brief handclasp. Of course, the bride receives "best wishes" and the bridegroom "congratulations."

Selecting Members of Bridal Party

Attendants should be chosen from the couple's closest friends and relatives, near their own age if possible. The bride, of course, selects her own aids and the bridegroom should be allowed to choose whomever he desires.

A maid or matron of honor and a best man hold vital roles and cannot be done without. The degree of formality of the ceremony rules the number of bridesmaids — from two to twelve — who will participate. In formal ceremonies, it's also permissible to have both a maid and matron of honor.

The bridegroom selects the same number of ushers as the bride's attendants, plus an extra man for each 25 to 50 wedding guests.

Natural Beauty of Flowers Completes Bridal Picture

From the moment a lady says "yes", she dreams of her wedding day, a day filled with the lovely traditions of generations of brides. Flowers play an important role in the entire bridal scene. Supplying the many floral arrangements in artful splendor takes time and careful planning. The bride-to-be should contact her florist at least a month before the wedding, if possible. A general theme is usually dominant throughout the floral patterns, although the bride's bouquet may be completely different from those of her bridesmaids. Bouquets for the bride and her attendants are only a small part of the floral plan. The church is adorned with standard floor vases, candelabra, pew decorations. The altar often is decorated with flowers.

Pretty Blooms are an Attractive complement to Mary's own flower-like freshness, as she poses among an array of giant chrysanthemums and white orchids at an Appleton florist's shop. Flowers for altar, reception and bridal party members are an important item in planning a wedding. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Striking center pieces at the rehearsal dinner cannot be forgotten. Garlands of greens and dainty flower trees are popular reception decorations to embellish the serving tables. The choice of flowers is the bride's. Pillars or gardenia trees leading the way to the radiant bride, receiving her guests are fragrant and lovely.

White Still Favorite Although white still remains in the most favored position when brides choose flowers for the important day, subtle hues in pastels, red roses, daisies, and others are rapidly becoming common choices. To complete the unforgettable scene of a happy bride, her bouquet completes her attire, and brings out the ecstatic happiness she feels.

A single flower, in its incomparable perfect beauty may be all that she chooses. Roses are often favored by sweethearts, fashioned in the colonial rose-gay bouquet. Brides should consider their appearance when choosing flowers. The small girl shouldn't be lost behind a gigantic mountain of flowers. The lantern pendant bouquet is a wise choice for the tall graceful girl. Cascade, gently flowing crescent, and round bouquets are classic and always complement the bride.

Unusual Bouquet Ideas For a more unusual effect, just as lovely, flower muffs, fans, and diamond-shaped sprays lend remarkable beauty. Bridesmaids posed in fairy tale illusion, look sweet with flower-trimmed lace parasols. A petite wicker basket overflowing with cheerful, youthful daisies is an eye-catching arrangement.

Reward for the bridesmaid for leading the slow march to the altar is her lovely bouquet, its memory always cherished. Bouquets carried by the bridal attendants not only complement the style and color of their gowns, they lead dramatically to the final burst of bridal white.

For centuries the bridegroom's boutonniere has been a flower from the bride's bouquet. He does not see her until the wedding, but she thanks him for his gift by sending him a flower.

Traditionally, the bridegroom sends flowers to his bride, for both mothers, and for his best man and ushers. He gives the bride the privilege of choosing the flowers best complementing her gown and the entire nuptial theme.

Pearls, Lace Beautify Delicate ropes of pearls, interwoven in the sentiment bouquets, add luminous beauty. Lace and ribbon are other materials to complete the bouquet. Veils, too, frame the bride's glowing face, topped with minute, perfect roses tucked in gracefully.

A tiara of a simply daisy chain is a wonderful choice, when bridesmaids carry a knotted daisy chain, symbolic of the wedding vow. No bride's going-away costume is complete without the traditional corsage, augmenting the happy picture.

The type of flowers, whether it be roses, carnations, gardenias, lily-of-the-valley, or orchids is entirely the choice of the bride. A careful selection in advance will make the wedding memorable and perfect, as exquisite as the perfect rose.

When Recessional Starts It's Time to Be Gay, Not Solemn

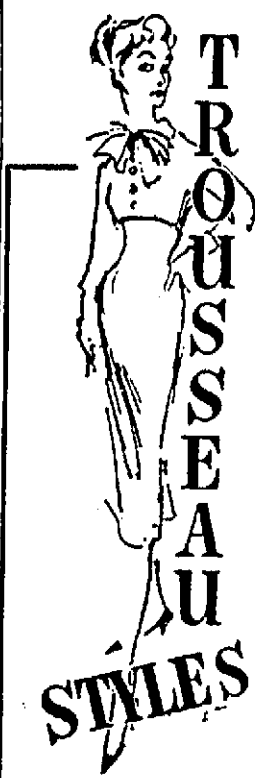

Above all, a wedding is a religious ceremony and the preliminaries should be carried out gravely, although not sadly. Therefore bridesmaids and ushers should not seem too gay before the rites.

When the recessional starts it's time to be gay—not solemn—and each bridesmaid should hold her usher's arm firmly, smile at him and at the guests.

Exchanging of Gifts Permissible

It is permissible for the bride to exchange duplicate presents—no one would expect her to keep seven kitchen clocks or a dozen silver salt and pepper sets.

However, gifts from her own or the bridegroom's family should not be exchanged unless she is told she may do so.

Shoes to Complement Wedding Attire are considered thoughtfully by Mary and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Denil. Simplicity Accented
The summer bride will have puffs of skirt, the slightest of no difficulty in finding a gown sleeves and bodices which slim to enhance her own very special and flatter the young figure. cial charm for Fox Cities shops. Highpoint of collections are have flowered forth with vast the gowns with the wonderful collections of exquisite cre-swoop of skirt, with popular attire.

This year's styling accents shaped model or the longer tor-soed princess style. From skirting billows, delicate - modeled bodices emerge like slender stems to set off a bride's flower-like beauty.

Designers have modeled their gowns in light, soft fabrics and the sheer cloths give a mistlike allure to all-over design. Practically important too, many of the new peek-through materials such as embroidered nylon maintain hand-box freshness throughout the whirl of a wedding day.

Trains Are Featured
Trains are featured on many dresses and here again, it's the illusion of frills without fuss. Most popular is the briefer chapel sweep, the shorter drape being more easily managed than the longer and more formal cathedral length. Most of the gowns for the warm-weather bride are floor-length but dresses dip to chapel or ballerina hemline.

Silhouettes vary among frocks being shown, the top winner being the wide-skirted gown. Others displayed include the empire gown with its high-rise bodice and the jacketed gown. All are simple but elegant and designed to enhance the bride's own attractiveness.

In general, most gowns have brief and sculptured bodices, styled with sabrina style or modified necklines. Some styles have scalloped necklines edged with lace while others have the slightest of round or standing collars giving a discreetly feminine appearance.

Lush Enormous Skirts
Sleeves of the summer dresses have bowed to the weather in many instances, with the short, brief cap or softly shirred shoulder pleats often seen. The longer elbow or full length sleeve can also be selected and bridal consultants suggest that if a shorter sleeve is preferred, that brides wear matching gauntlet or long glove.

It is the skirting however, that catches interest this year and the enormous drifts have been tiered, draped and puffed. Waistlines are cinched with wide sashes that are caught into back bustles and huge bows, panier effect is used at the hips, and lace-trimmed overskirts, aprons and peplums are other devices shown.

Deft hands have shaped these cascading skirts and the material often chosen includes embroidered nylon, particularly schiffli (an embroidered nylon tulle) pure silk bombazine, gleaming satin, rustling taffeta, crisp organdy, soft

The Easy Pull-Out of Stove grills is examined by Mary as Don leans over to get a better glimpse of the range which was photographed in an Appleton appliance store. Major appliances such as stoves, refrigerators and wash machines are big items for a young couple's budget and should take careful thought before purchase. (Post-Crescent Photos)

The Effect of a Piece of Flatware with a china pattern is studied by Mary and Don, who like other young couples realize that table settings are "lasting" buys. Most young women like the advice of their prospective bridegrooms in choosing silver, china and crystal, as both will use the items for many years. The couple is shown in an Appleton jewelry store.

Don Happily Tries Out a "Man-Size" chair and Mary hastily checks the price tag as the couple browses in an Appleton furniture store. Sturdy construction, style and comfort are among pointers to be noted when selecting basic furniture pieces.

Newlyweds to Set Table With Pretty Patterns

One of the most important occasions facing the bride-elect is the serving of her first "company" dinner after her marriage. Whether she be the "can't boil water" type or a kitchen whiz, her morale as a hostess will zoom if she can set a pretty table. China, silver, and crystal appointments are to be considered by the young woman — and if she's wise, she'll take her future along on the shopping tour. Table settings are lasting should be selected with care, with thoughtful consideration of the type of life the couple will be living, and keeping in mind the fact that patterns chosen prior to the wedding will often last until the golden wedding anniversary. The most effective and attractive table settings complement each other and have a look of being in the same mood. However, repetition can be too much of a good thing and contrast should be included in the overall arrangement.

Today's trend toward casual living is reflected in table appointments, with simplicity noted in china, crystal and silver. Authorities caution, however, that simplicity can be overdone leading to a dull, bleak appearance. They suggest that couples achieve interest by combining both simple and more elaborate designs in table settings. Introduce Victorian Touches In china, the innovation this year is ware with a Victorian look but in the modern manner. This simply means that there has been a re-emphasis on such touches as gold trim, dainty roses and swirled crests. Styles are shown in both the coupe or well type and the gently shaped flat plate. Many gold and silver-rimmed plates are seen and often feature a small floral design in the center against a plain background. Others pick up the gold interest in interior design. Authorities comment that the Victorian look china teams happily with the modern or Victorian-influenced silver. For the new silver too, has the delicate

Make It Gay Reception Festive Climax to Nuptial

Tradition has provided the reception as a festive climax for the wedding. Following the solemn marriage ceremony, its theme should be one of gaiety.

Once a prospective bride has named the day and decided upon the type of ceremony and its setting, her thoughts usually will turn to this next major event for the day. What type of reception shall it be? Where will it be held? How many guests will be invited?—these are among the first questions to be answered.

The type of wedding ceremony—formal, semi-formal or informal—need not determine the size of reception, for a large one can quite properly follow an informal ceremony and a simple reception can be held in conjunction with a formal wedding.

How Determine Type

The number of guests to be invited will be a determining factor in selecting a site for the reception. Economics also is an important consideration, since all costs must be borne by the bride and her family. Regional customs often influence the type of reception, too.

Simple or elaborate, large or small, the type of reception is somewhat determined by the time of the ceremony. A reception immediately after a noon or morning ceremony is properly called a breakfast or brunch and the menu consists of such dishes as creamed chicken or fish, hot biscuits and coffee, as well as the bride's cake and punch.

The custom of having a breakfast immediately after the ceremony—a sit-down affair for family members and bridal party—with a large reception in the afternoon also is popular in Fox Cities communities.

The afternoon or evening reception calls either for simple refreshments of sandwiches, pastry, coffee and punch or it might be a buffet supper or an elaborate dinner. The traditional wedding drink is champagne, often made into a punch. Sauterne, a dry white wine, and fruit punch are equally appropriate, however.

Home receptions are always proper and can cut down on expenses. But in this day of smaller homes, many brides choose to receive their guests in church social rooms or at clubs. Often, even when the family home is large, the bride may feel that holding the reception at church or club eliminates extra planning and fuss. Caterers are a big help in lightening the burden when a home reception is planned.

When the wedding is to be held in late spring or summer, lawn receptions may be planned. But it is always wise to make arrangements for moving the festivities indoors in case of uncooperative weather.

Customary Ritual

Customary reception ritual places events in this order:

Guests are greeted as they arrive—formally or informally, although it's customary to have a formal receiving line after a formal church wedding. The receiving line includes the couple, the bride's parents, the maid of honor and bridesmaids. The father of the bride may stand in the line but usually he and other male attendants mingle with the guests.

The bridal party is according to rule, always seated when a family meal is served, while guests may also be seated or served buffet style. At an afternoon or evening reception, where light refreshments are on the menu, they are served buffet-style or from platters passed by waiters, ushers or friends of the bride.

High point of the reception is the cutting of the wedding cake by the couple. The bride always cuts the first piece—assisted by her bridegroom—and then her aids or caterers take over and cut the remainder of the cake and serve it to the guests.

When guests have been greeted, the wedding cake cut and the couple has danced the first number (if this is part of the reception plans), the bride tosses her bouquet to her bridesmaids and the newlyweds leave the reception to change clothes.

Good-byes to parents are the final duty of the couple before they dash to the car amid a traditional shower of rice. When the happy pair has made its escape, the reception is over.

Liturgical Designs Approved

Tastefully designed liturgical invitations, which emphasize the religious aspect of the marriage ceremony, have been given an approving nod by several etiquette authorities, who find the unusual invitations and announcements proper, even though they depart from formal social tradition.

These distinctive cards—departing from the strict protocol of the heavy vellum invitation with traditional engraved wording—combine Christian symbolism with liturgical quotations in telling of the approaching marriage or making announcement of the already performed ceremony.

Not only does the design and wording of these new invitations and announcements differ from the traditional, but only one envelope, instead of double envelopes, is generally used for mailing. These new invitations may use an elegant textured paper stock in gray, white, beige or some other subtle neutral and at times, the bridal couple may design and print its own invitation, rather than purchasing a commercial design.

Within, the invitation and announcement differ quite a bit from the customary form. Instead of engraved wording on the outer side of the card, religious symbols—such as the pax or peace sign, a dove and double rings—are worked into a tasteful design. This is printed in any color or combination complementary to the shade of paper used.

"Where Fashion Wise Women and Girls Always Shop"

It's Dad of Bride Who Pays

At times the question — "May the bridegroom's family give the wedding or may the two families share its costs?" — arises. And the answer is always the same — "No."

No matter what the financial status of the bride's family, they are the one's who give the wedding. They spend as much as they can afford and keep the arrangements as simple or elaborate as they choose.

It is one of the almost inflexible rules of etiquette that the bride's parents maintain the prerogative to give their daughter the kind of wedding they can afford and have her leave their protection from the type of background they have created for her. The only person, who may give Dad an assist in signing the checks for wedding expenses, is the bride herself, who may feel she wants to lighten the burden on her parents.

Even when the bride is to be married away from home, the location of the wedding and expenses should be determined by the bride and parents, not the bridegroom's.

Wedding "costs" handled by the bride and her family are:

Bridal photographs.

Household trousseau.

All costs of the reception.

Flowers for the bride's attendants and flowers for the church and reception.

Music at church and reception, including organist's fee.

Gifts for bridesmaids and bridegroom's wedding ring.

The few expenses which the bridegroom must take care of include in addition to the bride's ring, license and clergyman's fee, ties and gloves, boutonnieres for himself, best man and ushers, the bride's flowers (which have been chosen by her mother or the bride herself), corsages for the mothers,
